Intending clients are invited to inspect the artistic bronze and chromium plated Counter Grille in the new Post Office, Rathmines, the work of which has been entirely carried out by me at the above premises.

Telephone 43035.

The new £27,000 building which houses the Rathmines District Post Office and telephone exchange at Rathmines terrace was opened for business yesterday morning by Mr. P. S. O'Hegarty, Secretary to the Department of Posts and Telegraphs.

Rathgar postmen's office has been transferred from the post office at Portobello Bridge to the new building, but the public office is being kept open. Wynnefield road sub-office has been closed. Within the next few weeks the new post office will become the headquarters of both the Rathmines and Rathgar postmen.

The local telephone exchange is situated on the first floor, and will, in about seven months' time, be changed over to the automatic system, with the Terenure exchange (also to be automatic) as a subsidiary to Rathmines.

After opening the main doors, Mr. P. S. O'Hegarty, who was accompanied by Mr. P. P. McMenamin, Controller, Dublin Postal District, and Mr. P. Blake, clerk in charge of Post Office buildings, made an inspection of the premises.

The new building has a frontage of 126 feet, which increases at the rear to 140 feet. It has a depth of 155 feet. There is a central square and adequate garage accommodation to house the motor vehicles which will be in use in the service of the Rathmines area.

The structure, which is of the latest model, is two storeys high in front, with a façade rather in the monumental style, but with a very modern setting. It has been built, so far as possible, of Irish material.

Glencullen granite has been largely utilised, and in the public hall teak has been used in a restrained modern setting for most of the woodwork. Local tiles were used for roofing and asphalt for the flat roofs.

The new building has many features never before introduced into a branch post office. The site has been selected with a special eye to facilitating the postal work in the large district for which the new building is to cater.

From the new building the main roads of the district radiate like the spokes of a wheel to Dartry, Kenilworth, Rathgar road, Ranelagh and other areas within its scope. In fact, it is as near the ideal site for the purpose as could have been selected.

The old post office at Portobello, which was opened in the 'eighties of the last century, had long outlived its usefulness, owing to the remarkable extension of the district which it served. As a matter of fact, for some years past it had been found necessary to divide the work of the Portobello office with a temporary office in Rathgar.

One of the most serious problems that confronted the authorities was the delivery of correspondence. That has been solved with the opening of the new post office by the establishment of an inner and an outer zone. The inner circle will be covered by postmen who will set out on foot from the post office to cover their rounds.

Postmen on delivery duty in the outer circle will be conveyed to the start of their rounds by motor.

This is the first time such a system of delivery has been adopted in this country.

Apart from the postal service, the opening of the new building will result in a greatly improved telephone service. An entirely new all-automatic system will come into force which will be linked up with the new exchange at Terenure; but, whereas the new postal arrangements will come into operation immediately upon the opening of the Rathmines building, the complete telephone equipment will not be ready for some months to come.

The space provided for the postal delivery staff is more than twice as large as the area in which this work is at present performed. In fact, the total area of the new building is approximately 14,000 square feet, as compared with some 6,000 square feet which was the capacity of the old post office. This will give some idea of the thought which has been bestowed on the efficient performance of the future postal arrangements in the area.

The telephone instrument room at the new office will occupy 3,000 square feet—about 80 by 40 approximately.

The new building has a frontage of 126 feet, which increases at the rear to 140 feet. It has a depth of 155 feet. There is a central square and adequate garage accommodation to house the motor vehicles which will be in use in the service of the Rathmines area.

The structure, which is of the latest model, is two storeys high in front, with a facade rather in the monumental style, but with a very modern setting. It has been built, so far as possible, of Irish material. Glencullen granite has been largely utilised, and in the public hall teak has been used in a restrained modern setting for most of the woodwork.

The heating is all-electric, and combines the very latest form of tubular and panel systems. In the public office the Dulrae system of heating is employed.

The postmen's office occupies a very large space at the rear. It is a fine, lightsome apartment, in which the interests of the staff have been well catered for. The retiring rooms are centrally heated in common with the rest of the building, and hot water is provided at the wash basins, etc., from self-contained storage pattern water heaters.

It is interesting to note that the new Telephone Exchange and Public Library now being completed at Terenure is being similarly equipped, and that plans have been completed on the same lines for a further office in the provinces.

There is an auxiliary engine house that operates in case of any failure of the ordinary electric current.

The staff in the new post office will number over sixty, including an indoor staff of ten clerks and supervisors, etc.

The architect is Mr. W. Howard Cooke, A.R.I.B.A., F.R.I.A.I., and Mr. J. D. Ferguson, B.Sc. (Eng.), A.M.I.E.E., M.R.I.E.E., M.I.R.E., is responsible for the engineering arrangements.

The City of Dublin Engineering Works, Beaver street, supplied and erected the structural steelwork and ornamental ironwork, and gate and railings.

Mr. William Ekins, Upper Liffey street, Dublin, was responsible for the bronze and chromium-plated counter grille.

DEMAND FOR HOUSES AT LOW RENTAL

The British National Housing Committee states that certain requirements must be fulfilled if the housing problem is to be successfully attacked. These are:—

(1) The erection, at the earliest possible date, of many hundreds of thousands of houses, to let to low-paid wage earners at inclusive rentals not exceeding 10s. a week. It is, for the time being, immaterial whether the number required is half a million, one million, or one and a half million. We are all agreed that it is so great as to demand, for some years to come, the largest building programme that is likely to be practicable.

(2) The building of these houses should be undertaken at once, and should not wait until the slums are cleared. Overcrowding needs relief before wholesale demolition of dwellings, not after. To adopt the latter course must immensely increase the difficulty and cost of slum clearance.

(3) The housing programme should be financed by money borrowed at the lowest rate of interest. If money is raised at an interest above the minimum rate, to that extent rent must be increased, and with every increase in rent the strain on the tenant's capacity to pay becomes greater. But with rents at a minimum defaults and the need for special assistance through subsidies or otherwise are minimised.

(4) The cost of building must be kept as low as possible. This will involve active inquiry into building materials and methods, and the adoption of a purchasing policy which will allow materials to be bought on the most advantageous terms.

(5) The elevations and plans of the houses and the lay-out of the building estates should conform to the best modern ideals.

(6) Building must not be undertaken at haphazard, but, in accordance with carefully prepared town and regional planning and with due regard to probable developments in the location of industries.

In the opinion of the National Housing Committee, these requirements can best be met by, among other things, the creation of a Housing Commission or Board, to which many of the duties, for the performance of which the Minister of Health is now responsible, would be transferred.

A BUILDING CODE OF PRACTICE

The Advisory Committee on the Amendment of the London Building Act, 1930, have prepared a code of practice for the use of reinforced concrete and other materials in buildings and structures. The code is submitted in order to enable the various technical and other organisations and persons interested to consider the proposals and submit to the Council any criticisms or suggestions they may wish to make with regard to them. This course will, it is hoped, expedite and facilitate the preparation of the necessary regulations, should the Council decide to adopt the code in principle.

ELECTRIC WELDING AT NEW BANK OF ENGLAND

The introduction of the method of electric welding in constructing steel buildings in England has had as one of its most happy results a great reduction of the noise of building. Those whose daily work is done near to the site of the new Bank of England have probably already become aware of this advantage of the new method, which was emphasised when a film illustrating it was shown at the offices of the Gaumont-British Film Corporation.

The new Bank of England is the first important structure in London in which steel welding has been employed, for it was only recently that the London County Council decided to remove its ban on this method of construction.

Lord Dudley, who presided, pointed out that electric welding had been used for some years in making the framework of large electrical machines, and that its use had greatly increased in shipbuilding during the last two years. In regard to building structures, however, British engineers had lagged behind.

The highest building in Europe, and several other buildings twice the height of the tallest office buildings in London, had been erected by electric welding. Continental builders of big city structures claimed that the method had effected a saving of from 10 to 15 per cent. in the cost of the steel framework, and on the score of economy alone the use of welded structures was bound to increase rapidly.

It would be one of the most important factors in the use of mass production methods in the construction of houses and other buildings, on which the success of housing and slum clearance schemes so much depended.

After the film showing welders at work among the steel framework of the bank had been exhibited, Dr. Oscar Faber, consulting engineer to the Bank of England, described the advantages of the method.

He said that the large steel structure which could now be seen over-topping the old outside walls of the bank had been erected with welded connections. The steel in this portion of the contract represented about 7,000 tons, at a cost of about £130,000.

"One of the principal advantages which has been secured by the welding," Dr. Faber said, "is that the deafening noise of the pneumatic hammer associated with site riveting has not been heard at all on this work.

PRIVATE BUILDERS IN BELFAST

Belfast City Council has decided not to embark on a municipal housing scheme in view of the numbers of houses which are now being erected in the city by private enterprise.

It the monthly meeting it was resolved, by 24 votes to 17, to delete the Estates Committee's tentative proposal to build 850 houses at Ardoyne at an estimated cost, including street works, of £240,000. It was urged that the Corporation should not embark on any scheme, in view of the number of houses being erected by private enterprise with the assistance from the Government and Corporation. It was stated that the owner of the Beck estates, where the Committee contemplated building, now proposed to develop the land himself.

HOSTEL HOUSING SCHEME

The Leeds Corporation Housing Committee, which is reputed to have in hand the largest housing scheme outside London, has now decided to build a hostel at a cost of £50,000.

The hostel, which will be erected on the south side of the city, will accommodate over 500, and there will be separate sections for men and women, a special feature being that the residents will have separate bedrooms in place of the usual dormitories. There will also be a canteen with service lifts, a laundry, slipper baths, a hall to seat over 500, and a washing-room fitted with an electric drier, where the men can wash and dry their clothes. The bedrooms will be simply but adequately furnished.

1,000 NEW HOUSES FOR LIMERICK

The City Manager of Limerick (Mr. J. P. Geraghty) made an important statement at the Corporation meeting regarding further projected housing schemes in the city.

Dealing first with economic houses, he said the City Surveyor had made a general survey of the city for the purpose of ascertaining the land available within the borough for house building. The Surveyor was satisfied that he could acquire sites for 570 economic houses. That was apart from the 236 houses to be built on the Killalee site. Between that scheme and the site space available they would have, approximately, 800 houses.

He was of opinion that in the selection of sites preference should be given to uneconomic schemes so as to have them near the general activities of the city. The people who would occupy these houses would be the least fitted to meet travelling and other inconveniences.

There were dotted all over the city, particularly in built-up areas, small vacant spaces, some encumbered with ruins, capable of accommodating from one to six houses. He was net in favour of touching those for the present, as building of that nature in more or less widely separated districts did net permit of planning with any degree of satisfaction. Building of that kind would probably cut across any future schemes of town-planning and the construction of "lungs" in congested areas.

With regard to the uneconomic scheme he was aiming at starting with the building of between 400 and 500 houses. In dealing with this type of house they were up against a more difficult problem, as slum clearance was involved. If they were to attack the problem seriously and to do anything really worth while they should be prepared to face up to the question very boldly. To enable them to work on a satisfactory basis, with a view to wiping out slums, clearance, or at least to minimise it, they should decide on clearing one or two fairly extensive areas, so that these could act as a basis for further clearance. In that connection they came up against the problem of where to house the people cleared from the slum areas.

There were three ways of doing that. They could provide flats, secure the Strand Barracks or erect hutments. The big difficulty was one of space, because houses could not in future be built on the same density as before. He knew that flats were not the ideal thing for family life, but they had to economise in space. His proposals summarised were the building of from

400 to 500 uneconomic houses right away.

DEFENCE OF BUILDING INDUSTRY

A defence of the building industry in Scotland and a protest against certain provisions of the Housing (Scotland) Bill are contained in a memorandum issued by the Scottish National Building Trades' Federation (Employers).

The Federation state that an erroneous impression has been created that the building industry as carried on under private competitive enterprise is incapable of providing an adequate number of houses of a type suitable for the working-classes, to be let at rents considered to be within their capacity to pay. This they describe as an unwarranted slur on the building industry.

It is urged that in the public interest the following provision should be incorporated in the Housing (Scotland) Bill:—

Where public money is expended on the provision of housing the contracts for the building of the houses shall be decided by open competition, and shall not be executed by the employment of direct labour by public authorities.

In Scotland there are about 5,000 employers in the building industry, and 75,000 men are employed.

COST OF MULLINGAR NEW HOSPITAL

Dr. L. Gavin, R.M.S., Mental Hospital, Mullingar, in the course of a statement to the Minister for Local Government, seeking further financial aid towards defraying the cost of new buildings being erected at the hospital, says:—

The construction on the building was commenced in June, 1933, and is now well advanced.

The additional works which have been undertaken by my Committee are:—

(1) Reconstruction of kitchen, including the building of two dining halls for the staff, a contract for which has been entered into for £11,331 13s. 1d.

(2) The installation of complete modern equipment in kitchen and laundry. The contract price is £9,291 10s. 9d.

(3) New work shop, for which the architect's estimate is £3,000.

(4) Improving, extending and adapting the existing water supply to meet the needs of the new buildings, Engineer's estimate for which is £6,160 0s. 0d.

(5) The re-wiring of the old institution for lighting, Engineer's estimate for which is £5,525.

(6) The reconstruction of the Power House and the installation of new machinery, for which no complete estimate has yet been given, but which can hardly cost less than £6,000.

(7) The building of the new coal stores which may cost £1,000.

In addition to the above expenditure there will be the cost of equipping and furnishing the new buildings.

The cost incurred on the kitchen and water supply is in a large part necessitated by the erection of the new buildings.

TENDERS FOR BIRR SCHOOL

Messrs. Kavanagh Bros., Clonmel, £7,662.

Mr. James Fitzpatrick, Portlaoighise, £6,084.

Mr. Samuel Philips, Dublin, £7,340 15s. 1d.

Mr. William Leahy, Thurles, £7,729.

Mr. Owen Larkin, Ballinasloe, £7,047.

Mr. John Fitzpatrick, Portlaoighise, £9,213 16s. 6d.

Mr. Joseph Rooney, Balbriggan, £6,840 19s. 1d.

It was decided that the list of tenders be submitted to the Department.

THE ZAMBESI BRIDGE

The first passenger train has passed over the newly completed Lower Zambesi Bridge, which is now the longest bridge in the world.

The Zambesi Bridge, which has taken 3½ £2,000,000, spans the Zambesi between Sena and Dona Anna, and is the last link in the years to build, at a cost of approximately chain which provides Nyasaland and Portuguests East Africa with an unbroken railway transportation route from Lake Nyasa to the port of Beira, a distance of 520 miles.

The total length of the bridge is 12,064ft., 1,537ft. longer than the Tay Bridge, and 3,764ft. longer than the Forth Bridge. The 33 main spans rest on concrete piers sunk 120ft. below the surface of the river, and as river steamers will continue to ply between Chinde at the mouth of the Zambesi and Tete, above the bridge, the clearance for navigation, from maximum high flood level is 27ft. The bridge carries a single railway track and a pedestrian footpath, but no motor road is included. The bridge was built by the Cleveland Bridge Company, of Darlington, which built the Victoria Falls Bridge.

650 FLATS IN ONE BUILDING

Nearly opposite Marble Arch is a large building, designed by Sir John Burnet, Tait and Lorne, FF.R.I.B.A., known as Mount Royal.

There are seven floors of flats, and nearly three miles of corridors and 650 flats. Every detail has been carefully and well thought out, and every inch of space has been utilised either for accommodation or circulating room. In some ways, the premises call to mind such a liner as the Olympic. All the electric, heating, water, and other services are so arranged along the corridors that any repair or readjustment can be made without any flat being entered.

There is a variety of devices for ensuring the complete insulation of each flat against sound from corridors or adjoining flats, and water-mains are fixed in each floor ready for filling by the fire brigade in the event of an outbreak of fire. Every part of the building is, so far as science can make it, fire-resisting.

The flats are all fully furnished, centrally heated, and so arranged that the sleeping space is curtained off when not required, leaving ample sitting room. There is a telephone to each flat, and every flat has its own bathroom, and a small kitchen in which are an electric cooker and a refrigerator. A large lounge and a spacious restaurant and many private diningrooms, a "beauty parlour," a hairdressing room, a consulting room, and a dentist's are included in the facilities in the building, as well as shops at which food and other requisites can be bought at current retail prices. There is also an "off-licence."

The building has cost over £1,000,000.

TEN-YEAR BUILDING PROGRAMME

Statistics relating to housing estates published by the London County Council for the year ended March 31, 1934 show that at the date of the report the Council had provided 65,012 dwellings, of which 51,421 were cottages and 13,591 flats in block dwellings. During the year under review 2,212 cottages and 864 tenements were provided. The total of 3,096 compares with 3,923 in 1932 and 8,288 in 1929.

On July 25, 1933, the Council embarked on an extensive scheme of slum clearance under the provisions of the Housing Act, 1930, involving the displacement from slum areas of 250,000 persons and rehousing them in some 60,000 new dwellings over a period of 10 years at an estimated capital cost of £35,000,000. During the year to March 31, 1934, much preliminary work was done and administrative and technical machinery put into operation with a view to carrying out this programme. The number of houses built in 1933-34 under the Housing Act, 1930, was 416, and this number, it is stated, should rapidly increase in future years as the 10-year programme progresses.

L.M.S. TO BUILD A WIND-TUNNEL

The problems of locomotive streamlining and air resistence have assumed such importance for the future of railway operation that the L.M.S. have decided to construct a small wind tunnel at Derby for experimental purposes. The company's research department has hitherto conducted its investigations into this question at the National Physical Laboratory, Teddington, where valuable information as to the distribution of air resistence between engine, tender, and train has been obtained. The results have shown that much more detailed work is necessary to get to the heart of the subject, and a further series of experiments will be undertaken when the Derby tunnel is completed. Still faster and more comfortable rail travel is the experimenters' goal.

£500,000 TO WEAK BRIDGES RECONSTRUCTION

In reply to a question in the House of Commons, the Minister of Transport said that, with the concurrence of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, an additional provision of £500,000 would be made available out of the Road Fund for grants to schemes for the reconstruction of weak bridges and for other urgent improvements with which highway authorities were ready to proceed immediately. He was issuing at once grants at the rate of 75 per cent. towards 25 bridge schemes estimated to cost in all about £400,000. These were additional to about 80 schemes for reconstructing weak bridges or replacing level crossings, at a total cost of nearly £670,000, which he had already approved during the year. The consideration of further applications was also far advanced.

NINE-MILE DRAIN

Coventry has completed the surveys and started work on the Sowe Valley Drainage Scheme, which will cost £306,000 and provide work over a period of five years for hundreds of men. It will be two years before the main part is completed, and a further three years before the minor developments are coupled up.

Engineering feats of considerable magnitude will have to be performed. The main drain will be nine miles long, there will be five tunnelled sections—one 56 feet deep—and three bridges will have to be constructed to carry the piped course over rivers. One of the most interesting points of the work will be the tunnelling of the hill on Whitley Aerodrome. At another point the tunnel will run 56 feet beneath the main L.M.S. line. The longest tunnel will be under a golf course, where borings will extend for a quarter of a mile.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY

A Spring Battle

Walking along the banks of the Dodder near Bohernabreena a few days ago I was an interested observer of a collie pushing a hedgehog towards the river. However, when the plucky little bundle of spines reached the water it unrolled and, to my surprise, began swimming. The collie followed and succeeded in killing it. A farmer who also watched the battle told me that the dog discovered the hedgehog in its winter quarters in a well-sheltered ditch. "The hedgehog," he said, "disappears in October. He is then covered with fat, and he buries himself under moss and grass, where he lies as warm as toast until the March winds wake him up. In this case my dog found him out, and, being an old animal, he pushed him into the water. A young dog won't do that: he will get his nose all torn by the hedgehog in his efforts to make it open up, and then he sneaks away, a sadder and a wiser dog, with his tail between his legs. That teaches him to give hedgehogs a wide berth until he spots an old dog doing the water trick."

The Big Push

In a Dublin picture house the other day, the actual sight of Ireland's Rugby defeat by the English team at Twickenham reduced two schoolboy enthusiasts to a very gloomy state of mind. The film ended, and various other things of interest were seen, but still the two disappointed young Irishmen kept on making suggestions, and explaining to each other why our representatives really were beaten, and what steps might be taken to avoid a repetition of the calamity when Scotland visits Lansdowne road in a few days time. One of them blamed the forwards, the other directed all his wrath against the backs; neither took any notice of the arguments of his friend; and, not until some outraged occupants of seats near by turned and glared indignantly at them did they relapse into silence, though one felt that their thoughts were still immersed in the vexed question of Irish Rugby football. Presently a nature film took the place of a farce that had not drawn a single chuckle from them, and we were shown two turtles, who, feeling pugnacious, suddenly made for each other in a determined, if leisurely, way, and tucking their heads well in, began to push, shoulder against shoulder, or, rather, shell against shell. In a few moments one of them had been ousted completely, and there was a groan from the boy who blamed the forwards. "If our fellows had only shoved like that," he said loudly, and did not speak again.

Unwritten Lives

Are there any Irish writers to-day who can confidently assert that among their own country folk their books have a remunerative sale? It is to be feared the answer will be in the negative. There is evidence that the increase of county and parochial libraries is not tending to a larger sale of educational books or good fiction or the better reward of authors. About sixteen years have gone by since Canon Hannay, the most courageous living critic of his compatriots' shortcomings, published a book entitled "An Irishman Looks at the World," in which he expresses some wholesome, but uncomplimentary, truths about literary taste in Ireland and the signs of its decadence. The book aroused a considerable amount of adverse comment at the time, but the assertions of its author were too well justified to be upset. Things have not improved since then. No impartial reader turning over its pages to-day, and in the light of all the confirmative facts which no observer can fail to note, will withhold his assent from Canon Hannay's affirmation that the Irish people to-day are not lovers and readers of books, and that as the years pass native writers are certain to find them less patronising. How striking, too, is the fact that famous Irishmen who have died within the last score of years have found no biographers. Take five such brilliant, but strongly contrasted, men as Cardinal Logue, Cardinal O'Donnell, Professor J. P. Mahaffy, Dr. George Sigerson, and Sir Horace Plunkett. Could any country in the world point to the same number of gifted sons identified prominently with the educational and national life? And as yet none of them has stirred into action the pen of any admirer.

The Trinity Team

I was glad to see that the Dublin University Rugby side maintained their splendid record this season against cross-Channel teams by defeating Glasgow University on Saturday. The latter are one of the strongest Scottish sides, and it was no mean achievement for Trinity to defeat them. If there were such a thing as an Inter-University Rugby Championship, I daresay that Trinity College might claim to be the holders. They have defeated both Oxford and Cambridge this season, as well as Queen's University, Belfast, and University College, Cork, and have played a scoreless draw with University College, Dublin. As an old Trinity man, I must confess to a "swelling pride" in the achievements of present-day Trinity athletes—the boxing club's feat in retaining their British Universities' Championship, and the wonderful record of the hockey club are sufficient evidence of the continued vitality of "the College of the Holy and Undivided Trinity, near Dublin." I feel sure that Irishmen in all parts of Ireland take a share in that pride.

Miss Robin Waters

I see Miss Robin Waters, daughter of Mrs. Burgoyne, of Somerset, is at present in Ireland. It will be remembered that Mrs. Burgoyne came here last Horse Show, when she took over a whole hotel for the duration of the "week," in order to entertain a large party of friends. Her guests included Lord Lovat and three daughters of the Marquis of Zetland. Mrs. Burgoyne was formerly Mrs. Waters, with a home in Fitzwilliam square, and the object of her visit in August last was in order to celebrate the birthday anniversary of her daughter in Dublin. Miss Waters is a pretty, tall girl, fond of country life and sport. She is a favourite in London social circles.

The North and the Navy

Commander Stephen King-Hall, who lectured to the Royal Dublin Society last week, belongs to a brilliant County Down family, and represents the second generation to find fame in the Navy. He served with the Grand Fleet during the first three years of the war, and then with the Eleventh Cruiser Submarine Flotilla. After the war he held important naval posts, was in Chinese waters for two years, and in the Mediterranean as Naval Intelligence Officer.

To his maritime experience we owe Commander King-Hall's amusing play, "The Middle Watch," which, written in collaboration with Ian Hay (Major John Hay Beith), is one of the most successful pieces of recent years. In like manner his service in the East made him a master of Oriental affairs; but to his travels in the naval service must be added his private journeys and his education at Lausanne. In a word, he has an unusual and direct mastery of world affairs, so that his discreet plea for an Irish understanding is at once an Ulsterman's patriotic wish and a world authority's wise counsel. At present he is engaged in research work at the Royal Institute for Industrial Affairs.

An Ulster Hoax

The commander's sister, Miss Magdalen King-Hall, is as witty as he. Under the pen-name of "Cleone Knox," she published one of the cleverest of literary hoaxes, ten years ago. "The Diary of a Young Lady of Fashion" purported to be a journal, found in a County Down house, the work of a sprightly young woman of the eighteenth century. It was accepted at its face value by most of the critics. English writers praised its eighteenth century wit, and some Irish writers remarked that it gave true glimpses of old Down and Belfast. At length some pedant discovered an idiom somewhere that was no older than late Victorian days, and so the supposed diary was proved to be simply a brilliant pastiche. A few years later Miss King-Hall gave us "I Think I Remember," the supposed memoirs of Sir Wickham Woolicomb, a pompous Victorian survival. It was as clever a satire as our times have seen, and bears frequent re-reading. When will this clever pen give us more?

A CHAPEL ON WHEELS

CATHOLIC MISSIONARY WORK IN ENGLAND

The work done by means of the motor chapel of the Catholic Missionary Society in England was described by the Rev. Owen Dudley, Superior of the Society, in a lecture to the Pro Fide Society at University College, Dublin, yesterday. The Rev. John Burke, Dean of the College, presided.

The work they did, Father Dudley said, was the work of the conversion of England. Between 12,000 and 13,000 converts were being received every year into the Catholic Church in England. The society consisted of priests who had been set aside specially for that work, and the Mission House in London was named by rude people "The Palace of Varieties," on account of the different people there. In the winter months the priests gave missions in Catholic churches to which they invited their non-Catholic friends, and nowadays the latter came in enormous numbers. He recalled a mission given recently in the English Midlands, at which an Irish bishop was present, when the front portion of the church was packed with Catholics and the rear with non-Catholics. They also used public halls, cinemas and theatres for the missions, as in country towns non-Catholics were not shy of going into such places.

In the summer months they went around in the motor chapel, which was really a little church on wheels, with an altar at which they said Mass, and the side of which could be let down to form a platform. He had often addressed a crowd of 2,000 men from this.

While there was not much bigotry, there was still a great deal of ignorance, especially in Cornwall, as regards the work of the Church, and the questions they were asked were at once amusing and pathetic. They very seldom met anything like organised attack or opposition, the last occasion being in 1927 in the mining district of Wrexham. The first thing they did on arrival was to go down the mine, and they then proceeded to hold their usual nightly meetings. Organised opposition was begun by a sect of Calvinistic Presbyterians, who imported special preachers, and this went on for a few nights, until the miners ended it. In 1933 they went to Tyneside amongst the real "red-hot" Bolshevists and Communists. They had no trouble, except once, when a man came to the motor chapel shaking his fists, but the non-Catholic men of the crowd subdued him.

From Communists they had always got good hearings; the Communists in England did not seem to be very violent, and knew well how to conduct a meeting, but there were types of Protestants left, particularly in Scotland, whose main object always was to smash up a meeting if they could. Cornwall was the only part of England in which they found real bigotry and ignorance as regards the Church.

A vote of thanks to Father Dudley was moved by Mr. E. Brunicardi, Auditor, and seconded by Mr. S. O'Connell, and supported by Father Burke.

MUSICAL ATTRACTION

EXHIBITION AT MESSRS. CLERY'S

A large and greatly interested audience was present yesterday at Messrs. Clery's, O'Connell street, Dublin, when the opening performance was given by "Musaire" of the playing of a musical selection on the new instrument, Theremin—the invention of a Russian scientist. With this instrument, which has no keyboard, strings or pedals, the demonstrator apparently drew music at will from the air by the mere passage of his hands over the instrument, which is set up like a cabinet.

To the enjoyment of those present, the Lord Mayor of Dublin gave a demonstration, and under the guidance of Mr. J. Forrest Whitely, the Canadian recitalist, proceeded to play some Irish airs.

The demonstrations will be continued at 11.30, 3 and 4.30 every day for the next fortnight on the main gallery, to which admission is free.

CRUISE TO HOLY LAND AND EGYPT

The Voltaire, of the Lamport and Holt Line, left Liverpool on Thursday and Southampton on Saturday for a cruise to places of interest in the Mediterranean, with trips ashore in Palestine and Egypt, the round occupying 33 days. The ship was fully booked, and it is interesting that the Bishop of Birmingham was among the passengers. This sailing inaugurates the 1935 season for the Lamport and Holt Line. It is an early commencement, but fully justified by its success.

Cinema Problems—The Censorship Again

Father Dudley's Lecture : Films for Children
"Queen Christina" : The Week's Programmes

FROM OUR CINEMA CORRESPONDENT.

FATHER DUDLEY'S lecture last Sunday was a summary of most of the warnings that have been issued from time to time on the influence of the cinema, and, on the whole, we must agree that those warnings are well founded. There is no doubt that the power of the films is great and increasing, and also there is no doubt that the power can be exerted in the wrong direction. The lecturer, for instance, quoted the findings of the Research Council that was set up some years ago in the United States, showing that the display of crime on the screen tends to a mental attitude conducive to crime, and that certain scenes will be accepted as pornographic by most of the audience, whether, in fact, they are pornographic or not. He might also have drawn attention to another aspect of the problem—the fact that all films made abroad may tend to encourage an outlook which is foreign and unsuitable to our own country.

* * *

THE problem of the cinema is deep and complex, and, short of banning films altogether, it will be extraordinarily hard to solve. To begin a reform of the screen is deceptively easy, but how shall we continue it? We can make a start by banning all films that are obviously immoral or indecent, and that step already has been taken by the film censors in various countries. At once, however, we are faced with an enormous number of films which cannot have been made with any definitely immoral intention, but which may be regarded as harmful from one point of view or another. Shall we ban all the films that show chorus girls dancing? Shall we ban all the films dealing with crime, or dealing with extra-marital relations? What shall we do about the films which are merely vulgar or silly; and, finally, what shall we do about those that may impose a different outlook and set of standards on our own?

The Real Trouble

IT is here that the real trouble starts. The reflection that the screen has a suggestive power (sometimes almost mesmeric) possessed by no other form of art will incline us to be more severe on the film than on the novel, or even the stage. At the same time, we can be too sweeping in our desire for reform, and I feel that the tendency here is to be too sweeping. The "Catholic Action" campaign outlined by Father Dudley would ban all films in which such themes as "free love" are made to appear attractive, all "sex appeal" films, and all "crime" films. One can agree with the first part of the campaign (though many of the world's great authors would be banned if it were applied to books), but "sex appeal" is a wide term, which covers almost every film that has ever been made, while "crime" films, even if they have a bad effect for some people, are perfectly harmless and enjoyable to others. If we are too lax, we run a danger of corruption; but, if we maintain too strict a watch, our puritanism becomes a little absurd.

GRETA GARBO.

FOR our own safety we must interfere with films that tend to undermine the character of our people; but surely it is possible to take too unflattering a view of that character? I cannot believe that many of the "chorus scenes" which I have seen in films in England (afterwards deleted for the Free State public) could have a bad moral effect on any but the most susceptible youths, and I cannot believe that the average "crime" film will induce the man-in-the-street to buy safe-breaking implements and a black mask. The Free State censorship is strict enough already; if it is made any stricter it will become ridiculous.

Censorship for Children

STRICTER, that is, on general lines. We can complain with reason if we are treated as impressionable children, but we must remember also that there are impressionable children. The case for a children's censorship was originally made in this column two months ago, and I was flattered to see that one of the speakers at the meeting spoke in support of it. The system of double classification adopted in Great Britain could be applied to the Free State (as a matter of fact, our Censorship Act allows for it), and part of the problem would be solved if we could ensure that the children and youths saw only those pictures which were passed as being definitely suitable for them. As for the adults, I think that they are in less danger of perversion than some people imagine, but I admit that the whole question is bristling with difficulties, and that nothing but a free discussion of all the pros and cons is likely to clear them away.

A Great Actress

"QUEEN CHRISTINA" has a fairly large section missing from the middle (an inserted sub-title makes amends by telling us that "friendship ripened into love"), but it is worth seeing. Greta Garbo, I know, has almost as many detractors as admirers, but the accent which so many find affected and the odd clothes which the producers always make her wear, cannot hide the fact that she is a great actress. In this film, which is being shown at the Savoy, she gives what must be one of her best performances. How far "Queen Christina" is historical I do not know, and it does not matter much to any but the historian. As a story that tells of the conflict in a woman's mind—the sense of duty as a queen and the desire to escape and to be a human being—it gives Greta Garbo full scope for her remarkable powers. The first scenes are a trifle too rhetorical to ring true, but the intensity of her acting in the abdication scene, and at the final parting with her lover, is moving and sincere. I do not think that any other screen actress can convey emotion as well.

The story deals with Christina's love for the young envoy from Spain, the plots of those who attempt to stop the marriage on political or personal grounds, and her final renunciation of a regal burden which has become too heavy for the individual to bear. The idea is treated with intelligence, and, although Greta Garbo overshadows the rest of the cast, there is some very good acting by John Gilbert and Ian Keith.

A new Mickey Mouse cartoon is also being shown, and there is a travel film dealing with Ireland.

* * *

AT the Capitol Ann Harding and John Boles appear in "The Life of Vergie Winters," a story with an "eternal triangle" motif which is quite well done. The supporting film, "The Meanest Gal in Town," is a comedy in which Zasu Pitts and James Gleason appear. The Corinthian is showing "The Old-Fashioned Way," in which W. C. Fields has the principal part. Fields has come to the fore very quickly as a comedian, and in this film he is really very amusing. Judith Allan and Baby Leroy are also in the cast. The supporting film at the Corinthian is "Menace," a detective film, in which Paul Kavanagh and Gertrude Michael appear.

The news-reels this week are showing scenes from the Hauptmann trial, and after this we shall have no excuse for thinking that the "court-room" scenes in American pictures are exaggerated. The whole business is interesting, but somewhat repulsive.

Still Showing

"Jew Süss."—A very fine performance by Conrad Veidt is the outstanding feature of this film, which is now on its third week at the Grand Central.

"One Night of Love."—Grace Moore and Tullio Carminati appear in this exceptionally good musical film, at the Metropole (third week).

"The Iron Duke."—George Arliss, playing a type which does not altogether suit him, nevertheless gives a very good display. The film is now on its second week at the Grafton.

"Baby, Take a Bow."—Shirley Temple appears in this film with James Dunn and Claire Trevor. At the Theatre de Luxe, until Thursday.

"Love, Life and Laughter."—A Gracie Fields film. At the Sackville, until Thursday.

"Chu Chin Chow."—George Robey, Anna May Wong and Fritz Kortner, in an effective screen version of the well-known musical comedy. At the Pavilion, Dun Laoghaire.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE BLUE LAGOON

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Here is a business suggestion for the utilisation and beautifying of the marshlands from Dollymount to Sutton, with an assured return for the invested capital, and all-year and seasonal work for a number of men and women.

(1) The provision of a footpath along the margin of the golf links from the old coastguard station to the end of the Bull Island, to meet the foreshore. This would make a six-mile circular walk for pedestrians, free from the strain of motor traffic and would be greatly appreciated.

(2) The planting of the marshlands with Salix (Osiers). Roughly there would be 500 acres of osiers, and the yield from these after the third year (I am quoting pre-war figures and prices) would be 1,800lb. per acre at fourpence per lb, say £30 per acre; a yearly income from the whole area of £15,000 a year. The cost of preparation of ground, manuring, planting and supply of cuttings would be but a fraction of the cost of the Blue Lagoon and there would be an assured return on the outlay with healthy work for many men and women.

There are small plantations of osiers in the Free State, and perhaps some of your readers may be able to give the present market position. A belt of Corylus (Hazel) also might be grown and the shoots from the stools could replace the imported bamboo canes and splinters sold by horticulturists for flower props.—Yours, etc.,

"E."

A WAY TO PEACE

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—This is a jubilee year in the British Empire and the Dominions. In a few months' time celebrations are to take place in London to mark the 25th anniversary of King George's accession, and statesmen from all over the Commonwealth will attend them. Many of these statesmen are of Irish extraction, and most of them will represent big colonies of our race scattered over the two hemispheres. The Dominions are meeting in conference, and the world in the meanwhile will watch with, perhaps, more than ordinary interest the development and handling of a situation which to a certain extent threatens the success of the celebrations. This situation has its origin in the refusal of our Government to participate—a very natural attitude in view of the feeling engendered by the economic war. In any case, the celebrations are intended to be a demonstration of Commonwealth solidarity, and, as such, a Free State delegation is as essential to their success as the ghost is to Hamlet. So it looks as if our Government to-day hold the key to a situation that is pregnant with possibilities for peace and a satisfying settlement. Are they going to use it?

Britain has an interest in making these celebrations a success. She must be in a yielding mood. She will go a long way, perhaps, to meet our demands, and the only qualification one can imagine being imposed on these demands is that they should be within reason. They must be such as England can, with due regard to her honour and prestige, yield to.

As far as the economic issue is concerned, we know there is no question of national honour or dignity involved on either side. Being a matter of pounds, shillings and pence, it should be capable of adjustment in the usual business way. There is no reason, for instance, why it should not lend itself to settlement on the lines of the Anglo-American debt, which a good many people on both sides of the Atlantic feel will never be paid. In any case, the usurious attitude of the British Treasury towards us since the Free State came into being has been anything but conducive to harmony in our economic relationships. Were the British Government, in fact, to make us a present of the annuities it would be doing no more than simple justice.

There is also, of course, the plea that can be advanced for a little generosity in the case of a young State such as ours. After expending 150 millions on the South African War, to quote a precedent, a free grant of £7,000,000 was made to the Boer States to help them "set up house." I do not know what sum this would represent in present day currency, but I'd venture to say it would be sufficient, or very nearly sufficient, to redeem the annuities in dispute—that is, presuming Britain put as high a value on our goodwill as she did on that of the Boers.

The world knows, however, that at the back of the whole trouble between Britain and the Irish Free State lies the political issue. The economic war had its roots in politics, and only a comprehensive settlement will bring it to an end.

What is the barrier in the way of this comprehensive settlement? Will nine Nationalists out of every ten not answer "The Border"? Let us see the position as regards "The Border."

Every political party in Ireland has renounced force as a means of having it removed. Its elimination must, therefore, be sought by other means. We cannot get a Republic for the thirty-two counties, and the Dominion idea appeals to few outside those who regard themselves as British colonists. The only obvious alternative, then, is Griffith's idea of a Kingdom of Ireland. In fixing on this as our immediate objective we not only make the road to union easier and shorter, but we make it possible to have association with the Commonwealth on terms of equality with Great Britain. Ireland, as a mother country of the Commonwealth, is entitled to a status superior to that of a Colony or Dominion, and not inferior to that of Great Britain, the other mother country; and only an independent Kingdom of Ireland can give this idea full and adequate expression.

The celebrations in London provide us with a great opportunity for exploiting this claim. A demand based on our historic rights, such as this is, while disarming die-hard opposition, must give a new urge to the forces that are everywhere working for an honourable settlement. What is of still greater importance, these forces will be strongly represented in London; for we must not forget that a quarter of the whole white population of the Empire have either religious or racial affiliations with this country.

Ireland is still a unit in the King's title. What more natural thing than that our Government should insist on that unit taking shape, in fact as well as in name, if they are to attend the forthcoming Jubilee celebrations. If we stand four square on the Kingdom of Ireland idea, we are on solid ground nationally; and we make a gesture to which Britain and her Commonwealth associates must of necessity respond.—Yours, etc.,

ALASDAIR MAC CABA.

THE BLAKENEY STATUE

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Some weeks ago there was an inquiry in your columns as to the fate of the brass statue of Lord Blakeney, at one time in Sackville street. When editing Vol. III. of the Georgian Society's publications I had occasion to consider this question, but failed to obtain definite information. I afterwards discussed the matter with my friend, the late Mr. W. G. Strickland, Keeper of the National Gallery of Ireland, and with his aid I found out from newspapers of the period that the pieces of the statue were eventually handed over to Counsellor Caldbeck, of Clondalkin, Co. Dublin, who, when raising an artillery corps at the period of the Volunteer movement, utilised the brass to make a small cannon.—Yours, etc.,

THOS. M. SADLEIR, Deputy Ulster.

PRICE OF ELECTRICITY

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The electricity bills furnish such an important part in the budget of the modern householder that the question of what is a fair and equitable charge is a subject of general interest. Comparisons among large industrial centres will, I venture to think, show that a profitable customer should procure his current at about a penny a unit. My experience as a consumer in Belfast under the rateable valuation tariff appears to confirm this.

I find by a simple arithmetical calculation that in 1933 the cost was 1½d. per unit; in 1934 there was a reduction to 1¼d. The valuation of the property is recent, and the amount consumed was slightly over 2,000 units. The improvement in 1934 was due to concessions in the charge in the last two quarters. It is probable then that the rate will drop further to about the penny in 1935. If Belfast can supply current at this price, well managed authorities in other districts should certainly be able to give as favourable terms.—Yours, etc.,

"ELECTRON."

A FACTORY HERE 100 YEARS AGO

LECTURE AT DUBLIN ROTARY CLUB

FOOD-CANNING was carried out in Ireland before it was introduced in the rest of the world, said Mr. W. V. Griffiths, B.Sc., A.I.C., in an address on "Tinned Food," at the Dublin Rotary Club's luncheon in the Metropole Restaurant yesterday. He described the use of canned foods by polar expeditions, and said that in 1849, when Sir James Ross was in Prince Regent's Inlet, he found tins of meat, soup and vegetables, part of the stores of a ship which had been wrecked there in 1824, still in perfect condition. Those foods had been canned in Ireland by John Gamble, of Cork, in the factory that became Crosse and Blackwell's.

Discussing food poisoning Mr. Griffiths said that two main types of infection are dangerous—that by the so-called Salmonella group of micro-organisms and that by the bacillus botulinus. The first are very rare in canned foods, and illness caused by them, which is traced to food, is commonly associated with "fresh" foods. Bacillus botulinus is still more rarely present in food, fresh or canned, and in the whole of Europe only about 74 outbreaks have been known.

CANNER'S ADVANTAGE

In describing cannery methods the speaker said that in setting out to furnish the public with safe food the canner has the advantage over the butcher, greengrocer, and all suppliers of uncooked food, that the destruction of all micro-organisms in the food by heat is part of his process. "He has a far greater advantage, however, since no responsible canner would use infected raw material, even although his processing might render it harmless. Every modern canning concern is in the position of being able to detect infection, and a bacteriological laboratory forms part of the normal equipment of the factory. The home canner, who is not able, as the modern cannery with its autoclaves or pressure retorts is able, to sterilise at temperatures above the boiling point of water, or to submit his materials to bacteriological tests, will always be a danger. It is to the widespread practice of inexpert canning—particularly in America—that the popular suspicion of canned goods in cases of food-poisoning is probably to be attributed."

After discussing the vitamins A, B and C, and their reaction to ordinary cooking, Mr. Griffiths pointed out that foods properly canned get their cooking with air virtually absent. It is, therefore, not surprising, he added, that canned fresh peas are said to be an excellent source of all three vitamins, and canned tomatoes contain A and B, and are especially rich in C. Canned cabbage and spinach have been shown to be richer in vitamin C than cabbage and spinach home-cooked by customary methods.

MORE PROTECTION

"It is no fantasy to think that a day is not far off when people will come to think of foods which have been exposed to air, dust and flies, and many handlings, as unfit for consumption," continued Mr. Griffiths, "and already the public demands more and more wrapping, packaging, and similar part-protection. Presently it will insist on 100 per cent. protection, and it will get it by way of the tin, can or similar sterilised pack."

A vote of thanks was proposed by the Rev. Samuel G. Ruegg, of Madison, Wisconsin, a visitor, who, in greeting the members of the Club, said that people to-day were drunk with the spirit of nationalism, which was not helping the nations very much. They were standing at the bar of nationalism, instead of internationalism, and there was a need for lower tariffs and more of the spirit of the League of Nations in the world.

Daily Programme Review

DUBLIN: Bach-Handel Organ Recital, 8.

NORTHERN IRELAND: Irish Medley, 9.15.

REGIONAL: Programme of Canadian music, 9.

WEST: Play, "The Stepmother," by Arnold Bennett, 8.35.

PARIS PTT: European Concert from Vienna, 8.15.

FRANKFURT: Opera, "Tosca" (Puccini), 7.10.

BACH and Handel, the two great masters, whose 250th anniversary we are celebrating this year, will be linked together in the programme of music for the recital by C. F. J. Swanton, F.R.C.O., on the organ of St. Bartholomew's Church, Dublin. Mr. Swanton needs no introduction as an organist, and his programme for the Bach-Handel Commemoration to-night is one that only an experienced musician could venture upon. The recital will be relayed by Dublin, Athlone and Cork.

Many listeners who, perhaps, never were theatre-goers know at least the music of "The Chocolate Soldier." This light-hearted comic opera, with the melodious music of Oscar Strauss, provides over an hour's entertainment in the Droitwich programme to-night, and will be repeated on the Regional wave-length to-morrow.

The programme for the Liverpool Philharmonic Concert (North, 7.45) will include the Sinfonia Concertante in E flat for violin, viola solo and orchestra, by Mozart. The viola will be played by Frank Park, while Georg Szell will conduct the Liverpool Philharmonic Orchestra.

An hour's concert entirely devoted to music by Canadian composers will be broadcast to-night. Most of the composers represented in the programme are holding important musical positions at the present time in Toronto. The setting to one of Elizabeth Browning's sonnets and the arrangements of three songs of the West Coast Indians are by Ernest MacMillan, whose reputation as conductor of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra is widely known. He also is Principal of the Toronto Conservatory of Music. The programme will be carried out by Frank Phillips (baritone), Winifred Small (violin), and Maurice Cole (pianoforte). Eric Fogg, recently appointed Empire Music Director of the B.B.C., will be at the pianoforte.

Music for two pianofortes will be played by Arthur Cole and Alan Walker in a programme that will be relayed from the Town Hall, Cheltenham. The concert is shared by Reginald New, who will be heard at the organ. (Midland, 9.20).

The European concert to be relayed by French PTT and several other stations originates from Vienna, and will be given by the State Opera Chorus, conducted by Grossmann.

THE COUNTY KERRY SOCIETY

IRELAND IN THE SEVENTEENTH CENTURY

Project of a memoir of Mr. Justice Robert Day, of the King's Bench, 1745 to 1841—A number of manuscript letters and copious diaries of Mr. Justice Robert Day have come into my hands at the death of his grandson, Colonel John George Day (late R.E.), and they contain much intimate and interesting information, not only of Robert Day's native County of Kerry, where he was a personage of outstanding importance, but also of conditions in the whole of Ireland, which he traversed from end to end, for the space of twenty years, in his capacity as Judge of the King's Bench, during the reign of King George III.

Robert Day was an intimate friend of Henry Grattan, and lived in the same chambers with him in Essex Court, while they were both reading for the Bar at the Middle Temple. He was for many years a member of "Grattan's Parliament," and of no small repute as an orator, and, although he did not follow his old friend's policy with regard to "The Union," their mutual respect and affection never wavered. As a familiar friend of Lord Shelburne, he frequently acted as an intermediary between Mr. Grattan and the Prime Minister, reporting conditions in Ireland during the end of the eighteenth century. Many of these conditions seem to have been repeated in later times.

After Mr. Justice Day retired from the bench in 1818, his diaries give detailed and interesting accounts of journeys made by him in France and Belgium, with amusing anecdotes of important personages, and many dissertations on the political situations both on the Continent and at home, when trouble-rocked thrones and States were making endeavours for adjustment after the Napoleonic Wars.

Robert Day lived for 94 years, and spent an active life up to the end of his days. He married twice—firstly, Mary Potts, of London, whose only daughter became the wife of Sir Edward Denny, Bart, of Tralee, the ancestor of the succeeding baronets; and, secondly, Mary FitzGerald, of Cork, by whom he had two sons, one being the father of Colonel J. G. Day, who inherited the diaries and a manuscript history of England written at 90 years of age (which has never been published).

The fact that all these materials exist, assembled under one hand, has tempted me to collect them into a volume with illustrations, which I hope will be of public interest when completed.

RAILWAYMEN'S WAGES

RESTORATION OF "CUTS" SOUGHT

BELFAST AND CO. DOWN LINE

THE Irish Railway Wages Board yesterday sat at the Shelbourne Hotel, Dublin. The Belfast and County Down Railway Company made application for continuance of the 10 per cent. "cut" imposed on their employés in 1927, and since allowed annually (except in 1930-31, when the "cut" was fixed at 7½ per cent. only) by the Board.

Mr. W. F. Minnis, general manager, for the company, said that the year 1934 had been another year of difficulty. Only ordinary maintenance work and renewals of an urgent nature had been undertaken, but even with this rigid economy they had been able only to balance their accounts, and carry forward the small sum of £1,692 to the 1935 account.

THE ACCOUNTS

| | 1934. £ | 1933. £ |
|---|---|---|
| Total receipts from passenger train traffic | 128,431 | 129,152 |
| Gross receipts for railway working | 156,763 | 157,348 |
| Nett receipts from omnibus services | 1,218 | 277 |
| Nett receipts from hotel and refreshment rooms | 4,527 | 3,183 |
| Nett receipts from road freight services | 162 | 176 |
| Expenditure on maintenance and renewal of rolling stock | 19,352 | 17,988 |
| Maintenance and renewal of way and works | 21,635 | 21,270 |
| Loco. running expenses | 43,380 | 43,098 |
| Traffic expenses | 51,556 | 52,203 |

"After deducting interest, rentals and other fixed charges," said Mr. Minnis, "a balance remains of £3,327, out of which payment is being made of £510 in respect of 3 per cent. Baronial Guaranteed Shares, and £1,125 on the 4½ per cent. "A" Preference Stock for the half-year ended 31st December last. It is necessary for the company to make this payment when sufficient profit is earned in any one half-year."

In concluding, he paid tribute to all grades of the company's staff for their very satisfactory work and valuable assistance in meeting difficulties.

Mr. Cecil D. Watters, opposing the application on behalf of the National Union of Railwaymen, made a special appeal for those of the company's employés who are earning 40s. weekly or less. He referred to the promised new legislation for centralising control of Northern Ireland transport. The new machinery for this would (he said) be hammered out within the next two or three months. With a pooling of traffic there would be benefit to the company, and the employés' wages question should not be submerged.

THREE LANDSLIDES

Mr. Minnis, referring to Mr. Watters's queries about the accounts, said that three serious landslides this winter near Bangor, and at Newtownards and Tullymurry, had resulted in the company's having to set aside £500 for repairing the damage.

Mr. W. J. R. Squance (Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen) said he was glad that the company's position was gradually improving each year. The men he represented thought that the improvement warranted some small concession to them.

Senator J. T. O'Farrell, for the Railway Clerks' Association, said £2,000 more had been received for workmen's tickets in 1934 than in 1933, which was an indication of the recovery in the Belfast shipyards and a cause for hope. It was now claimed that Belfast had the busiest shipyard in the world; there were sixteen vessels on the stocks, and two more very large ships were on order.

"There is far too much transport in Northern Ireland," he said; "there is an enormous amount of waste. The object of Sir Felix Pole's recommendations, which the Government has accepted and promised to implement, is to do away with what is not necessary. We hope that this will have a beneficial result not alone upon the persons holding capital in the railways, but also upon the workers, who have had to make sacrifices since 1927 to keep the business going."

Mr. Minnis, in replying, said no immediate benefit such as that suggested could be anticipated from the proposed Northern Ireland legislation, even by an optimist.

The Chairman, the Hon. Mr. Justice Wylie, announced: The Board is unanimously of opinion that the 10 per cent. reduction should continue until further order of the Board, in any event to be reconsidered prior to the 1st March, 1936. The only other item on the agenda was an "application for the provision of clothes brushes at Tralee and Limerick Junction dormitories," and the Board's unanimous decision was "that any question as to the sufficiency of lodging accommodation was an eligible subject for the consideration of the Sectional Council."

The following were the members of the Board who attended:—The Hon. Mr. Justice Wylie, Mr. W. H. Morton, Mr. J. B. Stephens, Major M. Speir, M.C.; Mr. P. A. Arnott, Mr. S. C. Little, Mr. H. Forbes (representing the railway companies); Mr. Edgar Anderson, Mr. J. R. Haslett, Mr. L. J. Duffy, Mr. Dawson Gordon (representing the users of railways); Mr. George Lathan, J.P.; Mr. M. O'Sullivan, Mr. J. Henderson, Mr. J. Marchbank, Mr. W. Steele, Mr. J. Watson (representing the railway trade unions), and the Secretary (Mr. John T. Drennan).

THE BALROTHERY HOSPITAL

DEPUTATION TO A MINISTER

As the whole question of the hospital situation in Dublin City and County has been referred to the Hospitals' Commission, the Department of Local Government and Public Health has asked Balrothery Board of Assistance to await the report of that Commission before sending a deputation to the Minister, Mr. S. T. O'Kelly, T.D.

At yesterday's meeting of the Balrothery Board, Mr. H. M. Dardis presiding, the need for hospital accommodation for that area was again stressed, and the letter from the Department of Local Government was regarded with dissatisfaction.

Mr. P. J. Fogarty said that, as hospital accommodation was so necessary, they should press for a deputation to be received.

On his suggestion, supported by the Chairman, it was decided to instruct the county deputies to press for a deputation to be received as soon as possible.

RELIEF AFTER YEARS OF ULCERATED STOMACH

Is it to be wondered at that Mr. W. C. Collett, of Weston-on-the-Green, Bicester, is thankful he was advised to take Maclean Brand Stomach Powder? As he says, after years of suffering from ulcerated stomach one dose of this marvellous stomach remedy brought him instant and permanent relief.

Of course, Mr. Collett made certain he was getting the genuine Maclean Brand Stomach Powder, carefully compounded according to the original formula and not an inferior article.

"I am so pleased with the results I have obtained by the use of your Maclean Brand Stomach Powder that I am writing to offer a personal testimonial. I have lived in Portugal for 3½ years and have suffered badly from stomach pains due to ulceration of the stomach. I still experienced violent pains for the first two weeks after arrival in England, when I was recommended to try your Stomach Powder. Since the first dose I have never had another pain, and although I have only taken the powder for four days I already feel twice the man I did before."

You can obtain just as great relief as Mr. Collett, but be sure you get the original Maclean Brand Stomach Powder. Do not risk an inferior substitute for the sake of a few pence. So be sure to ask your chemist for the genuine Maclean Brand Stomach Powder and to see the signature "ALEX C. MACLEAN." It is not sold loose but only in 1/6, 2/3 and 5/3 bottles in cartons of Powder or Tablets.

FACTORY FOR EDENDERRY

LONDON BOOT FIRM'S DEAL

VOLUNTEERS FOR INITIAL JOB

EDENDERRY, Monday.

AS promised by Mr. Sean Lemass, Minister for Industry and Commerce, two years ago, a factory has been granted to Edenderry. The firm of Messrs. Wachman and Co., Boot and Shoe Manufacturers, London, have purchased the premises formerly occupied by Messrs. Alesbury Brothers, Ltd., and propose to start work immediately. It is expected that one hundred local workers will be employed as a beginning, and that in about twelve months' time, when the firm expect to reach their maximum output, all the unemployed in town and district will be absorbed.

Alesbury's factory was closed in August, 1931, and since then the town has suffered keenly, the number of unemployed being out of proportion to the population.

A public meeting, held in the local Town Hall to-day, was attended by nearly two thousand people, including all the business people of the town, and representatives of all other classes and sections. The Rev. Dr. Tierney, P.P., presided. He said that he believed that this new factory would bring a big measure of prosperity to Edenderry.

Mr. George O'Connell, Chairman, Town Commissioners, said that the premises of Alesbury Bros. had been purchased by a London firm for the purpose of starting a boot and shoe factory. The deal was completed, and the work of preparing and equipping the factory would commence next week. At the start the firm would be able to employ close on a hundred workers, and it was possible that in twelve months' time five hundred would be employed.

During the negotiations he guaranteed on behalf of the workers that they would supply voluntarily all the labour required for the clearing of the factory, and those workers who were prepared to give voluntary labour should hand in their names. The firm were going to spend eight or ten thousand pounds in equipping the factory, and it was essential that they should have the workers' full co-operation and support.

Mr. P. J. Moore said that on behalf of the traders of the town he would like to thank Mr. O'Connell for all he had done.

Mr. O'Connell said that it was solely due to Mr. Lemass and to the industrial policy of the Government that the factory had been got for Edenderry.

Mr. M. Mangan, secretary, Irish Labour Club, thanked Mr. O'Connell on behalf of the workers for all he had done and promised the whole-hearted support of the workers.

The Chairman said that he hoped that all would do their part, and that there would be an honest day's wage on the one side and an honest day's work on the other. They had people there representing different interests, and he was glad to see them united. It was a hopeful sign not only for the town, but for the country.

DUBLIN CIRCUIT COURT

ACTION AGAINST 'BUS CO.

(BEFORE JUDGE DAVITT.)

Mrs. Annie Mallins, Tallaght, County Dublin, sued the General Omnibus Co. for £100 in respect of personal injuries.

The plaintiff, in evidence, stated that she boarded the 'bus in Patrick street, and on reaching Terenure the 'bus suddenly pulled up with a jerk. She was bruised on the right arm and right ankle.

Martin Nolan, the driver of the 'bus, said that a child ran out in front of the 'bus, and to avoid a serious accident he applied the brakes. He spoke to the plaintiff, who did not appear to be much hurt. He could not have avoided hitting the child if he had not suddenly applied the brakes.

The Judge held that there had been no negligence, and dismissed the process.

Mr. Joshua Baker (instructed by Mr. Herman Good) appeared for the plaintiff.

TRAMWAYS CO. SUED

Freda Lunn, Grosvenor place, Rathmines, sued the United Tramways Co. for £50, as compensation for personal injuries.

The plaintiff, in evidence, stated that as she was alighting from a 'bus it moved, and she fell and was rendered unconscious and was in bed for eight days.

Luke Carey, the conductor of the 'bus, stated that the plaintiff jumped off the 'bus before it stopped. He helped her into her home, which was near-by. The speed of the 'bus was not above eight miles an hour at the time.

The Judge dismissed the case.

Mr. W. L. Sainsbury (instructed by Messrs. Norris, Goddard and Coulter) appeared for the plaintiff.

Mr. J. P. Murnane (instructed by Mr. Gerald Byrne) appeared for the defendants.

A BUILDING CONTRACT

Thomas G. Garland, clerk and agent, Templeogue, sued Teresa Lally, 15 Harrington street, Dublin, for £90 damages for alleged breach of contract in the building of a bungalow which the plaintiff had purchased for £630.

Plaintiff, in evidence, stated that Miss Lally told him the bungalow would be finished in the same way as one that was quite near which had attracted him. When he and his wife after their honeymoon went to reside in the bungalow they found the ceilings wet; there was no electric light, and the walls were very damp. The front door did not close properly, and window catches were missing.

Mr. A. Hendy, architect, who had examined the building in November, 1933, said that there was a ring of damp two feet high on the wall of the sittingroom. He did not find a damp course.

Joseph Webb, architect, stated that he saw no evidence of the absence of a damp-course in the building.

John Bowes, builder of the bungalow, stated that there was a damp-course under the building in accordance with the by-laws, and the building was well finished.

Judgment was reserved.

Mr. P. J. Roe (instructed by Mr. P. C. Moore) appeared for the plaintiff. Mr. C. Casey (instructed by Mr. D. C. Maher) appeared for the defendant.

DUBLIN OPERATIC CONCERT

In Saint Mary's College Hall, Rathmines, on Sunday evening next, music lovers will have the opportunity of applauding the Dublin Operatic Society, which includes quite the pick of Irish musical talent at the moment. Critical Dublin audiences have long since signified enthusiasm for voices such as those of Miss Neary, Miss Black and Miss Riordan, to say nothing of baritones such as William Lemass and tenors such as Patrick Kirwan or John McLoughlin. The harp quartet of the Misses Sheridan need only be heard once to create the need for more of that strange sweetness, while the presence of the Murnahan trio and Maestro Vianni's deservedly famous choir would in itself justify the extremely moderate outlay required to secure an entry to the hall. The proceeds will go to aid the Holy Ghost Fathers' Missions in Africa.

SHAMROCK FOR U.S.A.

Shamrock is not admitted into the United States of America unless the roots have been removed or the soil has been completely washed from them.

All growing or living plants are prohibited from transmission by post to the United States, and all postal packets containing shamrock are liable to examination. Any which contain plants capable of propagation will not be admitted.

NEW COTTAGES FOR WORKERS

PROPOSAL TO SPEND £116,000

CO. HEALTH BOARD SCHEME

MR. SEAMUS O MURCHADA, Local Government Board Inspector, yesterday opened a public inquiry, under the Housing Act, 1932, into the propriety of confirming a compulsory purchase order made by the Dublin Board of Health.

Mr. P. J. Murphy, secretary to the Board of Health, said that the order was made by the Board on November 6th, 1934. It was proposed to erect 341 cottages with an average allocation of 1 rood 29 perches of land each. Under a former scheme the price of plots had been fixed by agreement at an average of £64 per acre.

2,443 HOUSES BUILT

The valuation of the County Health area, he said, was £339,321, and a penny in the pound in the rates produced £1,414. Already 2,443 labourers cottages had been erected and 270 acre allotments had been authorised, and also 2,123 half-acre allotments, 337 cottages were in course of construction, completing the number authorised under all schemes. Mr. Murphy said that £684,279 had been borrowed under the Labourers Acts. The annual loss per cottage was £6 7s. 2d. The rents ranged from 9d. to 6s., according to locality.

He said that if loans obtained for the erection of cottages under agreement were added to the sum of £684,279, assuming that this were repaid in full and that the usual half-yearly repayments had to be met the total would amount to £840,279. The expenses for repairs, collection, insurance and other costs would be £29,573.

Under the scheme which was the subject of inquiry they applied for a loan of £116,000. Principal and interest in this loan if sanctioned would come to £6,831 per annum for 35 years at 4½ per cent. interest. The annuity charge of £5 17s. 9½d. per cent., less £3,614 Government grant of 60 per cent., left £3,217.

The loan would be allocated as follows:—£97,185 for building new houses, £8,525 for land acquisition, £3,069 for fencing, £2,046 for legal expenses, and for engineering and incidental expenses £5,115.

£340 EACH

The cottages which were four-roomed dwellings, would cost £340 each.

Mr. Murphy said that the rents of the Board's labourers cottages, except where the tenants were unemployed, were punctually paid. The arrears of rent represented only 1½ weeks' rent on each, or £623 14s. 8d.

Dr. Harbison, County Dublin Medical Officer of Health, said that there was a serious need for more houses. In the Rathdown area the situation was most acute. In the Balrothery area 278 persons applied for 90 cottages, and of these applicants 123 were living in premises totally unfit for human habitation and ready for demolition. In sixty-three other cases he had had to refer to the engineer to see if the houses could be made habitable. In the Rathdown area 80 applicants out of 181 were living in dwellings definitely unfit for habitation. In South Dublin and at Celbridge there were 124 and 44 applicants respectively living under similar conditions.

These figures, said Dr. Harbison, were only part of an incomplete survey, and did not tell the whole story. In many instances applicants for cottages had left houses unfit for habitation, and were now living in houses at rents they could not afford.

RENTS TOO HIGH

He knew of men earning 30s. and 35s. a week whose rent was 15s. a week. At all costs, for the sake of their wives and families, they had left their bad dwellings, but could not pay the rent of the better houses. They were hanging on to the more expensive houses in the hope that the Board of Health would get them cottages.

Mr. P. J. Fogarty, County Councillor, said that there were 20 bona fide applicants for every cottage. Sites which had been selected long ago for cottages were now derelict. One site at Swords was being used by a tennis club.

Mr. Clare, County Councillor, asked if it were the policy of the Board of Health to give houses to people who were not agricultural labourers and to give them to people with up to £5 a week.

Mr. Murphy, Secretary, replied that it was not, and said that there might have been one or two such cases. Applicants were selecting, having regard to the report of the county medical officer of health, and the selections were subject to the approval of the Department of Local Government.

Dr. T. F. Broderick, Dundrum, said that the housing conditions in his area were absolutely appalling. Of about a hundred houses he had visited 75 per cent. were absolutely unfit for human habitation. Unfit dwellings as soon as they were vacated were sometimes immediately occupied by other people.

OBJECTIONS

One objector, who carries on dairy farming on an area of 84 Irish acres, where he fed on the average 90 cows, objected to a third cottage being put on the land.

The Inspector asked the witness, Mr. Donoghue, what he would consider was a reasonable allotment of land per cow.

The witness replied: "A cow per acre." He admitted that two of his four labourers were living in district cottages on other people's lands close by his farm.

In another claim for compulsory purchase Mr. P. McGilligan, T.D., on behalf of the objector, Mr. H. Cahill, said that nearly 6¼ acres was a big bite to take out of 23 acres. The owner, Mr. Cahill, was developing the property as a good residential area in Swords.

Mr. Frank Gibney, architect, said that this land was clearly of very big value as building land, and that the building of labourers' cottages on it would interfere with its amenities. In the course of four years, if the necessary facilities were given, it was proposed to build in all 93 houses.

Mr. B. Lawless, member of the Board of Assistance, objected to certain land being acquired, as he held it would utterly ruin his property. There were labourers' cottages all round him, and he suffered a great deal from trespass.

Mr. Early, Law Agent, asked had the witness prosecuted or complained to the Board.

Mr. Lawless said that he had not. He had, however, last week taken the law into his own hands and gone out and shot ten goats.

In reply to the Inspector, Mr. Lawless said that he offered an alternative site.

The inquiry was adjourned until to-day (Tuesday) at 11 a.m.

YESTERDAY IN THE LAW COURTS

AN UNINSURED MOTORIST

MORTGAGE FOR DAMAGES SOUGHT

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE JOHNSTON.)

Mr. J. A. Costello, K.C., with whom was Mr. J. C. Conroy (instructed by Mr. J. Montgomery), on behalf of the plaintiff in an action, Saunders v. Considine, applied for a declaration that a judgment for £775 3s. 5d. is well charged against the defendant's interest in the house, 37 Morehampton road, Dublin. The plaintiff, Arthur Saunders, a waiter, 16 Somerset street, Ringsend, Dublin, was seriously injured in a collision with a motor driven by Mrs. Kathleen Considine, and was awarded £600 damages and costs against her and her husband. In September, 1934, application was made to have the judgment converted into a judgment mortgage charged upon the defendant's house and premises.

Council said that, although the accident occurred as far back as November, 1933, the unfortunate plaintiff had not yet got a single penny by way of compensation for his injuries or costs. His life was in grave danger for a considerable time after the accident; and he was now crippled for life, and unable to work. Mrs. Considine had taken the risk of driving a motor car without being insured, and should take the consequences.

Mr. Bowers, solicitor for Mrs Considine, said that his client had offered to pay £200, but that was not accepted. The house she owned was worth about £500 at the outside, and there was a first mortgage upon it of £200 in favour of a building society. He had suggested that the society might advance something more, and Mrs. Considine had now authorised him to offer £300, and he did not think he could do any more. Plaintiff's solicitors would not accept the increased offer. Mrs. Considine's husband, a retired civil servant, was an invalid, and his pension was only £150 a year.

Mr. Costello said that £300 was a quite useless offer. Mrs. Considine had taken up an obstructive attitude throughout the whole proceedings, and had put the plaintiff to the expense of a day's trial before a Judge of the High Court and a jury.

Mr. Justice Johnston asked "what about a bird in the hand?"

Mr. Costello said, this "bird in the hand" would fly away in costs. These had been £176 3s. 5d. and, with interest, the total amount due was nearly £800.

Mr. Justice Johnston said that the plaintiff was entitled to his remedy against the defendant's property and must get it.

Mr. Bowers raised a point about the judgment mortgage, describing the defendant's premises as being situate in a particular parish instead of the correct one of St. Mary's, Donnybrook.

Mr. Justice Johnston adjourned the application so as to permit of the judgment mortgage being argued.

A CREGGS ESTATE

TO BE SOLD BY RECEIVER

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE JOHNSTON.)

Mr. E. C. Micks (instructed by Mr. W. J. Comerford), on behalf of James Kearns, applied that the receiver, Michael J. Kelly, be at liberty to apply for the renewal of the licence of a public-house at Creggs, County Galway, and to offer certain premises and lands for sale by private treaty. Counsel stated that the property was part of the estate of the late James Kearns. The licensed house, a shop distinct from it and a dwelling-house were bequeathed to Thomas Kearns, who, with his mother, Sarah, and his sister, Bridie, had been made defendants in the present application. The defendants were living on the premises, which Thomas Kearns was apparently letting go derelict. He had neglected to apply for a renewal of the public-house licence; the place was not stocked, and it was reported to be deserted. When the testator died there was a large amount of debts due, including a heavy bill to the National Bank, who were secured, and who, counsel thought, were really the only parties now vitally interested. The licence duty payable on the public-house was £13 1s. 8d. As well as the public-house, shop and dwellinghouse, the estate included 71 acres of land and a post office in the shop. The licence was in the name of Thomas Kearns. According to affidavits made in the case, it would be quite impossible to sell the premises or the lands so long as Thomas, Sarah and Bridie Kearns remained in possession.

Mr. Denis Johnston (instructed by Mr. Plunkett Kenny) appeared for the Receiver, and there was no appearance for the defendants.

Mr. Micks said that the defendants had apparently lost interest in the proceedings.

Mr Justice Johnston made an order allowing the Receiver to apply for a new licence for the public-house; directing that possession of the lands and premises be given to him within fourteen days, and authorising him to advertise the property for sale by sealed tenders, either altogether or in convenient lots.

RUNNING DOWN ACTIONS

TWO CLAIMS SETTLED

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE HANNA.)

By consent, judgment for £800,, together with taxed costs and a sum of £35 for medical fees, was entered for the plaintiff in a case of Michael McGlynn, a minor, suing by his father, Patrick McGlynn, of Nevinstown, Cloughran, Co. Dublin, against Michael Fleming, of 100 Botanic road, Dublin. The action was for damages for injuries caused to the plaintiff by his having been struck by the defendant's motor car while he was cycling from Swords to Dublin on 10th August, 1934.

Mr. Geoghegan, K.C.; Mr. Martin Maguire, K.C., and Mr. Felix Sherry (instructed by Messrs. Kennedy and McGonigle) appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Dockrell, K.C., and Mr. McLoughlin (instructed by Messrs. J. H. McLoughlin and Son) for the defendant.

Judgment for £75 and £25 costs was entered for the plaintiff by consent, in a case of Margaret Agnes Quinn, an infant, suing by her father, Patrick Quinn, of Annagh, Tourlestrane, Co. Sligo, against Thomas F. Armstrong, of Tubbercurry, Co. Sligo. The action was for injuries caused to the plaintiff by her having been struck by the defendant's motor lorry while she was cycling.

Mr. A. E. Wood, K.C., and Mr. John R. Coghlan (instructed by Mr. John T. Hannon) appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. FitzGibbon, K.C., and J. P. Murnane (instructed by Messrs. Milward, Jones, Mayne and Sharpe) for the defendant.

JUDGMENT FOR £950

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE SULLIVAN.)

By consent, judgment for £950 was entered for Mrs. Kathleen Laffan and her husband, David Laffan, 5 Oakley road, Dublin, in their action against John Maxwell, commercial traveller, 125 Islandbridge, Dublin, the owner of a motor car, which collided with one in which the plaintiffs were being driven on 4th June, 1934, at the junction of Aylesbury road and Merrion road, Dublin. The damages were allocated, £100 to David Laffan and £850 to Mrs. Laffan. The settlement also provided for the payment of the plaintiffs' costs.

Mr. J. A. Costello, K.C., Mr. A. E. Wood, K.C., and Mr. Felix Sherry (instructed by Mr. D. P. Morris) appeared for the plaintiffs; and Mr. F. FitzGibbon, K.C., Mr. K. Dockrell, K.C., and Mr. J. P. Murnane (instructed by Messrs. Milward Jones, Mayne and Sharpe) for the defendant.

MINISTER TO PAY £900

A settlement providing for the payment of £900 and costs to Miss Margaret Josephine O'Keeffe, 37 Upper Mount street, Dublin, by the Minister for Finance was made a rule of Court. The plaintiff was knocked down and injured on 4th August, 1934, in St. Stephen's Green by a motor car belonging to the Ministry.

Mr. Dockrell, K.C., and Mr. J. P. Murnane (instructed by Messrs. Gerald Byrne and Co.) appeared for the plaintiff, and the Attorney-General, Mr. P. Lynch, K.C., and Mr. R. McLoughlin (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) for the defendant.

ACTION AGAINST U.I.P. LEADERS

An action of Thomas J. Fogarty, 102 Rathgar road, Dublin, against William T. Cosgrave, T.D., Frank MacDermot, T.D., and James Dillon, T.D., Trustees of the United Ireland Party, was settled by an all-in payment of £200. The action was for damages for injuries caused to the plaintiff as the result of a motor car owned by the defendants having collided with him at Clare street, Dublin, on 27th of last March.

Mr. H. M. Dockrell, K.C., and Mr. J. P. Murnane (instructed by Messrs. Gerald Byrne and Co.) appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. J. A. Costello, K.C., and Mr. Peter Nugent (instructed by Mr. P. F. O'Reilly) for the defendants.

SETTLED FOR £800

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE O'BYRNE.)

A case of Sylvester Bennett, of Carlanstown, Kells, against the Great Northern Railway Company was settled for £800, together with taxed costs. A 'bus, the property of the defendant company, collided, it was stated, with a pony and trap which the plaintiff was driving near Kells, and the action was for damages for personal injuries.

Mr. Lavery, K.C., and Mr. Roe (instructed by Mr. P. A. Mooney) appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. McGuckin, K.C., and Mr. McGonigal (instructed by Messrs. J. C. Rea and Son) for the defendant company.

£985 FOR LOSS OF HUSBAND

Damages were apportioned in a settled action in which Mrs. Mary Ellen Ashe, Darcystown, Balbriggan, claimed damages on her own behalf and on behalf of her five children from Joseph Rooney, Balbriggan, a building contractor, for the death of her husband, who, it was stated, was killed at Balrothery on the 18th October, 1934, by a motor car the property of the defendant.

The consent provided for the payment by the defendant to the plaintiff of £985 and costs.

Mr. Justice O'Byrne allocated £340 to the widow, and divided the balance among the five children, directing that it should be kept in Court and invested on their behalf.

Mr. A. E. Wood, K.C., and Mr. J. P. Murnane (instructed by Mr. Gerrard L. McGowan) appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Brereton Barry (instructed by Messrs. Hoey and Denning) for the defendant.

GIRL INJURED

An action in which Mary Walsh, a domestic servant, 8 Innishmaun road, Gaeltacht Park, Whitehall, was plaintiff, and Joseph Trimble, St. Clement's road, Drumcondra, was defendant, was settled for £100, to include costs. The plaintiff claimed damages for personal injuries caused by her having been knocked down by the defendant's motor car at Griffith avenue on the 7th July last.

Mr. F. Sherry (instructed by Messrs. Kennedy and McGonagle) appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. P. F. O'Reilly, solicitor, for the defendant.

JUDGMENT RESERVED

The hearing of the appeal on behalf of Mrs. Bridie McKay, a general dealer, trading as B. M. McKay, of 23 and 24 Pope's quay, Cork, and Sexton street, Limerick, was concluded. It was from an order of the High Court, discharging a conditional order of certiorari and prohibition in connection with proceedings at the Cork Local Bankruptcy Court.

It was stated that Mr. D. J. M. O'Connell, Local Registrar of the Cork Local Bankruptcy Court, had purported to make an order for substituted service of a debtor's summons that had been issued against her by the Provincial Bank, on a date before that to which the time for service had been extended by the Circuit Court Judge; and that Mr. O'Connell further made an order for adjudication in bankruptcy against her, as well as an order for the sale of some of her goods. It was submitted on behalf of Mrs. McKay that in making these orders Mr. O'Connell had exercised judicial power, which he had no power to do; but the High Court held that the act of the Registrar was an administrative and not a judicial act.

The Supreme Court reserved judgment.

Mr. Gavan Duffy, K.C.; Mr. H. J. Molony, K.C., and Mr. J. J. Kavanagh (instructed by Mr. C. T. K. Russell) appeared for the appellant; Mr. Geoghegan, K.C., and Mr. William Black (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) for the Circuit Court Judge and the County Registrar; and Mr. Frank Fitz Gibbon, K.C.; Mr Overend, K.C., and Mr. Budd (instructed by Mr. James McAuliffe) for the Provincial Bank, Ltd.

RENT OF CORK PREMISES

RESTRICTION ACT PLEADED

The hearing of an appeal concerned with the rent of a fruit and confectionery shop at No. 11 Prince's street, Cork, was begun. The appellant is Mrs. Jane Caulfield, the tenant of the shop, and the respondent is Mrs. Julia Kenny, the landlord of it. Mrs. Caulfield became tenant in November, 1920, at a rent of £400 a year, to be reduced to £300 if she carried out certain covenants regarding repairs. She claimed to have spent about £1,000 on those repairs, and the rent payable was the reduced figure of £300. She applied to the Circuit Court of Cork on 21st July, 1933, to have the standard rent fixed on the premises, but the Circuit Judge held that she had never lived on them before her application to the Court, having been in occupation of the shop only, and having sublet the upper portion, and that she had one, if not two, residences, including a flat, in Middle Abbey street, Dublin. He held that the shop portion of the premises could not be brought within the provisions of the Increase of Rent and Mortgage Restriction Acts, as the premises were let for a term of years, and that consequently she was not entitled to the protection of the Act. In the view of the Circuit Judge, a tenant, to secure the benefit of the Act, must be in personal occupation or actual possession of the premises in respect of which protection was sought, and he dismissed the application to have the standard rent fixed. The High Court affirmed this decision, and Mrs. Caulfield now appealed to the Supreme Court.

Mr. H. J. Molony, K.C., and Mr. H. R. Poole (instructed by Messrs. MacCarthy, Hanrahan and Moloney) appeared for Mrs. Caulfield, the appellant; and Mr. E. J. Phelps, K.C., and Mr. Ashley Powell (instructed by Mr. Arthur Julian) for Mrs. Kenny, the respondent.

The arguments had not concluded when the Court rose.

OMEATH MAN'S WILL

PROBATE SOUGHT

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE HANNA AND A JURY.)

Frederick William Crothers, mineral water manufacturer, of Banbridge, and John Porter, a farmer, of Lenaderg, Banbridge, sought, as executors, to have the will and codicil, dated 25th May, 1931, of Henry McCourt, late of Drumullagh, Omeath, Co. Louth, who died on 3rd April, 1934, admitted to probate. The will was opposed on the three usual statutory grounds by Mrs. Catherine McCourt, widow of the testator, who propounded a will of 19th January, 1924.

Mr. Denning, K.C.; Mr. Vincent Rice, K.C., and Mr. W. L. Sainsbury (instructed by Mr. William O. Armstrong) appeared for the plaintiffs; and Mr. J. M. FitzGerald, K.C.; Mr. Lavery, K.C., and Mr. W. O'B. Fitzgerald (instructed by Messrs. O'Hare and O'Hagan) for the defendant.

The codicil to the will of 25th May, 1931, said Mr. Denning, contained nothing but the substitution of the name of one person for that of another in the will as one of the executors. The defendant was the second wife of the testator, and the persons interested in the will, in addition to herself, were Henry McCourt's grandchildren, who were all minors. Henry McCourt had carried on business as a bacon curer and butcher in the town of Banbridge. He had a farm of about eighty acres in Omeath, for which he paid £2,950 in 1920, and ten houses in Banbridge, in addition to a number of lots of land in the townland of Ballyvalley, which were let for grazing. He gave a life interest in the Omeath property to his wife, and provided for his grandchildren out of the property in Banbridge. He was eighty-six years old when he died.

The hearing had not concluded when the Court rose.

£2,500 COMPENSATION

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE SULLIVAN AND A JURY.)

A jury assessed damages at £2,500 in an action in which the plaintiff was Miss Vera I. Felton, a shorthand typist, of "Ardenza," Seapoint, County Dublin, and the defendant was Dr. Frank Crawley, F.R.C.S.I., 5 Fitzwilliam place, Dublin. Plaintiff claimed compensation for personal injuries sustained on the 13th August last by having been knocked down by a motor car driven by defendant. Her injuries included a fracture of the right leg, and she was brought to Court on a stretcher.

Judgment was entered for the plaintiff for £2,500 and costs.

Mr. Geoghegan, K.C., Mr. Martin Maguire, K.C., Mr. J. A. McCarthy, K.C., and Mr. A. Lynn (instructed by Mr. C. B. W. Boyle) appeared for plaintiff; and Mr. C. Lavery, K.C., Mr. B. McGuckin, K.C., and Mr. Barra O'Briaian (instructed by Messrs. Jas. O'Connor and Co.) for the defendant.

STOLEN SILVER

MAN FOUND GUILTY OF RECEIVING

(BEFORE JUDGE SHANNON.)

Solly Saul Lee, the proprietor of the National Smelting Company, Dame street, Dublin, pleaded "not guilty" to a charge of having received a silver jug, nine coffee spoons and a fish knife, the property of Mr. M. A. Corrigan, the Chief State Solicitor, knowing them to have been stolen.

John Murphy, who is at present serving a sentence of imprisonment for breaking into and stealing property from a number of houses, admitted that one of those houses had been that of the Chief State Solicitor. From that house he had taken the articles mentioned in the charge. He took the property to Mr. Lee's shop, and told him that "the stuff" was legally in his possession, as it belonged to a friend of his. Mr. Lee took the property and gave him 12s. or 13s. for it. When asked his name and address, the witness gave his correct name and a hotel as his address. Mr. Lee wrote it all down in a book.

In evidence, the accused man said that when the articles were tendered to him by Murphy, he enquired if they belonged to him. Murphy replied that they belonged to his mother, who lived in Tipperary. Witness gave him 13s. for the jug and some of the spoons. The remaining articles were of no use. He did not accept them, but when Murphy had left the shop he noticed that they had been left behind. When the detective called on the following day, the witness gave the various articles to him. He also gave the detective a description of the accused man, who was arrested eventually in his shop by a detective, who had been concealed behind a screen.

The jury brought in a verdict of "guilty."

Mr. J. M. Duff, solicitor, who defended, applied for liberty to appeal on the grounds that the weight of evidence against the accused man was not so great as to warrant a conviction.

The judge said that as he was not quite satisfied that he had acted rightly in not giving the jury a direction in favour of the accused man, he would allow him to appeal. He refused the appeal on the other grounds argued by Mr. Duff, but the prisoner would have an opportunity of making his case. He put a stay of execution on the sentence pending the appeal.

Detective-Sergeant Moran said that the accused man had given considerable assistance in that particular case. Thousands of pounds' worth of jewellery was missing in the city, and they could find no trace of it.

Mr. Haugh (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) prosecuted.

PARK STABBING AFFAIR

Michael Burke (56), an American Army pensioner, with an address in Lower Gardiner street, was sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment, not to be imposed if he kept the peace for two years. Burke had been convicted last week on a charge of maliciously wounding a young man named James McDonnell by striking him with a penknife at the Phœnix Park on a date in January last.

The Judge said that Burke had acted very foolishly. He may have acted from high motives, but high motives when allied to irresponsibility often got people into trouble.

CONCEALMENT OF BIRTHS

Kathleen McGurk (31), a domestic servant, of Baskin, Clogher, Co. Dublin, who pleaded "guilty" to a charge of endeavouring to conceal the births of two children in August of 1934, was bound over for a period of two years and ordered to remain at High Park Convent for a year.

Judge Shannon said that unfortunately that offence of concealment or attempting to conceal the births of children was common. At every sessions over which he presided he had before him at least one case similar to that of the accused woman. Sometimes they were cases of young, inexperienced girls, but on that occasion he was dealing with a case of a woman who was thirty years of age and had experience of life. Cases such as those led to the possibility of the commission of more serious offences against the law and against the laws of nature.

DEATH OF MRS. SHIELDS, SKERRIES

The death took place on Friday last of Mrs. Catherine Shields, Rockview, Skerries, in her 93rd year. A very popular and highly respected resident of Skerries, Mrs. Shields was the widow of the late Mr. Dennis Shields. Her three daughters, Mrs. T. Heeney, Skerries; Mrs. J. G. MacPeake, London, and Mrs. T. Kavanagh, Dublin, with a large number of grandchildren and other relatives were chief mourners at the funeral on Sunday at the family burying ground, Holmpatrick, Skerries. The very large attendances of the general public showed the universal esteem in which the deceased lady was held. Rev. W. Meighan, P.P., officiated at the grave.

A Vanishing Market?

During the last couple of years Great Britain has been elaborating all manner of schemes to restore prosperity to her farmers. The basic theory of every scheme is that the farmer shall make an effort to save himself. If the effort is genuine, the Government is prepared to give him all the additional help in its power. The one thing which it cannot offer him is the direct assistance of tariffs; for, before the various marketing schemes were evolved, it had concluded agreements not only with the Dominions of the British Commonwealth, but with sundry foreign countries, and under the terms of those agreements it is forbidden to impose duties on agricultural goods from the nations concerned. Unhappily for the British farmer, the low state of his fortunes is almost entirely due to Britain's heavy imports of food, and without some restriction of those imports he has little hope of recovery. For years past his livelihood has been challenged by huge and increasing imports of live-stock, meat and dairy products from the great Dominions, the Argentine, and, until 1932, from the Irish Free State. The result is that Britain's farming industry to-day is a shadow of its old self. Prices have fallen to rock-bottom level, and the British farmer is handicapped by the high wages which he is compelled by law to pay for his hands. In consequence thousands of farmers either have disposed of their holdings, or have dismissed their labourers, who have been thrown upon the employment exchanges, to swell the taxpayer's bill of costs. The restoration of her domestic agriculture, indeed, is one of the largest and most formidable problems which Britain must face and conquer before she really can claim to be out of the wood.

In the absence of tariffs the Government's efforts to reorganise agriculture from inside do not seem to be meeting with any notable success. An illuminating survey of the marketing schemes has just been concluded and published by the Morning Post. There are five schemes in all, dealing with wheat, pigs, potatoes, milk and beef, and of the five only two—the two least important—seem to be doing any real good. The wheat scheme has maintained production, and has kept prices at a reasonable level; but wheat-growing is no more economic in Great Britain than in Ireland, and an improvement in other branches of agriculture would be far more acceptable. The chief concern of the potato scheme is to prevent a fall in prices by the flooding of the market, and it is working reasonably well. On the other hand, the pig scheme has created widespread discontent, since the first contract which was administered by the Government resulted in a loss to the curers, and the producers were asked to make the loss good; the carefully prepared milk scheme has broken down—although, we are told, many of the dairy farmers are better off under the scheme than they were without it—and the beef scheme which is under consideration at present is almost certain to come to grief unless the Government can devise some satisfactory means for the restriction of imports. All these schemes have received, or are receiving, careful thought, and the extent of their failure suggests that the farmers' point of view is right, and that without protection against imports the industry's future is hopeless. Imported milk, imported beef, imported pigs and pig products—against these commodities the British farmer is unable to maintain his ground. We may be sure, therefore, that the present National Government, or its successor, unless it is willing to sacrifice the British agricultural industry—still, for all its sufferings, one of the nation's most valuable assets—will be forced to come to the rescue with its tariffs.

"The grapes are sour," sneered the fox who could not reach them. "The British have no further use for imported food," says the Free State Government when, for reasons that are entirely unconnected with Britain's need of food, Saorstát produce is subjected to British duties. President de Valera and his colleagues have made much political capital out of Britain's efforts to save her farmers. They tell their constituents that, even if the economic war should come to an end at once, the Free State would have no chance to recapture her old position on the British market. Britain, they say, is resolved to protect her own agriculture, and it is only a matter of a year or two before she will have excluded all imported foodstuffs. To some small extent they are right. Unquestionably the British Government will import less in the future than it has imported in the past, and it will utilise subsidies, tariffs and every other weapon under its control to bring England closer to self-sufficiency in respect of food. What President de Valera and his colleagues do not confess is that Britain never can hope to attain the goal of self-sufficiency—or to approach within measurable distance of it. Even if her farming community should become as wealthy and industrious as it was at the brightest moment of its history, it could not supply a population of forty-five million people. There always must be a gigantic market for imported food. We do not care to gloat over the misfortunes of another nation; but the breakdown of the present marketing schemes must postpone the recovery of British agriculture even further, and must weaken the industry for its task of supplying the nation. The British market offers to-day, and will offer twenty or a hundred years hence, a smaller, but still a colossal, source of income to all food-producing countries which are on good terms with it. President de Valera and his Government may talk as much as they please, but they cannot explain away the appetite of forty-five million people.

"The Gold Clause"

"Nero at his worst" was the description which was given by one of the dissenting judges when the Supreme Court of the United States delivered its decision yesterday in the matter of the famous "gold clause." It was a majority judgment, approved by five out of the nine Supreme Court judges; and the layman will find some difficulty in understanding it. The problem can be rehearsed in a few sentences. When the United States went off the gold standard, and President Roosevelt began to manipulate the dollar currency, there were various issues of public and private bonds in the country, amounting in all to some £20,000,000,000, which contained a clause guaranteeing repayment in gold. Government and private corporations alike took the view that this clause no longer could be enforced; but bond-holders disputed this view, going so far as to declare that Congress had had no right in law to regulate the currency. The matter was referred finally to the Supreme Court, which now has decided that Congress has every right to regulate the currency, that it is a sovereign assembly, and that it can do as it chooses with the dollar. Consequently, so far as private obligations are concerned, the gold clause is inadmissible. Congress, by means of the Devaluation Act, has exerted its right to manipulate the dollar, and the currency to-day is legal tender, dollar for dollar, for the repayment of all private debts. In the case of Government obligations, such as Federal and Liberty Bonds, the Supreme Court holds that the Government was wrong to pass a law stating that its obligations need not be paid in gold. Nevertheless, inasmuch as gold has been withdrawn from circulation, repayment in that metal is impossible. Federal bond holders, therefore, cannot sue the Government in the Court of Claims, and must be prepared to accept payment in the sixty-cent dollar. Bond-holders, according to the Supreme Court, have suffered no damage through devaluation; they must take their medicine with the others. The Supreme Court of the United States is one of the finest tribunals in the world; but the fact that its decision was only given by five votes to four is rather disquieting. Colossal sums of money are involved in the problem of the gold clause, and, if a decision had been given in favour of its validity, President Roosevelt's Administration would have suffered an almost fatal blow. The same problem exists to a greater or less degree in every country that has gone off the gold standard. It is beginning to appear in a slightly different form in the Irish Free State, where, for example, many life insurance policies contain a "sterling" clause, guaranteeing the holders that their benefits will be paid in sterling. If the Free State should weigh its London anchor and establish a totally independent currency, with a rate of exchange on London and Belfast, what would happen to these sterling clauses? We presume, of course, that in all cases payments would continue to be made in sterling, irrespective of Free State rates of exchange. The United States precedent, however, although it may have no direct bearing on financial policy in these islands, is of the greatest interest to bond holders of every kind throughout the globe, and it is bound to have an important effect on the world markets.

Juvenile Terrorists

Central Europe has gained an unequalled reputation as the purveyor of incredible news items. Occasionally the Middle Western States of America challenge this lead; but it is seldom that their efforts attain that fantastic note achieved with such frequency by Yugoslavia and her neighbours. Thus, a report from Belgrade discloses the discovery of two juvenile terrorist organisations. In essence this is nothing new. Children always have been tempted to play at secret societies, and, indeed, the name of one of the organisations follows in the old tradition. The society in question goes by the name of "The Black Hand." There must be very many Blackhanders spread throughout the world—it is as popular a calling as that of an engine driver. In the case of the other organisation the members have struck out upon a line of their own. They are known as "The Underground Vampires." It is, however, in the policy of the two bands that a real originality is to be found. In normal circumstances the Blackhanders content themselves with a secret sign, a secret language, and, occasionally, a measure of lighthearted torture for an unpopular playmate. In Belgrade, however, they have a more advanced outlook. From time to time schoolmasters and mistresses receive letters from the two societies, which threaten them with death unless certain specified pupils obtain higher marks in the end-of-term examinations. The humour of the situation vanishes when it is realised that the youths concerned, in all probability, would have carried out their threat. During recent years there has been a disturbing increase in the number of youths who are prepared to use violence in the pursuit of easy money. America affords the worst example, where young men still in their 'teens are glorified with the title of "Public Enemy." The cause of the trouble lies in the ease with which revolvers may be obtained by ordinary members of the public. In the old days a knife was the persuasion used by thieves, and usually they relied as much upon a forbidding appearance as upon this weapon. Nowadays, however, bank cashiers are frightened into submission by youths who are dangerous only because they are carrying an efficient automatic, and because they are prepared to use it without scruple. In Ireland, too, this juvenile lawlessness is growing rapidly. Frequent cases of wanton vandalism are reported in the papers, and although firearms seldom are carried by the offenders, there are cases wherein they have been used with fatal effect. The glorification of the gangster is the cause of this evil.

Enterprise at Ballsbridge

In spite of the difficult times through which agriculture and the live-stock industry have been passing, the Royal Dublin Society maintains its place in Irish life. To a great extent, the Spring Show and the Horse Show are an index to the prosperity of the country as a whole, and, although the last few years have not been without some effect on them, it is comforting to find that the Society's position is as strong as ever. The annual report of the Council for 1934 shows, indeed, that the Royal Dublin Society not only is holding its own, but is going forward. For the first time in its history, the Horse Show was extended to five days, in order to include Saturday. This enterprising move followed a similar scheme which had been introduced for the Spring Show, and it was justified by its success. Another, and more important, advance is marked by the decision to hold a "Saorstát Industries Fair" in conjunction with the Spring and Horse Shows, and the first of these Fairs will take place this spring. This development is both logical and necessary. The Shows held by the Royal Dublin Society are a reflection, principally, of our agricultural life, but Irish industry should find its reflection there also. Machinery and manufactures, indeed, have assumed such importance of late at the Ballsbridge Shows that the Council, probably, is right to decide that more space should be given to them. The new "Fairs," while they will not encroach upon the main objects of the Spring and Horse Shows, will give the industrial side of Irish life a better representation than it had formerly. Their value to trade is obvious from the success that attends similar exhibitions in other lands. The annual British Industries Fair, which opened yesterday, is a very valuable asset to the commerce of the Empire, and our smaller Fairs in Dublin ought to bring proportionate results to Irish commerce.

The announcement of the Prince of Wales's visit has caused much excitement in Vienna, where His Royal Highness's desire to be treated as a private visitor is being ensured by the authorities. ## HUNTING FIELD ACCIDENTS

WOMEN RIDERS THROWN

Lady Irene Clark, a daughter of the Marquess Camden and wife of Mr. J. C. Clark, suffered a heavy fall during a fast run with the Quorn in Leicestershire yesterday.

It was stated at her home last night that she has suffered a severe shaking and had dislocated a thumb.

Several other riders came to grief, including Lady Kimberley, who escaped with slight injuries.

Mr. John Cross, who has been described as the "Grand Old Man" of hunting, received a kindly tribute yesterday when the Quorn met at his home, Ashfordby Hall, Melton Mowbray.

Mr. Cross, who is now in his eightieth year, and has hunted with the Fernie, Pytchley and Quorn for nearly sixty years, was unable to attend the meet owing to illness.

Sir Harold Nutting, the Master, therefore, had the pack and hunters paraded before the sick room window, and Mr Cross was cheered by the met and all the villagers.

Lady Theresa Cross, his wife, who has been hunting for forty years, was up with the hounds at the close of a gruelling run. She distributed two hundred buns to Ashfordby school children, who were given their annual respite from lessons to witness the meet at the Hall.

SOVIET-GERMANY BARTER DEAL

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
BERLIN, Monday.

A large barter deal between Germany and Soviet Russia is reported in the Allgemeine Zeitung to-night.

The paper says the sum involved is believed to total 250,000,000 marks—about £19,000,000—but that confirmation at present cannot be obtained. Under the reported arrangement Russian oil would be exchanged for German machinery.

LONDON LETTER

THE AIR PACT

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
MONDAY NIGHT.

THE Foreign Affairs Committee of the Cabinet considered the terms of the German reply to Sir John Simon's proposals of February 3rd. The Ministers concerned have been giving very close consideration to the communication since it arrived on Friday night, and it is notable that the French and Russian Ambassadors made inquiries at the Foreign Office on Saturday to ascertain the feeling in official circles. No time will be lost in proceeding with the negotiations; for the British Cabinet is determined to hasten a discussion with Germany on the Air Pact, provided that the French Government's approval can be secured. If conversations are arranged, they are likely to take place in London, and Baron von Neurath, the German Foreign Minister, may come over, accompanied by Herr Hess and Herr von Ribbentrop.

War in the Air

Somewhat elaborate plans have been prepared by the Home Office, military and air authorities, and medical, municipal and other experts for use in the event of war involving attacks from the air on people in towns and cities. The Committee of Imperial Defence will see that the plans are ready for use, if necessary, and shortly will inform the authorities responsible for local government of what must be done. The idea is to give alarm signals, to protect food and water supplies, to arrange for ample stocks of gas antidotes under medical control for people who may be suffering, to ensure that fire brigades will be ready to deal with outbreaks of fire, to prepare places where gas decontamination can be carried on, and first-aid stations manned by a staff qualified in anti-gas treatment. It is not intended at present to issue gas masks, or to provide great underground shelters, as tube and underground railways are available in London. Volunteers will be enrolled to carry out the anti-gas schemes.

The Budget

The Government has no intention of introducing the Budget earlier than is usual. The Chancellor of the Exchequer likes to have as long a period as possible after the close of the financial year on March 31st to prepare his Budget and introductory speech, and it is well into April before people learn how their incomes will be affected. Easter falls late this year, and, in order that the necessary Budget resolutions may be passed before the House adjourns for the Easter holidays, it is likely that Mr. Chamberlain will introduce his Budget on Tuesday, April 9th. The national accounts close on April 5th, so that the Treasury will have only a few days in which to prepare its final plans.

Varied News from Germany

The news from Berlin does not lack interest and variety to-day. Two women have suffered death by decapitation—a death penalty from the savage days of autocracy. The discovery has been made that Germany really has an air force of about seven hundred 'planes, with additions of about twenty a month, and there is the possibility that General Goering may become Vice-Chancellor of the Reich on March 1st, when the Saar territory is restored to Germany. It appears that provision was made for the appointment of a Vice-Chancellor on the death of President Hindenburg last August, and it was assumed that Herr Rudolph Hess, Deputy Leader of the Nazi Party, would be appointed. General Goering of late has come increasingly into the limelight, and his greatest rival, Dr. Goebbels, has been receding. The news is interesting, because the appointment may have a marked effect on German policy before long.

Visitors for the Jubilee

All the steamship companies that run services from the distant Dominions report heavy bookings by people who will come to England for the King's Silver Jubilee celebrations. Visitors from Canada may defer their departure for some time yet, but those from Australia and New Zealand will have to leave within the next few weeks, and the steamers which will leave New Zealand on March 6th and 29th are fully booked, while the ships from Australia are being filled steadily. In addition to people coming by sea, others are making the journey by air. For the air routes it has not been the custom to book far ahead, but already seats are being reserved by the machines from India and South Africa—particularly those which arrive in this country in May.

The British Industries Fair

The British Industries Fair at Olympia and the White City is more wonderful than ever. Its many miles of exhibits comprise almost everything that is beautiful, and among them the linens from Northern Ireland are in the front rank. The Duchess of York, a little figure in nigger brown, was an interested visitor this morning, when she expressed her admiration of the coloured bed and table linen. A very important change has been made in the Fair arrangements this year. For the first time exhibits are not being shown at London and Birmingham simultaneously. The Birmingham Chamber of Commerce felt it a mistake to invite foreign visitors to England to inspect outdoor exhibits, when the weather usually is cold and miserable. The Prince of Wales flew to Birmingham last year through a blizzard to visit the Fair, and this brought Birmingham to a full realisation that a change was desirable. In future May will be the chosen month.

New Pennies

Bright new 1935 pennies are now in circulation, and have suddenly become quite numerous. Last Christmas, at the request of the banks, the new pennies were not issued in a bright form, but were passed through a process which gave them a dull appearance, in order to avoid the inconvenience to the banks resulting from demands for bright pennies. They were not dull because they had not been burnished, as was popularly supposed, but would have been bright had they not been passed through the additional process which took off the brightness. Recently there has been an exceptionally heavy demand for pennies, and to meet it fresh supplies have been turned out by the Mint. As the necessity for the dulling process no longer exists, they have been put into circulation in the usual bright form associated with new copper coins.

The World's Rarest Stamp

London is the postage-stamp Mecca of the world to-day. The sale of the celebrated Hind collection, brought from the United States, has realised £114,000, and the collection is not yet exhausted. Now the most famous stamp in the world, the one cent British Guiana, 1856, believed to be the only surviving copy, is on its way to London. It is a small magenta-coloured stamp, with a most remarkable history. Found sixty years ago by a small boy among some family letters, it was not much admired, and was sold for six shillings to a collector, who, unaware that it had great rarity, sold it ten years later for £25. During the past fifty years it has passed out of one collection to another, until it was bought by Mr. Hind in 1921 for £7,343. It has now been insured for £10,000, and probably there will be some exciting scenes when it is put up to auction.

U.S. GOLD CLAUSE DECISION

GOVERNMENT VICTORIOUS— BUT WRONG!

CASE THAT INVOLVED £20,000,000,000

"BONDHOLDERS SUSTAINED NO DAMAGE"

THE United States Supreme Court yesterday delivered its judgment in the gold clause case, which had kept the world's markets in a state of uncertainty since 4th February, when their decision was first expected.

By a majority of five judges to four, the Court upheld the right of Congress to regulate currency. By the same majority, they decided that in the case of private bonds the gold clause was not binding, but that in the case of Government Bonds the law that Government obligations need not be paid in gold was invalid. At the same time, however, they denied to holders of Federal Bonds the right to sue for redress in the Court of Claims, thus taking the sting out of the ruling.

This right was also denied to holders of old gold certificates, who sought to obtain one dollar 69 cents for each dollar of their certificates.

"This is Nero in his worst form," said the minority judges.

To all holders of United States Bonds, which promised payment in gold, the Supreme Court in effect said:—

"The Government had no right to stop gold payments on your bond after promising to pay in gold, but . . . . . the Government has taken gold from circulation, and there is no way you can force the Treasury to pay you gold. You cannot sue before the Court of Claims, so the only thing left is to accept for your bond its face value in the everyday devalued dollar."

The decision is regarded as a victory for President Roosevelt and the New Deal.

MINORITY JUDGES' VIEW

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, Monday.

The majority consisted of Justices Hughes, Stone, Brandeis, Roberts, and Cardozo; the minority of Justices McReynolds, Van Devanter, Sutherland and Butler.

The Court ruled that the holders of gold certificates had no legal cause of complaint since the Devaluation Act merely carried out the power of Congress to regulate currency.

The Court, in fact, upheld the constitutionality of the power of Congress to regulate currency. It also declared that certificate bondholders had sustained no damage, and, therefore, no money was to be paid as a premium as a result of the Court's decision.

"NOT CONCERNED WITH THE CONSEQUENCES"

Sonorously reading his decision to the packed court, Mr. Justice Hughes said: "We are not concerned with the consequences in the sense that the consequences, however serious, may excuse the invasion of constitutional right.

"We are concerned with the constitutional power of Congress over the monetary system of the country and its attempted frustration.

"Exercising that power Congress has undertaken to establish a uniform currency and parity between kinds of currency, and to make that currency dollar for dollar legal tender for the payment of debts.

"In the light of its abundant experience, Congress is entitled to choose such a uniform monetary system and to reject a dual system with respect to all the obligations within the range of its constitutional authority.

"The contention that these gold clauses are valid contracts and cannot be struck down proceeds upon the assumption that private parties, states and municipalities may make and enforce contracts which may limit that authority.

"Dismissing that untenable assumption the facts must be faced. We think it clearly shown that these gold clauses interfere with the exertion of the power granted to Congress, and certainly it is not established that Congress arbitrarily and capriciously decided that such interference existed."

CONGRESS CANNOT BE CONTROLLED

PAYMENT OF BONDS

In other words, the Chief Justice declared that Congress could not be controlled in its power to regulate currency by gold clauses in private obligations. The Court, he added, had repeatedly ruled to that effect.

The Chief Justice went on to announce the Court's decision that private gold clause obligations need not be paid off in gold or an equivalent amount of devalued currency.

He ruled, however, that Government gold obligations cannot be paid off on a dollar for dollar basis. He said that the Court decided that the Government Gold Clause Bonds must be paid off in gold or an equivalent amount of devalued currency.

"Fairly construed," he said, "the gold clauses were intended to afford a definite standard of measure of value, and thus to protest against a depreciation of currency by payment of a lesser value than that prescribed."

Finally, the Court held that those who held gold certificates had no cause of action and could not sue the Government.

"CONSTITUTION GONE"

Declaring that "the Constitution is gone," Mr. Justice McReynolds read the opinion of the dissenting judges, which declared emphatically that it could not be disclosed at this time what would be the effect "of what is done here this day."

It pointed out that a solemn promise was made by the Government in the sale of its bonds that the purchasers would receive payment in gold. Congress, the dissenting judges held, had enacted the disputed law in order to raise the price of agricultural commodities.

"God knows I do not want to talk about such matters, but it is my duty," declared Justice McReynolds.

He criticised the majority, saying that it "in one breath said that Congress had no power to repudiate Gold Bond obligations, and at the same time reaches the conclusion that, because the Government bondholder cannot accept gold, he must accept a 60 per cent. legal tender dollar for each gold dollar the Government promised to pay.

"Congress is without power, according to the majority decision, to repudiate its gold obligations in its own bonds, but cannot be compelled to pay in devalued dollars the value of gold called. This means that Congress can pay in 60 cent dollars.

"This is Nero in his worst form.

"We are confronted with a dollar which is reduced to 60 cents and may be 30 cents to-morrow, ten cents the next day and one cent the day following. We tried to prevent its entrance into our legal system, but we tried in vain.

HUGE PROFIT

"We are told that the Government has made from its transactions 2,800,000,000 dollars (£560,000,000), which are now reposing in the Treasury."

The total amount of bonds containing the gold clause is approximately 100,000,000,000 dollars (£20,000,000,000). This is made up as follows:—

Federal debts, 23,500,000,000 dollars.
Liberty bonds, 5,000,000,000 dollars.
Local debts, 19,600,000,000 dollars.
Private bonds, 51,900,000,000 dollars.

In the case of Federal bonds the position is that the Government technically and legally lost the day, but the decision that the holders of such bonds have no right to sue to recover damages makes the effect of the decision in this case also a victory for the Government. The Administration has therefore decided that no legislation will be necessary.

ONLY £4 10s. AT STAKE!

Man Who Brought Gold Clause Case

IN the case to which yesterday's gold clause judgment was the sequel three men—a jeweller, a coffee merchant and a lawyer—were contesting the right of the President to abrogate the gold clause.

They contended that Congress's abrogation of the gold clause on June 5, 1933, was illegal.

The gold clause, intended to safeguard investors against depreciated currencies, provides for payment in "gold coin of the United States of, or equal to, the standard weight and fineness" existing on the date of the loan.

Victory would have meant only a few pounds to them—one of them having only £4 10s. at stake—but it would have meant that the Government and private companies whose bonds contain the gold clause would owe £13,800,000,000, because the £20,000,000,000 in public and private bonds which contain that clause would have increased in value by 69 per cent.

HEAVY BETTING ON RESULT

ODDS IN FAVOUR OF GOVERNMENT

A firm of New York commission agents, Darnell and Co., were offering 2½ to 1 in favour of the Government.

Mr. Darnell, in an interview with Reuter, said he had already handled 500,000 dollars (£100,000) worth of bets this morning.

A "look-out man" from the Treasury was present in court in order to dispatch to Mr. Morgenthau, the Secretary of the Treasury, news of the decision as soon as it was announced.

The court was crowded.

VICTORY FOR GOVERNMENT

LONDON FINANCIAL COMMENT

Commenting on the gold clause judgment, the Financial News says:—For all practical purposes it confirms the default of the United States Government, committed when the gold clause incorporated in most of its bonds was abrogated. There may be certain strictures in the judgment, the Court may point the finger of guilt at the Government for an action which is adjudged to have been ultra vires; but the

TRADE WITH BELGIUM

INCREASED QUOTAS FOR CATTLE

IMPROVING THE RATIO OF TRADE

BY OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT.

THE following statement was issued by the Government Information Bureau last evening:—

"The discussions which have taken place in Brussels between delegations of the Irish and Belgian Governments have resulted in the conclusion of a trade agreement between the two countries. In accordance with the terms of the agreement, considerably increased quotas will be accorded for the importation into Belgium of cattle and butter from Saorstat Eireann. Belgian exports will continue to receive the same facilities as heretofore in the Irish market.

"The Notes exchanged between the two Governments embodying the agreement will be presented to the Oireachtas in due course."

The apparent effect of the new agreement will be to improve the ratio of trade between the two countries, which has been approximately as one to five. This will be effected by increasing the quotas for cattle and butter from the Free State. The official statement does not specify the actual quantities; but, no doubt, this will be indicated in the Notes which have been exchanged and signed.

LIMERICK AS CATTLE PORT

It is stated on reliable authority that inquiries are now being made by the National Marketing Board, of which Mr. Seán O'Grady, T.D., Parliamentary Secretary, is chairman, with the view of making arrangements for the shipment of cattle to Belgium from Limerick. Hitherto practically all cattle exported by the Board were sent from Dublin, where adequate facilities exist for dealing with such trade.

If an exporting centre can be established at Limerick, it is claimed that the adjoining counties will benefit immensely. Cattle for export to Belgium must be stall-fed cattle. No grass-fed cattle, which are classified as stores, will be required. Well-fleshed bullocks of an average weight of 12 cwt. are the main requirements for the Belgian trade, and for these a minimum price of 22s. per cwt. will be paid by the Marketing Board. For export to Germany, bullocks, heifers, particularly fat cows, and bulls are being purchased by the Board.

MANUFACTURE AND TRADE IN ARMS

ROYAL COMMISSION APPOINTED

Sir Herbert Samuel (L., Darwen) asked the Prime Minister, in the House of Commons yesterday, whether he could now give the composition and terms of reference of the Royal Commission of Inquiry into the private manufacture of and trading in arms.

Mr. Macdonald—Yes, I am glad to say the Royal Commission has just been completed. Its composition will be:—Sir John Eldon Bankes, ex-Lord Justice of Appeal, Chairman; Sir Thomas Allen; who has been long associated with the co-operative movement; Rachel Crowdy, who has done great service at Geneva as an official representative at the League of Nations; Sir Philip Gibbs, who has a unique knowledge of the continental situation; Professor H. C. Gutteridge, Reader in Comparative Law at Cambridge University, and Dean of the Faculty of Law in London University; Sir Kenneth Lee, a well-known Lancashire business man; Mr. J. A. Spender, the distinguished publicist.

The terms of reference are:—(1) To consider and report upon the practicability and desirability, both from the national and international point of view, of the adoption (a) by the United Kingdom alone, (b) by the United Kingdom in conjunction with other countries of the world, of a prohibition of private manufacture of and trade in arms and munitions of war, and the institution of a State monopoly of such manufacture and trade.

(2) To consider and report whether there are any steps which can usefully be taken to remove or minimise the kinds of objections to which private manufacture is stated in Article 8 (5) of the Covenant of the League of Nations to be open.

(3) To examine the present arrangements in force in the United Kingdom relative to the control of the export trade in arms and munitions of war, and to report whether these arrangements require revision and, if so, in what directions.

The Royal Commission will be appointed under the usual form of warrant giving powers to call persons before them to give evidence, to call for information in writing and to call for and examine documents.

THE BRITISH BUDGET

APRIL 15TH A LIKELY DATE

The date for the introduction of the British Budget has not yet been fixed by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, but it is likely to be Monday, April 15th (says a Lobby correspondent).

The House of Commons will adjourn for the Easter recess on Thursday, April 18th.

It is intended to make the Budget statement and to pass the Budget resolutions throughout Committee before the Easter adjournment. Three days are usually reserved for these discussions, and the general expectation is that April 15th, 16th and 17th will be selected for the purpose.

means of redress available to the bondholders are non-existent, and the position, therefore, remains unchanged.

The bondholders may have won on points of law; in practice the victory rests with the Government. The decision on private bonds incorporating the gold clause went, as it was expected to, against the holders. Corporations and private individuals have no powers of control over the currency provided for them; for the discharge of their obligations they have to accept the position created for them by the Administration. It is expressly on this ground that the decision in the two cases concerned with private bonds went unreservedly against the holders.

In the remaining two cases, however—namely, those concerned with Federal obligations—the Supreme Court found that Congress had acted unconstitutionally in abrogating the gold clause, but added that the holders, who had, in fact, "sustained no damage" by this abrogation, could not sue for redress. The gold clause scare is, therefore, over.

The victory which the United States Government has gained is a victory for the cause of the "New Deal" in all its forms.

PROTESTS IN SAAR

NOT GERMAN YET

CUSTOMS OFFICERS SEIZE PAPERS

PRESENCE OF NAZI TROOPS

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

SAARBRUECKEN, Monday.

AN incident, fortunately not serious, has quickly followed the resumption by Germany, with much ceremony, of control of the Customs on the Franco-Saar frontier.

It appears that the Germans in charge of the newly-built and resplendent Customs house between Forbach and Narra interpreted their instructions too widely and stopped a French Inspector of Finances and a Bank of France employé, and declined to let their car through until they had handed over newspapers they were carrying.

The affair was brought to the notice of M. Heimburger, Director of the Interior, of the Governing Commission, and he made representations to Herr Binder, the German delegate for the resumption of control of the Saar.

Herr Binder gave an assurance that the seizures should stop at once.

This afternoon M. Heimburger himself was returning from Forbach by car, and was stopped by the German Customs men and ordered to hand over all French newspapers.

He replied that until March 1st the Governing Commission alone had the right to prohibit newspapers, and that he would not obey the officer's order.

The officer did not insist.

FLAMBOYANT

M. Heimburger, however, made fresh representations to Herr Binder, who gave a formal promise that there would be no further seizures.

Meanwhile, the flamboyant ceremonial with which the Customs was taken over by the Germans last night has been the subject of a protest by M. Zoricitch, the Yugoslav member of the Governing Commission, who is acting-President in the absence of Mr. Knox in Naples.

Among other things to which he took exception was the presence of Nazi troops, which is forbidden by the Governing Commission.

VICTIMS OF SICILY AIR CRASH

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

MALTA, Monday.

The bodies of the British airmen killed in the flying boat disaster in Sicily were laid to rest here to-day with impressive and moving ceremonies in the Church of England and Catholic Naval cemeteries.

Detachments of the Air Force, Navy, Marines, and Army took part in the funeral procession. On the coffins, covered with the Union Jacks, rested the dead airmen's caps.

After the Funeral Service, which was attended by the representatives of the Governor-General (Sir David Campbell), the Air-Officer Commanding, and the Naval Commander-in-Chief, three volleys were fired by the Air Force firing party, and the "Last Post" and the "Reveille" were sounded.

The procedure at the Church of England cemetery was repeated for Leading-Aircraftman William P. Wallace, of County Limerick, the only Catholic among the nine dead.

It is unofficially stated at Messina that Colonel Aozzolo, the Officer Commanding the Italian Air Force in Sicily, has held an inquiry into the air crash. He expresses the view that the accident was due to the machine being driven down by a current of air. It was able to clear one peak, but not the second.

SOVIET PEACE PLAN "DEAD"

NO OBSERVATIONS FROM POWERS

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

GENEVA, Monday.

Soviet Russia did not submit a text embodying her proposals for the conversion of the Disarmament Conference into a permanent peace conference at the meeting of the Miscellaneous Provisions Committee to-day.

The Soviet delegate said that his Government were still waiting for the replies of the Governments on the original proposals of M. Litvinoff on the subject, and he agreed to the adjournment of the discussion until a later date.

It is generally felt, however, that the proposal is virtually dead and buried, and, as one delegate remarked to Reuter's Correspondent, "with only a single mourner."

As a matter of fact, only eleven States have replied so far to the Russian proposals, and no Great Powers have made any observations on the subject.

LONDON AND THE GOVERNMENT

NO LACK OF CONFIDENCE BY BUSINESS MEN

The recent fall of two or three points in the prices of British Government securities was no indication of the City's lack of confidence in the National Government.

That is the view of Lord Ebbisham, Chancellor and Treasurer of the Primrose League, and a former Lord Mayor of London.

Speaking at Dudley yesterday, Lord Ebbisham said that the fall in question was an indication of the state of the mind of the City.

"It was not an indication of the lack of confidence of the City in the National Government, but an indication of the sort of thing that would happen only in a much more exaggerated way if the Socialist Party was returned to power.

"It was a clear indication of the fact that the victory of the Socialist Party at the polls would be viewed by the commercial and industrial interests in this country with the utmost dismay and alarm."

MANY New Yorkers were faced with a dreary climb when the liftmen's strike for a "raise" came into force to-day.

Last-minute efforts to avert a cessation of work failed, and the movement came into desultory operation after 10.30 this morning (3.30 p.m. London time). The response, however, was by no means general, except in the area of the garment industry in mid-town.

Exactly how the taller skyscrapers are affected is not clear yet, as the men's union is allowing members to remain on duty where the managements have signed the arbitration agreement of last November. In others emergency men are on duty.

So far there has been no disorder, but there are fears of trouble if Mayor La Guardia carries out his threat to mobilise police and firemen to man every key building, on the ground that the strike is a breach of the health laws of the city.

Mayor La Guardia champions the flat-dweller and the city worker, for many of whom going to work will be a whole day job involving the scaling of thousands of stairs. Those working at the top part of the 80-storey Empire State Building, for instance, would have about 10,000 steps to climb—about two hours' work.

The men earned £4 a week, but demand more.

In one block of flats the dwellers called a protest meeting against the use of emergency men, not because they sympathised with the strikers, but because they feared the substitute men were inexperienced.

Meanwhile weary climbers to-night have gained fresh heart from a newspaper report, so far unsubstantiated, that the strike has been called off pending further negotiations.

FROM "THE TIMES"

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

THE GOLD CLAUSE

The Times observes in an editorial article to-day:—The rulings of the Supreme Court of the United States in the four gold clause cases decided yesterday have relieved the President and his advisers of the anxiety which they must have felt when the Court was asked to declare the abrogation of the gold clause unconstitutional. The rulings are not in favour of the Government on all the points which have been raised, but even where they declare that Congress exceeded its constitutional rights they deprive the plaintiffs of any right to sue for redress. They will supply jurists with material for much theoretical argument. What matters in practice is that, by a majority of five to four, the Court has decided that Congress has the right to regulate currency, and that the holders of bonds containing the gold clause cannot enforce their claim to be paid more than dollar for dollar. The rulings put an end to the uncertainty which has existed ever since the Court consented last October to hear arguments in four cases, in which the plaintiffs claimed the enforcement of the gold clause, arguing that Congress in abrogating it had violated the Constitution.

As regards private contracts, adds The Times, the gold clause is declared to be abrogated. As regards contracts to which the State is a party the abrogation is declared invalid, but the clause, nevertheless, is incapable of being enforced. These rulings of the Supreme Court will be compared with the judgment delivered by the House of Lords in December, 1933, in a case involving the gold clause. In the British case the clause, like all such clauses, stipulated that payment was to be made in gold coins of a specified weight and fineness. This obligation, the judgment said, could not be interpreted literally, since it was impossible of fulfilment, and must be interpreted to prescribe not the method, but the measure of payment. The holder, it was declared, was entitled to be paid sums in sterling equivalent to the gold value of the bond at the date of its issue.

There were, however, important differences between the issues raised before the Supreme Court and those before the House of Lords. Whereas Great Britain is definitely off the gold standard, and the sterling price of gold fluctuates with the ups and downs of the market like that of any other commodity, the position in the United States is that the dollar is assumed to have a "gold content," which the President may fix at any amount between 50 per cent. and 60 per cent. of the old gold dollar. As this content is fixed at present one dollar sixty-nine cents has to be taken as equalling in gold value one dollar of the old currency. There is a further difference in that gold may be sold and bought freely in Great Britain, while in the United States no bank or private person can acquire or hold gold except for purposes defined in the Gold Reserve Act of 1934, and on conditions prescribed by the Treasury. In effect, gold is a Government monopoly, not, as in Great Britain, a marketable commodity, and the dollar price fixed for it by the President is arbitrary and, as a measure of value, fictitious.

Yesterday's judgment, concludes The Times, even where State obligations are affected, leaves the Administration free to act as if what is declared unconstitutional were, in fact, constitutional. There will thus be no necessity for any remedial legislation, and President and Congress, their position strengthened by the Supreme Court's decision, will be able to proceed unhampered with their work of economic recovery and social reconstruction.

WOMEN SPIES BEHEADED

THEFT OF GERMAN INVASION PLANS

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BERLIN, Monday.

Reuter's were informed unofficially that Baroness von Berg and Frau von Natzner, who were beheaded in the Ploetzensee prison at dawn to-day for espionage, had stolen from the Reichswehr Ministry (War Office) plans of the German General Staff for an invasion of Poland.

Both women, wearing evening dress and white gloves, were beheaded by the professional executioner. As each head fell into the basket of sawdust he formally announced to an official standing by, "Justice has been done."

After completing temporary repairs, H.M.S. Renown, which collided with H.M.S. Hood off the coast of Spain during exercises last month, has sailed for Portsmouth from Gibraltar.

BRITISH CATTLE SUBSIDY

EXTENDING THE PERIOD

A SERIOUS DECLINE IN PRICES

FROM OUR PARLIAMENTARY CORRESPONDENT.

WESTMINSTER, Monday.

MR. WALTER ELLIOT, the Minister of Agriculture, introduced a money resolution in the House of Commons to-day extending the cattle subsidy for a further period not exceeding six months.

Pointing to the serious decline in prices for fat and store cattle, he said that to deal with it they would either have drastically to reduce imports or a levy on imports must be imposed. To take the former action would have involved a great shock to the trade not only of the supplying countries, but to the general trade and commerce of this country, and negotiations were now proceeding with the exporting countries, and pending their conclusion the Government were doing everything possible to come to the relief of the cattle farmers.

The fact which had to be faced was that the public taste for beef had fallen off. In regard to foodstuffs generally, the policy of the Government was to encourage the maximum supply of produce to consumers in the home market at the lowest reasonable prices, but the point to be remembered was that unless the producer got a reasonable return no expansion of the rural population was possible. Those who claimed that foodstuffs were being produced at prices beyond the reach of the consuming classes of this country were out of touch with the facts.

SOLVING A PROBLEM

In 1930 the food index was 145, and to-day it was 122. Taking the food value of wages, it was 100 in 1930 and 112 to-day. If we could find new markets, not merely at road but at home, we should have gone a long way towards solving the problem that had to be faced. Pending the arrival at some agreement, which, it was hoped, would be satisfactory, he asked the House to continue for a short period the subsidy, which was not intended to stimulate an artificial expansion in live stock, but was designed to regulate the markets and safeguard the producer.

Dr. Addison (Labour) declared that the speech of Mr. Elliot was a confession of failure. The Labour Party had no objection to the producer getting a fair price for his commodities, but the idea that this could be secured by a limitation of supplies was not one to which he could agree. It was immoral in a world of abundance to force restriction of supplies upon the country. We wanted more rather than less. If it was desired to stabilise prices, the Government should manage the supplies themselves by means of Import Boards, and not leave it to the foreign exporter.

CRITICAL SITUATION

Sir Percy Harris (Liberal) said that the reluctance of the Government to levy duties on meat was due to the specific pledge which had been given by Mr. Runciman. Would Mr. Runciman be thrown overboard, or the country committed to subsidies as an alternative.

Mr. G. Lambert (Liberal) said that Government assistance was necessary if the beef trade was to be saved from ruin. Even with the subsidy the trade was in a critical condition. Miners' representatives should not complain of doles for agriculture, seeing that the coal-mining industry was receiving a dole of thirty millions. Expressing the opinion that there would be no more treaties made which would restrict this country's fiscal freedom, he said: "The Ottawa rose has not a sweet perfume in agricultural nostrils."

FARMERS' ONLY HOPE

Sir E. Ruggles-Brise (Conservative) supported the resolution. It might not bring much relief to the industry, but it would bridge the gap until a permanent arrangement was made.

Mr. C. Brown (Labour) said the Government policy had completely failed to deliver the goods to the agricultural community. The present subsidy was another instalment of political bribery.

Major Hills (Conservative) suggested that the Government's long-term policy should be an import levy on foreign meat, and that the levy should be used as a subsidy to the home producer.

Sir F. Acland (Liberal) declared that the more people were subsidised, the less inclined they were to reorganise their industries. The only hope for the farmer lay in the increased prosperity of his customers.

The resolution was agreed to by 196 to 37.

THREE DEAD AND 31 INJURED

BIG ARGENTINE FIRE

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

ROSARIO, Monday.

Three lives were lost, 31 persons injured, and 8,000 tons of wheat and maize destroyed, in a big fire that to-day burned down elevators of a grain exporting company here.

The entire building has been destroyed, and the adjoining wharf and railway sheds are threatened owing to the lack of water that is hampering the firemen's efforts.

So seriously is the fire extending that it is feared the station of the Central Argentine Railways may be involved. An explosion occurred, blowing off the roofs of the buildings. The thirty-one injured are very badly burned.

"I SYMPATHISE WITH YOU"

GOVERNOR'S REPLY TO HAUPTMANN'S MOTHER

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

TRENTON, Monday.

Governor Hoffman, of New Jersey, has sent the following reply to Hauptmann's mother, who cabled him from her home in Kamenz, Saxony, pleading for clemency for her son:—

"I have your cablegram, and deeply sympathise with you in your situation. Your son's case is to be carried to the Court of Errors and Appeals.

"The Governor of New Jersey at this time has no power to pardon. I shall sit as a member of the Court of Pardons that may finally hear this case, and cannot express an opinion until that time."

The attempt to assassinate Paramount Chief Awujale, of Southern Nigeria, during a reception given by the Lieutenant-Governor last October, had a sequel at Lagos yesterday, when eleven coloured men were found guilty of conspiracy in connection with the affair and sentenced to terms of imprisonment ranging from two to six years.

IRELAND AT THE BRITISH FAIR

FREE STATE WELL TO THE FRONT

VERY ATTRACTIVE DISPLAY

LINEN INDUSTRY OF THE NORTH

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Monday.

THE British Industries Fair, held at Olympia and the White City, was opened this morning, when the Duchess of York was an early visitor. The display is the finest yet seen, there being miles of stalls both in Olympia and the White City, the former being devoted to miscellaneous goods and the latter mainly to furniture, fabrics and textiles.

FREE STATE PRODUCTS

At Olympia the Irish Free State is represented by a most attractive display arranged by Mr. J. W. Dulanty, the High Commissioner of the Irish Free State, assisted by Mr. D'Arcy and the members of the Trade Commission. A feature for the first time is an exhibit of tinned hams, while there are some most dainty-looking cartons of cheese, drawing attention to the fact that this industry is being revived in Southern Ireland. Sides of bacon, tinned foods, eggs and butter, carrageen moss and whiskey go to complete the contents.

The stand itself is made the most notable among the many in its vicinity by a remarkably beautiful frieze. This is a black on a pale green lighted background. It depicts in silhouette all the branches of sport and industry in the country, such as the Shannon scheme, hunting, fishing, yachting, agriculture, horse-breeding and touring.

Northern Ireland displays as something fresh some very fine sides of Wiltshire bacon, a departure, inasmuch as this is the first time that sides of Wiltshire have been sent to the exhibition, in addition to the more familiar rolled bacon. A great variety of tinned foodstuffs and chicken in glass draws attention to the fact that there is an ever-growing demand on this side for these products of Northern Ireland.

DUBLIN LOOM AT WORK

At the White City a number of Irish linen exhibitors are grouped together in the Irish linen market, and it is almost enough to say that the exhibition of Irish linens excels anything yet seen at these Fairs.

Before dealing with these I might mention that Messrs. Richard Atkinson and Co., Dublin, have a fine display of their real Irish poplin neckties and scarves. A loom has been brought over from Dublin, and a weaver was busily engaged to-day in weaving a most intricate tartan pattern for the edification of visitors.

Messrs. John Brown and Sons, of Dublin road, Belfast, make a feature of some examples of silvertone pastel linen. These were very much admired to-day, particularly the table sets, with a bouquet of naturally coloured flowers in the centre, surrounded by the silvertone linen.

Messrs. Gallagher and Johnson, of Lurgan, show a great variety of handkerchiefs and neckwear of excellent design and colouring. Leacock and Co., of Linen Hall street, Belfast, display many fancy weave crashes and sheetings—an admirable display. Messrs. J. N. Richardson and Sons and Owden, of Donegall square, North, Belfast, have a stand filled with some remarkably beautiful productions.

GOLD-COLOURED LINEN

Linen in the new Jubilee blue, named by the Queen, and the new Margaret Rose pink, named by the Duchess of York, is shown both in the plain and rough surface tweed. These linen tweeds are likely to prove one of the most attractive dress-making materials for the coming summer.

In many cases they so resemble the light woollen tweed that it is difficult to realise that they are linen. The patterns are wide in range and the colourings highly effective. One feature of this stand was the table set carried out in gold-coloured linen. This was remarkably effective, and greatly admired by the Duchess of York. Another new departure by this firm is the manufacture of coloured bordered breakfast cloths in many varieties. The old Bleach Linen Company, of Randlestown, has an exhibit of some delightful furnishing fabrics, with household and fancy linens, and a big variety of linens to be used for dress material. York Street Flax Spinning Company, of Belfast, has a stand filled with household linens of vast variety—handkerchiefs, costume linens and tweeds, and some most beautifully designed towelling and shirting linens.

WOMEN INVENTORS

There are twelve women among the 134 inventors represented at Olympia. One offers rubber pads to stop housemaid's knee; another has evolved a combined kettle and saucepan, in which the kettle is boiled by the saucepan's steam. A third woman has invented a screen with cut-out centre to catch the draught for a dying fire. A fourth has a window fastener which lets in fresh air but keeps out burglars.

We have considerably more inventions this year than last, said Mr. G. Drury Coleman, General Secretary of the Institute of Patentees, in an interview to-day. By arrangement with the Department of Overseas Trade, Mr. Drury Coleman is at Olympia throughout the Fair to give advice to exhibitors and to form a link with manufacturers, so that industry may benefit fully by invention. Among the new suggestions proffered at Olympia are a mustard squirter, a shaving brush which will not topple over, a spinner for lifting a motor car and twirling it round, a robot which smokes new pipes and breaks them in, a new beer which is non-alcoholic, and a machine driven by power or hand which enters up and balances account books, and bicycle handlebars controlled by springs which absorb shock before they reach the cyclist's hands and arms.

MODERN TELEGRAPHY

Modern telegraphy is represented at the British Industries Fair this year by Cable and Wireless Ltd. On the stand there is exhibited the actual apparatus that is

BRITISH TRADE IMPROVEMENT

MR. RUNCIMAN'S REVIEW

Mr. Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Trade, speaking at the British Industries Fair banquet in London to-night, said that the definite improvement in their home and overseas trade had continued.

"The increase in the imports of raw materials for our industries is significant—the increase in value in 1934 compared with 1933 was £27,000,000. This is an index of renewed confidence and greater industrial activity. Our export trade for 1934 compared with 1933 rose in value by over £30,000,000—or more than nine times the increase recorded a year ago.

"Our exports reached, in fact, a higher total than in any year since 1930. In particular, the exports of manufactured articles, which constitute the main bulk of our export trade, offer grounds for comparative satisfaction. The total value of the export of British manufactured goods has risen from £282,000,000 in 1933 to £305,000,000 in 1934—an increase of £23,000,000."

Mr. Runciman went on:—"This improvement in our export position is encouraging to us as a nation, and, coupled with our increased purchases from abroad, can be regarded from another, and perhaps equally important, angle—it is this country's contribution to the recovery of the world trade as a whole; and the Fair itself is an effort to set the wheels of world trade revolving less sluggishly."

OTTAWA AGREEMENTS

Lord Derby said that in the struggle for the recovery of our export trade after the depression we had been aided by the Ottawa agreements of two years ago, which "forged new economic links between the component parts of the Empire," and the full benefits of which we could hardly expect to see in the space of two years.

"The more we foster Empire trade, the stronger will be that Empire," he added.

BELFAST'S RATE INCREASE

HIGHER THAN THE ENGLISH AVERAGE

BELFAST, Monday.

Alderman James A. Duff, J.P., Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Belfast Corporation, addressing the Belfast Chamber of Trade to-day, declared that the increase in the rates that would be necessary in Belfast in the incoming year would classify them with the three highest rated metropolitan boroughs in London—Poplar, Bethnal Green and Bermondsey.

Last year, as in the present year, the rates of Belfast were 20 per cent. higher than the average rates in England and Wales. In 1932-'33 the average poundage rate throughout England, taking in all the authorities, was 10s. 10d. The Belfast rate was 12s. 10d.

He added that if a mistake had been made in the financial relationship between the Imperial Government and Northern Ireland they were going the wrong way about trying to rectify it through the pockets of the ratepayers.

"Our Corporation," said Alderman Duff, "has been waiting six weeks for counsel's opinion with regard to the principle of the levies. Just before I left my office I was rung up by the city solicitor, who informed me that opinion had arrived, and that on the constitutional question counsel's opinion confirms my point of view absolutely."

In addition to the rate mentioned above Belfast ratepayers have to pay a 2s. water rate, although water rates are included in the rates of many cross-Channel cities.

DUBLIN STAGE PRODUCTIONS

GAIETY THEATRE

Enthusiastic audiences greeted Sir Harry Lauder on his appearance at the Gaiety Theatre last night. To those whose acquaintance with Harry Lauder is confined to his gramophone record his singing on the stage at first is disappointing, but when his opening item is finished that feeling passes away, and his homely charm and quaint humour grip the listener, and make him call for more. As might be expected, he was most appreciated in some of his older songs, and had to respond to insistent recalls. His voice has the quality of youth, and his acting is perfect. The remainder of this week's programme is also very Scottish. Shield Brodie and Bernard Steele possess excellent voices, which they use effectively in rendering a number of Scottish songs. The Embert Sisters provide a comedy act which provoked much laughter, while there was also plenty of fun in the balancing act of Massona and Ronald and the conjuring tricks of Jack Ledair. A musical trio of considerable versatility are the Three Edmund Boys. Admirers of well-trained dogs will be interested in the remarkable performance of Victor Duncan's pack of Scotch collies.

OLYMPIA

There are 22 items on the Olympia's programme this week, and there is not a dull moment. George, Gertie and Ted were introduced in the opening scene, and they were warm favourites throughout. Gertie Gitana, with her saxophone and the girls, gave a very delightful performance, as did G. H. Elliott. An enjoyable number was the Big Broadcast, by Ted Ray; Eileen Audrey, G. H. Elliott and Gertie Gitana. Jack and Dave Sharpe took their full share in the programme, as did Tubby Turner, Florence Powell, Joy Dean and Harry Herbert.

QUEEN'S THEATRE

Mervill and Williams head the list of entertainers in Lorcan Bourke's revue, "Let's Go," which appears at the Queen's Theatre this week. The supporting cast includes the Bob Rema Trio, Jack Grieve and Bert Mack. It is light, cheery entertainment, and comes high in the list of this theatre's productions.

An exceptionally strong cast in the supporting film, "Change of Heart," includes Charles Farrell and Janet Gaynor, James Dunn, Ginger Rogers and Shirley Temple.

The King has approved a recommendation of the Home Secretary that Mr. W. S. Morrison, K.C., M.P., be appointed Recorder of Walsall, to succeed Mr. S. Lowry Porter, K.C., who has been appointed a High Court Judge.

NORTHERN M.P.'S ACTION FOR LIBEL

LONDON FIRM DEFENDANTS

ASSASSINATION OF SIR HENRY WILSON

From Our Correspondent.

BELFAST, Monday.

A LIBEL action brought by Alderman John W. Nixon, M.P., and a former district inspector of the Royal Ulster Constabulary, of Fort Cottage, Ballygomartin road, Belfast, against Messrs. Methuen and Co., Ltd., publishers, 36 Essex street, Strand, London, for alleged libel contained in a book called "Nomad," by Charles John McGuinness, published by defendants, came on for hearing in the Nisi Prius Court, Belfast, this morning, before the Lord Chief Justice and a special jury.

The Attorney-General (Right Hon. A. B. Babington), with whom was Mr. E. S. Murphy, K.C., M.P.; Mr. William Lowry, K.C., and Mr. J. D. Chambers (instructed by Mr. T. E. Alexander), opening the case for the plaintiff, said that he was an alderman of the Belfast Corporation and the member for the Woodvale Division of Belfast in the Northern Parliament. The plaintiff claimed that the book contained a very terrible libel upon him—the murder of a family called McMahon, which took place in Belfast on 24th March, 1922. As set out in the statement of claim, Owen, Bernard, Francis, Patrick, James and Gerald McMahon and Edward McKinney were all murdered at 8 Kinnaird terrace, Belfast, on that date.

The perpetrators of the murder, he proceeded, were never discovered, and to lay the responsibility for it at the door of any person was the most horrible charge that could be made. It was not only a charge of murder; it was a charge of seven murders, all done in cold blood. They were murders for which anyone could yet suffer the supreme penalty if the accusation could be proved. Further, it was a charge which, if not disproved, was calculated to bring upon the head of the person charged the resentment and revenge of a great many people who might think of reprisals, and he would be held up now and hereafter to the hatred and contempt of all citizens.

THE ALLEGED LIBEL

Counsel then read the following passage which is alleged to contain the libel:—

"The wiping out of the McMahon family of Belfast, father and sons, who were in no way affiliated with the I.R.A., will for ever remain as a stain on the well-spattered escutcheons of Ulster. One man, who has since been elevated to parliamentary honours, was charged with the order of execution of the McMahons, and is luckier than he knows to be alive to-day.

"The assassination of Sir Henry Wilson was, in my view, the direct result of his sanction of the Belfast murder pogrom. The Republican executioners never filled an order for a death sentence until the evidence was complete. Sir Hamar Greenwood, too, was very fortunate to live through the hostilities. Once the treaty was signed, no further reprisals were made, but the memory of the evil deed lives on."

The publication of the book, counsel continued, was not denied. That the statement was true of the plaintiff was not suggested, but it was claimed that the libel did not refer to the plaintiff, and that the words were incapable of any defamatory meaning.

"I think when you have heard the evidence," said the Attorney-General, "you will have no doubt whatever that this charge was intended to refer to the plaintiff, and that whether it was intended to refer to him or not that he is the only person, so far as the public are concerned, who fits the description that is given as the man who is responsible and charged with the execution. The libel contained two charges—the charge against the person charged with the murder and the charge against the person sanctioning them. Why, asked counsel, was one man (Sir Henry Wilson) named and the other not? It was because Sir Henry Wilson was dead and was outside the jurisdiction of the Court.

The Attorney-General continued that in 1922 the plaintiff was a district inspector of the police in charge of C District, which adjoins 8 Kinnaird terrace, the home of the McMahons. The jury would be told that he was the only member of the police who had been elevated to Parliamentary honours.

Counsel went on to quote from the book, which, he said, showed that McGuinness having served in the British Navy is next found in Derry in 1920, and he appeared to deal in murder not only as an author, but first hand. Let him read directly after the libel.

A HORRIBLE INCIDENT

"On the sectarian rioting of Derry I write as a combatant and eye-witness. . . . One incident in Bishop street is unforgettable. A Catholic labourer with whom I was acquainted tried to cross the street during a lull. Immediately he was picked off by an Orange sniper. His body lay in the middle of the roadway, a stream of blood running from the hole in his chest. Generally speaking, women folk were spared from the fire, although some suffered injuries trying to defend their men from murder."

"One old hag who lived close by repeatedly walked out of her house screaming vile and blasphemous epithets at the Pope and Catholics in general. We paid no attention to her at first until she hobbled over to the body of the murdered workman, but dipping handkerchiefs in the blood which surrounded him she shrieked with ghoulish glee. Three times she returned for more blood, kicking and abusing the corpse, and reviling the Pope.

"At last we trained our rifles on her, warning her off, but she misjudged her immunity and, cursing the mothers who bore us, insisted that we were the blood of —— and ——.

"'Let's draw lots and shoot her—that is not a woman, it's a devil,' I said to my companions. We drew and the task fell to me. As a warning to her I fired several rounds of random shot. My companions did likewise. Then during a lull she once more strode into the thoroughfare carrying white strips which apparently she was distributing amongst her neighbours as souvenirs of Papist blood. Just as she bent down I fired, so did the others, forgetting the lottery in their anger. The hag spun round and fell beside the body she was desecrating."

THE EVIDENCE

Sir Robert Lynn, M.P., said that he heard of the McMahon murders in 1922, and had read since the book "Nomad." The reference to one man who had since been elevated to Parliamentary honours was, in his opinion, a reference to Mr. Nixon, who was elected a member of the Northern Parliament in 1929. He was not aware of any police officer who was subsequently elected to Parliament except Mr. Nixon.

Dr. Wallace Linton, in evidence, said that it was quite impossible for Alderman Nixon to attend court. He was ill in bed, with a day and night nurse in attendance.

"A BOOK ABOUT NIXON"

Councillor Robert Hill said that he bought the book in a local bookshop, having been asked by one person if he had seen "the book about Nixon." Several other customers of his shop also referred to the book. Somewhat similar allegations were made against Alderman Nixon previously in a Derry paper, and he understood that Alderman Nixon got £1,000 damages on that occasion. When he read the book he thought Mr. Nixon was in grave danger of his life, and he brought the book to his solicitor, Mr. Alexander.

Mr. R. S. Packenham, a former Head Constable of the Royal Ulster Constabulary, said that he formed the opinion that the passage in the book referred to Alderman Nixon.

Mr. Warnock—How did you come to read the book?

Witness—Mr. Alexander lent it to me for the purpose of the action.

You had no notion of buying this book?—No.

Similar evidence was given by ex-Head Constable Geff.

Opening the case for the defence, Mr. E. Warnock, K.C., said that it was the first time a plaintiff had not appeared as a witness at such a trial. He knew that Alderman Nixon was very ill and, therefore, it was not open to him to make adverse comment upon his not appearing, but this much he was to say that the non-appearance of the plaintiff operated to the very great disadvantage of the defendants in fighting the case. It was only fair to Alderman Nixon, as a member of Parliament and a public man, for his clients to say they were satisfied there was no suggestion of any complicity on the part of Alderman Nixon in the murder of the M'Mahon family, and that any such suggestion was entirely without foundation.

It would be proved that 63 copies and six review copies were sold in Northern Ireland, 205 in the Irish Free State, and 725 in Great Britain. Outside the six counties Mr. Nixon was probably unknown. How far had he been damaged by the 63 copies which had been sold of a document which was certainly capable of two or three versions. He suggested that the number of people who read the paragraph and fixed the identity on Mr. Nixon and then put the sinister interpretation on it could be counted on the fingers of one hand.

His contention was that Mr. Nixon had suffered little damages, if there was a libel.

FOR THE DEFENCE

Mr. E. V. Rieu, managing director of the defendant company, said that from the political point of view he considered it was showing the Sinn Fein point of view in a way that all fair-minded British people would be interested in and accept at its face value. He took all steps he could to avoid libel and submitted the book to counsel. He had never heard of Alderman Nixon.

The Attorney-General—There is a statement by this author that he himself was guilty of murder. Did you think that was a proper thing to pass on to the public without inquiry?—In reading the passage, it never occurred to me that the man thought that he himself was guilty of murder; he thought he was carrying out a military duty.

Didn't the passage also contain a statement that McGuinness himself was one of the persons who helped to plan the "execution," as they described, of Sir Henry Wilson?—Not quite that.

"I sat with the boys as they planned."—I do not think it went quite as far as that.

Did you ask your lawyer friend about that?—We asked him about the whole book.

And you amended it by putting in "In what we consider was indisputable evidence" to water it down?

SIR HENRY WILSON

The statement I finally allowed was that the author sat with them and that they considered they had indisputable evidence of Sir Henry's connection with the Belfast pogrom.

The Attorney-General—I put it to you that you thought this a startling statement and would lead to the sale of your book and that you would sail as close to the wind as possible?

Witness—That is not fair comment.

Why did you not get someone to read the proofs over here?—I did not realise that anything in the book would offend British people in this part of the United Kingdom more than in my own part.

Mr. Babington went on to ask witness about other letters, particularly one in which McGuinness wrote to him that he had a claim for £2,000 against de Valera's Government, and that when the case came into court it would make excellent publicity for "Nomad." Witness agreed that he was anxious for the success of the book. He did not inquire from McGuinness who was meant in the passage complained of. He merely asked generally if there was any libel on the living. He missed the personal reference in the paragraph and now regretted it.

The hearing was adjourned until to-morrow.

COUNTY LOUTH HOSPITALS

CALL FOR A GRANT

From Our Own Correspondent.

DUNDALK, Monday.

At the meeting of the Louth Health Board in Dundalk to-day a letter was read from the Hospitals' Commission stating that the question of the proposed improved facilities for the hospitals in County Louth was occupying the attention of the Commission, and its recommendations in that respect would not be delayed longer than could be avoided. In this connection it was well for the Board to know that the present state of the Hospitals' Trust would not permit of further development of local authority hospitals for some time, as the allocations already made by the Minister out of his portion of the fund considerably exceeded the moneys available.

The Chairman said that the hospitals in County Louth had got nothing as yet from the hospitals' funds, and he thought they should ask the Minister to see that they were not forgotten.

It was agreed to apply to the Minister for a grant.

THE WILSON DAM

ENGINEERING SOCIETY PAPER

At a general meeting held last Friday of the Dublin University Engineering Society, with Prof. J. Purser, M.A., B.A.I., M.Sc., in the chair, Mr. J. McC. Balch read his paper on "The Building of the Wilson Dam at Muscle Shoals, Alabama, U.S.A." He described the elaborate construction camp which was built for the labourers, and how the foundation exploration was very expensive because of the rock being full of cavities.

The large concrete mixing plant was assembled on Jackson Island in midstream, and the concrete distributed by rail. Six coffer dams were constructed, and eighteen generators, to supply 600,000 h.p., were installed when the power house was built. The length of the dam is just under 5,000 feet, the spillway portion being 3,100 feet long. The dam forms the "corner stone" for the programme being developed by the Tennessee Valley Authority to provide work and power, and also to control the disastrous floods which are liable to occur in those regions.

The paper was illustrated by an excellent series of pictures, kindly supplied by the United States War Department.

Mr. T. N. Eustace, in proposing a vote of thanks, gave some interesting details concerning the system of locks, through which ships pass the dam. Mr. J. G. Herrick, seconding, described various purposes for which dams are built.

The following members also spoke—Messrs. J. M. Taylor (hon. treasurer), R. K. Dunlop, B.A.; W. D. Wilkinson, A. D. H. Martin, B. R. O'Connell, T. B. O'Loughlin, E. P. Purcell, E. G. F. Kennedy, B.A. (hon. recording secretary), and L. D. Latham (hon. correspondence secretary).

The Chairman in conveying the vote of thanks to Mr. Balch, remarked that, while the Wilson Dam was very large, it could not compare in height with many other modern dams.

Mr. Joseph Hill, a Warrington solicitor, and his wife were found shot dead yesterday at their bungalow on the Northwick road, Stretton, about five miles from Warrington.

THE ESTIMATE POSTPONED

COUNTY LEITRIM'S BUDGET

WARNING NOTE BY SECRETARY

From Our Own Correspondent.

CARRICK-ON-SHANNON, Monday.

WHEN the question of adopting the rates estimate for the year ending March 31, 1936, came up at the Leitrim County Council meeting to-day, Mr. T. C. O'Mahony, Secretary, submitted a report, in which he suggested adjourning the adoption of the estimate until about March 1, when they would have definite information in regard to the agricultural grant position.

"On making a general examination of your affairs," he stated, "I have concluded that the financial position is so unsound that unless effective remedial action is taken immediately a breakdown of the county services cannot be averted. On February 1 the general and subsidiary accounts were overdrawn by the sum of £31,557, and, in addition, there were payments authorised by you for subsidiary bodies and others amounting to £11,290. Your authorised maximum overdraft accommodation is limited to £30,000, and the treasurer, by letter dated February 5, stated that his directors have decided not to renew authority for that amount after February 28.

"Of your rate collection warrants for the year, which amount to £54,056, only £16,261 in cash was collected on February 1. This amount, with £1,226 credit notes handed in, represents less than one-third of the warrants. The warrants themselves indicate a most unhealthy position, since they contain no less than £11,502 uncollected rates brought forward from the previous year.

AGRICULTURAL GRANT

"The amount of the agricultural grant allocated to the county for the year was £38,705, of which £14,959 was received up to February 1."

He went on to deal with the Local Government Minister's letter warning the councils that the entire balance of the agricultural grant will become attached to the general fund to meet arrears, and added that he summoned all the rate collectors to his office and made them aware of the serious position, exhorted them to speed up the collection by effective action, and told them that unless they did so and lodged 60 per cent. by March 1 the County Council had decided to suspend them. All the collectors promised to make determined efforts to bring about an improvement.

He made a general examination of the estimates for the coming year, and it was clear that the rate proposed to be struck was insufficient. It was a statutory obligation on the Council to make each year a rate sufficient to meet their expenditure for such year.

RATES INSUFFICIENT

"A survey of your affairs for the past five years," he said, "indicates that the rates have been insufficient, as will be clear from the summary. In 1930 the Council had a credit of £6,634; 1931 a credit of £6,009; 1932 a credit of £5,176; in 1933 a debit of £7,428, and in 1934 a debit of £10,979. You will see by these figures that your prosperity gradually disappeared to a debit balance, as as present. The uncollected rate carried forward in 1930 was £9,403; 1931, £4,380; 1932, £4,676; 1933, £10,113, and 1934, £11,501.

"The most serious aspect of the estimate position for the coming year is that no provision has been made for the possibility envisaged in the Minister's letter of January 17 last, and which I have mentioned."

The Chairman—That is a serious report regarding the financial position of the Council.

The Council deferred the adoption of the estimate until March 1, the Council to send a deputation to the Minister to discuss the agricultural grant payment, the rates question, and arrears generally, and a proposal by Mr. Mooney providing a loan to wipe out the arrears, to be repaid over a period of years.

The following deputation was appointed to wait on the Minister:—Messrs. S. Flynn, T.D. (Chairman); B. J. Maguire, T.D.; A. Mooney and the Secretary.

LAND TRUST HOUSES

DECREE FOR RATES

At Howth District Court yesterday, before District Justice Reddin, the Dublin Corporation summoned a number of tenants of the Sailors' and Soldiers' Land Trust, Killester, for rates due.

Mr. Burke, solicitor, appeared for the Corporation.

Mr. J. Farrell (instructed by Messrs. J. H. Dixon and Co., solicitors) appeared for the tenants.

The tenants of the Trust maintain that they are not liable for rates, and the case had been before the Court on several occasions.

Mr. Farrell explained that the Attorney-General had ruled that he must have the statement of claim, and, under the circumstances, he (Mr. Farrell) asked for a further short adjournment.

Mr. Burke opposed this, and said that, no matter what way the case of the tenants went in the High Court, the rates due at present would have to be paid.

The Justice said that he would not grant a further adjournment, but, to facilitate Mr. Farrell, he would put a stay on the decrees.

He accordingly granted decrees, but allowed a stay in each case till the 31st March.

PROVIDING FOR HOUSE HUNGER

PROGRESS IN WATERFORD

MINISTER LOOKS AHEAD

From Our Own Correspondent.

WATERFORD, Monday.

MR. SEAN T. O'KELLY, Minister for Local Government and Public Health, motored from Dublin to Waterford this evening formally to open the site for the erection of a 115 houses at Slievekeale. This is the first section of the Corporation's scheme of 420 houses which are being erected in co-operation with the Government's housing plan.

The Minister was presented with an address of welcome by Mr. P. H. Pearse, Cumann Fianna Fail, Waterford. A guard of honour was supplied by the local Civic Guards, under the command of Chief Superintendent O'Halloran.

The Minister said that there was no work that the Government of the day or the local governing authorities could do that was of greater benefit to the country and the people than providing proper sanitary, decent housing accommodation, such as they were interested in pushing forward. It was a very significant and very helpful sign that they had the Church, State and municipality associated in what appeared to be a very simple function, but one that had a very important bearing on the future healthy and happy lives of the people. As Minister he was deeply grateful to the Bishop for coming there to honour him, and to show to everybody, though it was not necessary, the deep interest that he as pastor of the great flock of this diocese and city took in proper housing accommodation for the people. He believed that Waterford had a great future in store for it—a future of industrial and commercial prosperity. This would not be what it ought to be unless the local authority associated itself with the work. The Government did its duty by seeing that the ordinary working class people were provided with housing accommodation of a sanitary kind.

THE EXPENDITURE

Having recalled the passing of the Housing Act, 1932, Mr. O'Kelly proceeded to say that the Government's experience had been that the country, as a whole, gave its approval of the expenditure necessary to carry out their programme. The money had, of course, to be taken from the taxpayers, as the Government had not the money themselves, but the Government knew that the resources were in the country, and that once the problem was properly placed before the people any tax necessary would be readily and willingly met. The Government had endeavoured to see that everything necessary in the matter of material for the erection of houses was made in the country. This provided work, and the wages received were spent in the locality, and in this way the money came back to the community.

The Government appealed to the local authorities to join with them in carrying forward this good work.

"There is, in my opinion," the Minister said, "in this as well as in other cities in the country at least a ten years' programme of work before everybody concerned in building. There is no municipality going too fast for me or for the Government, and it will take at least another ten years to provide houses for those not alone who need houses to-day, but for those who will need them in the future."

Waterford, he said, had built a number of houses since 1922, but the rate of progress had not been at anything like what he would like to have seen it. He held that it was estimated in the 1929 census that at least 1,000 houses were needed in the city to provide accommodation for the people, most of whom were living in houses unfit for human occupation.

PLANNING

He would like that the Corporation should look at this problem in a big way, and not in a small and narrow way. They should view it in the light of the future development and planning of their city on lines that would not result in having houses flung together in such a way as to become the slums of the future, but keeping in prospect that churches, schools and playgrounds would have to be provided as well as the houses, with the result that the city would be a credit to the men of to-day, as well as to the people of the future.

The Most Rev. Dr. Kinane said that housing accommodation was of great importance, not merely from the temporal point of view, but also from the religious and moral standpoints. Extreme poverty and temporal wretchedness were not incompatible with the highest sanctity, though properly accepted they could lead to the very greatest types of sanctity. For the vast majority of them, however, a moderate degree of temporal comfort was necessary, or at least helpful for the spiritual advancement. Hence it was that such schemes of house-building were great assets in the temporal and religious aspects. They were necessary also to the true Christian family life; for without these amenities, which were impossible in the hovel and crowded tenement room, it would be impossible for the true family spirit to be maintained or developed. These poor dwellers in over-crowded rooms were deprived of one of the most potent influences for happiness in life.

The Bishop added that in certain towns in England this difficulty was met by a graduated system of rent in accordance with the capacity of the tenant to pay. He commended this to the consideration of the Corporation.

A total of 415 classes for all types of pure-bred dogs has been provided for the annual show of the Irish Kennel Club, which will be held (by kind permission of the Royal Dublin Society) at Ballsbridge on St. Patrick's Day next. ## CARLOW COUNCIL AFFAIRS

SPECIAL COURT CONCLUDES

ACCUSED MAN FOR TRIAL

From Our Own Correspondent.

CARLOW, Monday.

THE hearing at the Special District Court at Carlow, before District Justice O'Shea, was resumed to-day, when the evidence against Thomas Leech, Borough Rate Collector, was continued.

Mr. G. McGeeney, Local Government Board Auditor, in his deposition, referred to a receipt given on demand note Number 32, dated September 25, 1934, which showed that the accused, Leech, received the sum of £6 10s. in payment of borough rate demanded in said note from Patrick Carpenter, and paid by him to the accused man. The official receipt for this amount yet remained in the collector's books, and the amount collected had not been brought to account by the accused man. Witness also referred to a receipt given on demand note for water rate, Number 612, which showed that the accused man received the amount of £2 16s. 3d. from Richard Hearns on July 20, 1934, in payment of said rate. This amount was included in the arrears brought forward against Richard Hearns, and demanded from him on January 4, 1935. The amount had not been brought to account.

Witness produced the Water Rate and Town Rate Abstracts for the periods in question, and referred to the receipt dated March 29, 1934, Number 29, which showed that a sum of £1 on account of town rate was paid by Mrs. Lewis to the accused man on the said date. This sum had not been brought to account.

Witness produced arrears sheets. In the course of such audits on November 12, 1934, witness discovered that the sheets for the schedules of uncollected rates for the three years ended March 31, 1934, were all forged documents.

Witness stated that accused man was the Town Water Rate Collector for the Urban Council for the period under audit, and was responsible for the compilation of the schedules of uncollected rates.

SCHEDULES

Witness, continuing, stated that he inquired from the accused man why he back-dated them, and he said that he did so on the instructions of William A. Lawler, Town Clerk. Witness inquired from the accused man if he made the declarations to the schedules before a Peace Commissioner, and he replied that he did not. Witness inquired from the accused man whether the Peace Commissioner's signatures were on the schedules when he (accused man) had signed them, and he stated that they were not.

Witness referred to the said schedules of uncollected rates for the three years ended March 31, 1934, and stated that these sheets were incorrect, and that in several cases over-credits had been taken by the accused man by way of arrears.

Witness said that, from his examination, these sheets had been falsified to the extent of £69 at least, and that the accused man was the responsible officer for the compilation of same.

In respect of under-lodgments of town rate in bank account, as disclosed by the books of the Council, William A. Lawler informed the accused man in witness's presence that he had often been told of his under-lodgments.

Witness stated that, from his knowledge of some of the persons whose names appeared upon the list of uncollected rates, that if the rates had not been paid by them for the three years referred to in the sheets, they could have been recovered by the accused man.

Mr. Toomey (cross-examining)—Do you know, as a matter of fact, that there is a sum of between £170 and £200 due to this rate collector by the Carlow Urban Council?—I do not know, to my certain knowledge, that there is that amount due. I know there are moneys due to him.

Re-examined—Witness could not say what poundage fees were due to the accused man. The amount would be ascertained only when the present collector completed his investigations and discovered all the amounts collected on account by the accused man and not lodged by him, as these amounts would have to be deducted from his poundage fees. Assuming that there was no further deficit there would be at least £100 due to the accused man, subject to the sanction of the Department.

Christopher Dowling, Assistant Local Government Auditor, who assisted the previous witness at the audit, gave corroborative evidence as to the back-dating of the schedules, and said that he was present when the accused man stated that the schedules were not signed by a Peace Commissioner.

The accused man, in reply to the Justice, stated that he reserved his defence. He was returned for trial to the next Circuit Court at Carlow, bail being allowed.

SIX CHARGES

The case against James Doyle, Sub-Sanitary Officer, was then taken. There were six charges against the accused man of fraudulent conversion and making of false entries, conspiracy to forge and forgery, and uttering a false document.

M. McGeeney deposed that the accused man collected the rents from the tenants of the Kehoe Estate during the illness of Collector Leech, and that the accused man made under-lodgments to the extent of £6 15s. 7d., and when witness asked him why he failed to lodge for a long time he stated that he kept the money in the Town Clerk's office awaiting Thomas Leech's return.

Witness said that he discovered during the audit that some salary cheques issued by the Council in the accused man's favour were not cashed by him, but were lodged in the bank to the credit of the Council in respect of the Kehoe estate rents. Accused man told witness that he considered it was a good way of cashing his salary cheques.

Witness stated that after giving credit for these lodgments of salary cheques, amounting to £27 1s. 9d., there still remained the said sum of £6 15s. 7d. unlodged by the accused man in respect of the rents.

Continuing, witness stated that the accused man was collector of fair tolls for a considerable number of years, and when he (witness) demanded the fair tolls books the Town Clerk gave him one. This book ended with May Fair, 1932. When witness called for the further book in continuation of accounts, William A. Lawler informed him that no further book existed, but on the following day he admitted that there was a further book in existence, and said that it was written up by the accused man without his knowledge. Witness stated that he found a large number of tickets, purporting to have been issued, still remained in stock. William A. Lawler admitted in the presence of the accused man that the fair tolls books were written up to agree with the lodgments in the bank.

"The records of receipts and tickets issued," said witness, "are not genuine lists, and were not in existence prior to the date of commencement of the audit."

Witness said that the accused man admitted that he made up the fair tolls books from material supplied to him by Lawler from the financial statement book of receipts, and work out serial numbers of tickets to produce required amounts.

Witness further stated that over 10,000 fair tolls tickets purporting to have been issued could not have been issued having regard to the serial numbers of the tickets received from the printers and the serial numbers still in stock at the audit.

John O'Rourke then gave evidence.

The evidence having concluded, Mr. H. G. Donnelly, solicitor (for accused man), submitted that with regard to the charge of uttering there was no evidence against the accused man.

The Justice—From the evidence before me I am satisfied that there was an attempt to invent a document that was not in existence at the time.

The accused man, who reserved his defence, was returned for trial to the next Circuit Court at Carlow, bail being allowed.

At the conclusion of the Court, Mr. P. J. McEnery, barrister-at-law (for the Attorney-General), and Mr. H. K. Toomey, solicitor (for Mr. Leech), referred to the patience and indulgence shown by the District Justice during the lengthy hearing of the cases to all concerned.

A WELCOME APPEARANCE

BELFAST WIRELESS ORCHESTRA

PLAYERS GIVE FINE SHOW AT R.D.S.

THERE were large audiences at both the afternoon and evening recitals in the Members' Hall of the Royal Dublin Society, Ballsbridge, Dublin, yesterday, to welcome the first appearance at these gatherings of the principal wind and string players of the Belfast Wireless Orchestra. Many in the audience were familiar with the work of this orchestra over the ether, and it was an added pleasure now to see them in the flesh. The players forming the combination were:—Philip Whiteway (1st violin), Albert Fitzgerald (2nd violin), Frederick R. Amor (viola), G. Wykeham-George (cello), Thomas Davies (double bass), Harry Dyson (flute), David John (oboe), Richard Walthew (clarionet), William S. Bates (bassoon), and Vivian Gray (horn), with Mr. Frederick Stone at the piano.

The audience was not left long in doubt as to the ability of the players, as their opening piece was the famous Octet in F Major by Schubert for string quartet, double bass, clarionet, bassoon and horn. Like Beethoven's Septet the work runs to eight movements. It was composed by Schubert early in the year 1824, when he first entertained the idea of composing a great symphony. It is interesting to note also that it was written for the Count F. von Troyer, who was at the time chief officer in the household of the Archduke Rodolph, Beethoven's patron. The Count was himself a performer on the clarionet, and was immensely pleased with the beautifully expressive melody for that instrument in the Andante movement. The Octet takes over an hour to play and affords a wonderful revelation of Schubert's faculty for extension.

It was played by these Belfast players with fine understanding, and the changing moods of the different movements were so delicately painted that never did the listener tire of the work.

A Saraband and Gigue by Corelli, followed by a Chansonette by Hamilton Harty, with the suggestion of a Celtic background, gave David John opportunity to prove his parts as an oboe player, and later the same player took part, with Harry Dyson (flute) and Fred Stone (piano), in a Sonate for those three instruments by Loeillet. The work is well laid out in four movements, opening with an impressive Largo. Both here and in the reamining movements the ensemble was excellent, and the whole effect good.

At the evening recital there was a splendid rendering of the Mozart Quintet in E flat major, for oboe, clarionet, bassoon, horn and piano. There was also splendid warmth and depth in the playing of the Beethoven Serenade in D major, for flute, violin and viola. There was a lovely singing quality in the two stringed instruments, and the flute was always kept in restraint and never obtruded too much.

A Chaminade Concertino, for flute and piano, and Saint Saen's Tarantella, for flute, clarionet and piano, completed a most enjoyable day's work.

"CASTLEREAGH"

NEW PLAY AT THE ABBEY

Lord Castlereagh ............Richard Hayward.
James Hope ............J. R. Mageean.
Rev. James Porter ............Bryan Cullen.

In "Workers" and "Machinery," Mr. Thomas Carnduff gave us two interesting plays of Belfast life, and they revealed him as a man with an instinct for drama who might become important when his powers of expression developed. In "Castlereagh," which the Belfast Repertory Players are staging this week at the Abbey, he has become more ambitious, and, although the difficult task of dramatising history has proved a little beyond his present scope, it is not so very far beyond it.

"Castlereagh" suffers from the lack of a background, which would give the action of the play the political significance which it ought to have, but it suffers even more obviously from the melodrama of its first act. Lord Castlereagh himself only needed a horsewhip and a pair of black moustaches to convert him into the "villain" of the Victorian theatre, and when he announced his sinister plans for "that disciple of Satan, the Reverend James Porter," one almost expected the gallery to hiss. The artificial atmosphere goes with the fall of the first curtain, but it was unfortunate that such an impression should have been created.

In the second act Mr. Carnduff is again among people whom he knows—the plain people of the North of Ireland. The scene in the "Muddlers' Club" is natural and convincing, while its climax comes very effectively. From that point onwards the play improves. The efforts of the Ulster Nationalists are no longer melodramatic, and the Castlereagh who opposes them is no longer a wooden figure. Mr. Carnduff almost succeeds in showing us a man who, in spite of his apparent cynicism and brutality, really was actuated by a wrong-headed idealism, and even by a love of Ireland. The figure does not emerge with sufficient sharpness, but the attempt to draw it was courageous.

Lord Castlereagh, indeed, might have been more convincing if Mr. Richard Hayward's interpretation had been more lively. His performance was free from any definite fault, but, somehow, he did not seem to get as much from the lines as was in them. J. R. Mageean, by contrast, was excellent as James Hope, and another very good performance was given by Bryan Cullen as the clergyman. Harold Goldblatt made the best of his somewhat unsatisfying part, while Myrtle Adams and Nancy Cullen were also good. All the members of the company were word-perfect, and the production went smoothly.

A FIVE-DAY HORSE SHOW

ROYAL DUBLIN SOCIETY REPORT

THE FORTHCOMING INDUSTRIES FAIR

THE extension of the Dublin Horse Show to Saturday for the first time in 1934, and the success of the venture is referred to in the annual report of the Council of the Royal Dublin Society for that year.

The report says: "The success which has followed the introduction of a Saturday to the Spring Show, thereby enabling countless numbers in other walks of life to visit this event on what is now generally recognised as the weekly half-holiday, has resulted in the Horse Show Committee drawing the Council's attention to the great possibilities to be expected if the Horse Show were brought into line in this direction. The Council unanimously approved of the recommendation, and for the first time the Show was extended over the Saturday, with popular charges for admission.

"Although in this first venture the Society had to face the unfortunate newspaper strike, which prevented full publicity being accorded, nearly 18,000 persons attended the Show on this day. Apart from the numbers recorded, the enthusiasm displayed by the thousands who had been previously unable to attend the Horse Show was ample justification for this innovation, which the Council feel assured will be even a greater success in future years.

"The membership of the Society," the report states, "has been well maintained, as although the difficult economic conditions caused some increase in the number of resignations early in the year, the vacancies thus created were readily filled by those who were glad to avail themselves of this opportunity to join the Society."

GIFTS TO THE SOCIETY

Acknowledging presentations made during the year the report says: "The Council wishes to express its sincere and grateful appreciation of the gift by the President of the Executive Council of Saorstat Eireann of a very handsome trophy for competition in an international jumping competition, open to military officers of all nations, and to members of recognised Hunts from all parts of the world, to be held on the Saturday of the Dublin Horse Show. The Council notes with pleasure that this trophy was won for the first time by an officer of the Free State Army riding an Irish horse. Another valuable acquisition was a handsome wall clock for the Council Chamber. This fine specimen of the highest class of Dublin workmanship of over one hundred years ago was presented to the Society by Dr. Bohane, to mark his gratification at the compliment paid him by the hanging of his portrait on the walls."

Referring to the production of Handel's "Messiah" on December 19th, 1934, before an audience of over 5,000, the report observes: "The work was performed in its entirety in commemoration of the 250th anniversary of Handel's birth, and all who were present agreed that the occasion would form a landmark in the musical history of Dublin, where the 'Messiah' was first performed in 1741."

THE INDUSTRIES FAIR

On the proposal to hold an Industries Fair, the report says:—"Following a suggestion made by the Department of Industry and Commerce, the Council decided that the time had come to hold a Saorstat Industries Fair in conjunction with the Society's Showa at Ballsbridge, and authorised the Society's architects to prepare plans for the conversion of the South Hall so as to render it suitable for such a purpose, and for the extension of the East Hall to provide the necessary accommodation for horses and cattle. The work was commenced immediately after the Horse Show, and everything will be in readiness for the holding of the first Saorstat Industries Fair in conjunction with the Spring Agricultural Show in 1935."

The report records the loss sustained by the Society during the year by the deaths of Sir Henry Greer, K.C.V.O.; Dr. R. F. Scharff, Mr. George Fletcher Lord Monteagle, Mr. R. J. Moss and Mr. Thomas J. Hayes.

ST. PATRICK'S CATHEDRAL

ORGAN RECITALS

Two organ recitals will be given this week in St. Patrick's Cathedral by Dr. George Hewson—the first on Wednesday afternoon at 4.45, the second on Thursday evening at 8. The programme to be played contains many interesting items, which will probably be heard for the first time in Dublin. Bach will be represented by his wonderful Passacaglia in C minor, a work which displays the amazing resources of the composer; the French school by César Franck's great chorale in A minor; the modern English school by compositions of Harold Darke, Harvey Grace, Milford and Whitlock. Within recent years many organ compositions of outstanding merit have been written by British composers which are equal to those of the modern French and German school. A work by Festing, originally written for violin and thorough bass, most artistically arranged by Thalben-Ball, and, by request, Purcell's Trumpet Voluntary, are also included in the programme.

Dr. Hewson's next recital will be devoted to works by Handel and Bach, as this year commemorates their two hundred and fiftieth anniversary.

KING'S HOSPITAL SCHOOL

OLD BOYS' UNION DINNER

Mr. W. J. Howden presided over a large gathering of members of the King's Hospital School, Dublin, Old Boys' Union at the annual dinner held in the School on Saturday last.

The toasts of "The King" and "Ireland" having been honoured, Dr. A. Pollett, in proposing the toast of the School, congratulated the Headmaster on the splendid results which had been achieved within the past twelve months.

Responding, the Rev. J. J. Butler, Headmaster, referred to the pleasure it gave him to see so many old boys present at this and the various other functions which were held at the School.

Rev. Canon E. C. Hodges, Governor of the School, in proposing the toast of the Old Boys' Union, said that he was particularly glad to see the support given by the old boys to an association of this nature.

Replying to this toast, the President stated that he felt the Governors of the School were to be congratulated in electing on the Board one whose interests in the education of the youth was so well known and valued. He referred to the excellent work which had been done by Mr. W. F. Harkins, who had recently relinquished the position of hon. treasurer on his transfer to Banbridge, and on behalf of the Union it gave him much pleasure to ask him to accept from them a small token of their appreciation of his services.

Mr. Rupert Jeffares and the Rev. W. Anderson replied.

Mr. V. G. Molloy proposed the toast of the officers of the Union, and this was suitably responded to by Mr. S. Henchie.

ABBOT'S GLANCE WINS

Good Performance of Deslys in Longdon Hurdle

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

DERBY, Monday Night.

QUANTITY, rather than quality, was represented on the opening day of the Derby Meeting. The outstanding feature was the promising performance of Abbot's Glance, when winning the Elvaston Handicap Steeplechase. This four-year-old had proved himself smart over hurdles, having won six races. It was his first appearance over fences; yet, confidence in his jumping ability was reflected in the market, as he started favourite. He was the only four-year-old in the field.

G. Wilson rode a patient race on the winner, allowing him time to settle down. Making the turn to the straight, Brigadier-General Rotton's horse moved up. His challenge was so perfectly timed that, as the last fence was reached, he took the lead from Flambent.

He was not, however, able to draw away, as expected. His first experience over fences had tired him. As Tom Oliver challenged, Wilson had to ride hard on the favourite, who responded gamely, to reach the winning post in front.

The Nottingham winner, Rightun, was with the leaders until reaching the straight. Then he weakened as Flambent drew away, Announcer finished strongly, to deprive Flambent of third place.

Favourite Never Dangerous

An expensive failure was Intrition, in the Hunters' Steeplechase. He beat Lazy Boots, Alexena, and others at Haydock Park last month, on which form he stood out in a field of hunters. Intrition was among the rear division throughout, never appearing likely to win. Freetown, the only other horse seriously backed, did little better, finishing a long way behind the winner.

Double for G. Owen

G. Owen, who won on Square Inch earlier in the day, completed a double when steering Double Bell to victory in the Aston Hurdle. Zane Grey, who was made favourite, ran a poor race. He came on the scene in the straight, only to weaken after holding a prominent position approaching the last hurdles.

Ross of Mull made most of the running. He appeared likely to win until Double Bell challenged between the last two jumps.

With 12st. 1lb. on her back Deslys put up a good performance to win the Longdon Handicap Hurdle over two and three-quarter miles. Corracunna Lass led on the last circuit clear, only to fail to hold off Deslys in the straight. Though running on, Bayport, who started favourite, failed to reach the two leaders.

Bull Point, who started his hurdle racing career this season by winning four races in succession, broke down two hurdles from home, and he was destroyed.

Progress of Totalisator

I have mentioned more than once that the totalisator is steadily making progress in this country, and that receipts at the machine are increasing month by month. The interesting announcement was made to-day that the Racecourse Betting Control Board is now in a position to be able to distribute £7,500 for the general benefit of racing.

No official statement has been made on the subject, but there is reason to believe that it is substantially true.

Last year the Board made a grant of £5,000 for the encouragement of premium stallions, and it was most welcome at a time when the old King's premiums had been withdrawn and the Islington show did not seem to have much of a future.

The Call Over

The card on the Lincolnshire Handicap and the Grand National was called over at the Victoria Club this morning, and Flamenco was made favourite for the one race, and Golden Miller, as a matter of course, for the other.

Lord Rosebery's four-year-old has been backed by his trainer, and the present indications are that he is a certain runner if all goes well with him.

There was very little business done over the race, and I do not expect that there will be much until the week of the event itself.

The 9 to 2 offered against Golden Miller seems a short price, but it is doubtful whether these odds will be extended. Should he win the Cheltenham Gold Cup, as is likely, he will be at an even shorter price.

I imagine, however, that Thomond II. will keep a good place in the market until the day of the race. He is not to be given a serious race before he runs at Liverpool.

Selections

Racing will be continued to-morrow at Derby, where there are likely to be good fields, as there were this afternoon. ALEXENA is handicapped to win the Derbyshire Handicap Steeplechase, which is for horses that have not been given more than 11st. 7lb. in the Grand National.

The Rangemore Steeplechase may be won by KIRKWALL, who will probably be a fancied candidate for the National Hunt Steeplechase at Cheltenham; and the Burton Hurdle Race may go to SIR CRISPEN.

A "NATIONAL" TEST

Alexena Gets Preference to Crafty Alice

CRAFTY ALICE, who was on offer at 25 to 1 at the first call-over on the Grand National, is an interesting competitor for the Derbyshire Handicap Steeplechase to-day. She will be ridden by her owner, Mr. Tom Walls, junior, son of the well-known actor, who trains her at Epsom.

This event is for horses who were entered in the Grand National and allotted a weight of not more than 11st. 7lb. The distance is three miles. On her last appearance Crafty Alice ran second to Mellburne in an amateur riders' race at Hurst Park. She made most of the running and jumped boldly all the way. There is no doubt that if she reproduces that form she will be difficult to beat here.

Delaneige, having opposed Golden Miller last Saturday, gives way to Brienz. This nine-year-old has not been impressive in his last four outings. I cannot fancy him with 12st. 5lb. Theras has been well employed at home since winning a two miles steeplechase under top-weight at Leicester in December. He is undoubtedly a better horse over a longer distance. I much prefer him to his stable companion, Kiltoi.

Excuses were made for Prince Madoc when he failed to justify favouritism at Nottingham in December. As he has not run since, it is probable that he has been on the easy list. Huic Holloa does not improve. He was well fancied in Reynoldstown's race at Nottingham.

Slater was impressive when narrowly beaten by Chenango and The Brown Talisman at Lingfield Park last month. Though it is a long time since he won a race he seems to be better treated here than for some time.

Alexena is strongly fancied. She has been a model of consistency, yet will be receiving weight from all her rivals. She was weighted for this before running second to Reynoldstown at Derby last week. That was about her best performance of the season. I shall give a confident vote. CRAFTY ALICE may be the next best.

Oliver's Corner should beat Friar's Belle in the Burton Hurdle on Nottingham form. Eldorado, a winner over the course, showed a return to form when fourth to Ballyford at Haydock.

BALLYFORD

has been charged 7lb., but it should not be sufficient, and I select him.

NEGRO,

a useful class long-distance performer on the flat, should win the Anglesey Hurdle. On his last appearance over obstacles at Liverpool in March he finished in front of such proved hurdlers as Free Fare, Gay Light and Wenceslas.

LONDON BETTING

GOLDEN MILLER AT 9 TO 2

FLAMENCO FAVOURITE FOR LINCOLN

Golden Miller, as the result of his impressive win at Sandown Park on Saturday, strengthened his position at the head of the Grand National market. The only bet struck was £900 to £200. His price closed at 9 to 2 agst.

There was very little doing on either card. Flamenco was noticed to win £3,000 at 100 to 9 for the Lincolnshire. Commander III. was backed to 100 to 6 to win £3,500, leaving 15 to 1 the best offer. Trifles went on North Devon and Celadon at their quoted rates.

For the Grand National, Thomond II. had friends to win £1,300 at 8 to 1 agst. Delaneige was backed to win £1,500 at 100 to 7 agst. Double Crossed, Thomond II.'s stable companion, was noticed at £500 to £20, leaving 22 to 1 the best offer.

WORK AT THE CURRAGH

This was a grand mild morning, and some of our trainers were pretty busy with their charges.

BEHAN gave Poor Jack, Culleen Actress and Peace Conference a useful spin over seven furlongs. Grand Circle cantered five furlongs steadily. Olinda and the two-year-olds covered four furlongs.

JAMES CANTY'S St. Ultan, Superstitious, Denis Hannon, O'Falloch gelding (3yrs.) and Representation went a mile and a quarter at a steady pace. The two-year-olds all cantered three furlongs.

COLLINS'S Templetown, Colin Star, Battlestown, Upshot and Doonbeg had easy six furlong cantering exercise. The two-year-olds cantered four furlongs.

DAWSON'S Double On, Shady Lane and Royal Band cantered five furlongs. The two-year-olds cantered.

FETHERSTONHAUGH'S Yellow Furze and Anchor Man travelled a mile and three furlongs at a nice steady pace on the flat. Scandal, Queen Christina and Happy Friar cantered steadily six furlongs. The two-year-olds cantered.

PARKINSON'S Sallins, Moonflaw, Cherry Pip, No Booking, Merry Battle, Molino, Silver Salt, Clear Diamond, Bachelor Philip, Brown Boy, Bagged Fox, Berceuse, and Stand Off all cantered a mile and a half. The two-year-olds, Brawl and Port Glenone, cantered four furlongs.

SLOCOCK'S two-year-olds cantered the same distance steadily. The older horses had healthy exercise.

DEATH OF MILLENNIUM

A Great Sprinter and Winner of Hurdle Races and 'Chases

FOLLOWING his accident at Baldoyle last Saturday, when he fractured a leg, Millennium, an aged son of Milesius and Ecila's Sister, the property of the Hon. Mrs. Brinsley Plunket, had to be destroyed. Millennium's record is a remarkable one. He ran in 49 races; won 22 and dead-heated for another, and was placed in 11 others. He had 11 wins and a dead-heat on the flat; 8 hurdle and 3 steeplechase wins.

Perhaps, his most outstanding performances were when equalling the course record at Manchester over 6 furlongs, in June, 1933; winning the Feltrim Hurdle Race at Baldoyle, in January, 1934, carrying 13-12—which is believed to be a hurdle race record for the British Isles—and winning in a canter the Tipperary Plate at Naas, last June, carrying 12-9, giving 19lb. to Reviewer and 14lb. to Cottage View.

SPORTING GOSSIP

Homeward's Foal

Our Curragh Correspondent states that Mr. John Doyle's Homeward (dam of Greek Jim) has foaled a chestnut filly by Beaudelaire.

After 28 Attempts

Square Inch, winner of the Derwent Selling Handicap Steeplechase at Derby yesterday, had previously made twenty-eight attempts to win a race. He had been unsuccessful on the flat, over hurdles and over fences.

New Starting Gate

A new type of starting gate will be brought into general use during the next flat racing season. It consists of a net over the usual strands of webbing. It was experimented with at several meetings, including Sandown Park, last year. Its object is to prevent horses and jockeys from becoming entangled in the strands.

Death of Mr. John Kelly

The death is announced at his home, Chadville House, Cappawhite, Co. Tipperary, of Mr. John Kelly, well known as a breeder of thoroughbred bloodstock. He bred and owned Shanballymore, winner of the Irish Derby and a King's Plate at the Curragh in 1911. With Kilmucklin, also of his own breeding, he won races at Leopardstown and Cork Park in 1908, and another useful one that he had and owned was Chadville.

Southern Hue's Owners

Pointer for N.H. Meeting

Top Toi, who made his first appearance under N.H. Rules when he won the Hunters' Steeplechase at Derby yesterday, is engaged in the National Hunt Steeplechase and the Foxhunters' Steeplechase at the National Hunt meeting. It is probable that he will contest the National Hunt Steeplechase, after which he is likely to run in the Liverpool Foxhunters' Steeplechase the day following the Grand National. He will be ridden in his races by Mr. P. Moseley, who won on him yesterday.

COURSING

THE NATIONAL MEETING

Ocean Monarch a 4 to 1 Chance for the Derby

BY OUR COURSING CORRESPONDENT.

THE Irish Cup winner, Mr. Patrick O'Brien's Ocean Monarch, will start the hottest favourite that has so far been slipped for the puppy Derby at Powerstown Park. A fortnight ago he was a 7 to 1 chance, but in the meantime has hardened to 4 to 1, and should he be favourably drawn to-day, he will probably leave off at a point or two shorter odds.

At the same time, the Tipperary Cup winner, Miss Rank's Jump Round, has shortened in price, being now at 6 to 1; then come Welcome Wind, at 10 to 1; Balline Laddie and Battle Fare, 12 to 1; Bright and Blustery, 15 to 1; and Clogh Magpie, Fargo Express, and Ground Staker, 16 to 1.

Mr. O'Brien's qualifier for the Oaks (32), Ocean Glory, on whose chances he was particularly sweet, has been taken out, and the favourite now is Balline Lass (at 4 to 1), with Blue Skin at 6 to 1, the most fancied of the others being Captive Princess, Daisy Breaker, March Cutlet, and Silent O Moy at eights.

The "form" dogs in the Derby are, of course, Ocean Monarch and Jump Round. It is thought, however, that the longer and heavier stretch at Powerstown Park may reveal that Jump Round is not the excellent performer we ranked him at Kilsheelan; but his displays in that 32 all-aged stake were convincing enough, in all truth, to entitle him to be still regarded as a distinctly useful puppy; for did he not put out, among others, the smart and well-tried Frank Refusal and Brilliant Cutlet?

A good deal will depend on the draw, but, while I cannot see the Irish Cup winner beaten if he reproduces the Clonanna form, I think Bright and Blustery and one of the "Kilnaglorys," together with Jump Round, should show up prominently. Bright and Blustery won the Kingdom Derby in October, and on the same ground (Tralee) ran up for the Kingdom Cup (32 all-ages).

English nominators for the International Cup are: Messrs. J. V. Rank, Edwin Baxter, E. Dearman, E. A. Vivian, and Arthur Callanan. It is a particularly strong entry, and Finnaun and Dorlcote may be thereabouts at the finish on Friday.

The draw will be held to-day in the Town Hall, Clonmel, at 12 o'clock.

DUBLIN SEASON CLOSES AT BALLYMUN

Coursing for the season in Dublin came to an end yesterday at Ballymun, where the St. Margaret's Club brought off an extra fixture, with a card of half-a-dozen stakes, including the Metropolitan at 3 guineas each, with £30 for the winner. The hares ran stoutly throughout, and the sport was the best seen on the ground this season.

The Metropolitan resulted in a division between two veteran open coursers of the North Kildare Club—Mr. Morrin and Mr. Joseph Gorry, for whom Kennel Boy and Good Print produced their best form of the season, each going with a good rattle to the hare, Kennel Boy in particular showing fine pace in his third round course with Ballyeaston. Some smart puppies were slipped in the Ball-Court Stakes, but easily the best of them was the winner—Mr. R. McCrea's Jigger Jill. Another smart performer was Mr. T. Sheehan's Sweet Rebecca, which got to the end of the Forest Stakes for eight bitch puppies.

THE MIDLAND LEAGUE

Close Finishes Promised in some Sections : Epworth's Lead

By Our Special Correspondent.

SINCE I had last an opportunity of dealing with play in the Midland League a considerable number of results has come to hand, and in many sub-sections the winner can now be discerned. In A.1 Epworth have led all along, and with 41 points out of a possible 56 they seem certain to win, as their nearest opponents, Dalkey, have obtained only 35 out of 56, and each finishes the programme with the next match. In this sub-section Dundrum beat Dublin Friends 6-2, but neither is in the running. In A.2 Pembroke "A" and Dawson are level at the top with 38 points, and, as each has to play one more match, the issue is in doubt. Dawson came level with a recent big win over Caledonia—8-0.

In B.1 Monkstown beat Charleston, and this win made them sure of the top position, their closest rivals being Ailesbury, who with only one more match to play are ten points to the bad. St. Columba's have been doing well in B.2. They beat Epworth 2nd 5-3, drew with Christ Church, and, greatest victory of all, beat Lucan 5-3, this being the first time that the latter team was beaten this season. At the same time, Lucan, with an impressive series of successes, have made certain of the top place. They beat Christ Church 7-1, George's Hall by a similar score, and St. Jude's, 6-2.

A great finish is promised in C.1, in which Harold's Cross are at present in front. Ailesbury 2nd beat Dublin Friends 2nd 7-1, and Dublin Friends 2nd beat Adelaide 6-2. Woodbrook, with only one match to play, are 11 points ahead in C 2, and, therefore, cannot be deposed. Oxford come second, and they beat Dawson 2nd 5-3. Glenageary 2nd should win C 3, and they beat Clarinda 6-2, Clarinda drew with Salthill 4-4, and Central beat St. Michan and St. Paul's 6-2.

A GOOD RECORD

Beaumont have won C 4 with the fine record of 49 points out of a possible 64, and they wound up by beating Silchester 8-0. Rathmines Parish drew with Garda 4-4, and the latter team have secured second place. St. Andrew's beat St. Jude's 2nd 5-3 in D 1, and drew with Christ Church 2nd. Rathmines Y.M.C.A. beat Christ Church 2nd 8-0, and Harold's Cross 2nd drew with St. Jude's 2nd 4-4. This sub-section is providing a close race between Old Corps and Rathmines Y.M.C.A., and, though not in the lead for the moment, Bray look like winning D 2, in which Lucan 2nd beat St. Columba's 2nd 5-3, Rathmines Parish 2nd beat Clarinda 2nd 5-3, and Clontarf beat Rathmines Parish 2nd 7-1.

Seapoint 2nd are sure to win D 3, Caledonia 2nd come next, and drew with Dalkey 2nd 4-4. George's Hall 2nd beat Dalkey 2nd home and away, 5-3 each time, and also beat Sandymount Recreation 6-2. Hibernians 2nd seem certain to win D 4. They beat Salthill 2nd 5-3, Salthill 2nd beat Ormond quay 5-3, and St. John's beat Ormond Quay 5-3.

E 1 is providing a close fight between the three leading teams, and Charleston 3rd beat Mayfield 7-1. York are easily first in E 2, and Lucan 3rd, who are second, beat Rathmines 2nd 8-0. Abbey Church have an easy win in E 3. They beat Oxford 2nd 7-1, Beaumont 2nd beat Seapoint 3rd 6-2, and Central 2nd beat Seapoint 3rd 7-1.

St. Columba's 3rd have had a runaway success in F 1, in which St. Philip's 3rd beat George's Hall 3rd 6-2, and Garda 3rd 5-3. F 2 is providing a great finish, and St. Peter's beat Salthill 3rd 5-3, and drew with Clontarf 2nd 4-4.

A GOOD IRISH TEAM

Reflections on the Final Trial at Londonbridge Road

THE weather conditions for the final trial on Saturday at Londonbridge road were deplorable—in fact, so bad did things become about three o'clock that the match was abandoned with about twenty minutes to go. Considering the great disadvantages, the play was quite fast, and the hitting clean and hard. There was no doubt about the superiority of the Home Irish XI., especially their front line, and half-time found them five goals ahead.

The goalkeepers and centre halves changed places at the interval, and there was no further scoring. Miss Peatt also changed from left to right half on the "Anglo" side, but earned her place on the Irish XI. in the former position. We were rather surprised that Mrs. Gamble was not given a trial with the better forward line, as she never got a chance of showing her worth in the "Anglo" line. Miss Burns, of course, was giving a splendid display in the left inner position on the "Home" XI., and, in addition, is accustomed to Miss Barry's play, but the Maids' player was doing well enough against impossible odds to merit more consideration.

HOW THEY PLAYED

Miss Parsons was undoubtedly the better goalkeeper, and after the first half there was never a doubt about her selection. Miss Carter got most of the work in the opening half, but was never convincing. Her clearances were short and usually on to the sticks of the oncoming forwards.

Misses Daly and Mahony made an ideal combination at full-back, showing a fine understanding of each other's play.

Miss Kearney was the best back on the field, both in attack and defence. Her marking of Mrs. Towers in the second half was a treat to watch. Miss Peatt, too, showed up very well in this respect, and Miss Barry, one of the strongest players in the game, was held in check after half-time.

Mrs. McMullan, who, as Miss Marshall, gained her place last season, was in good form, and showed to greater advantage than Miss Huet. Miss Peatt gave a finished display in both wing half positions. We were sorry Miss Whiteside was not given a trial at centre on the "Anglo" side, as Miss Gordon made a very indifferent showing, and the Pembroke Wanderers' half would prove a good "sub." for Miss Kearney, should the occasion arise.

On Saturday's play four of the forward selections were automatic, but few would agree with Miss Harmon's selection in preference to Miss Moore. The Maids' wing, though lacking anything like the number of opportunities accorded the Munster player, gave a very convincing display, and her exclusion from the side was very disappointing. However, taking the team all round, it is well balanced and should do well against Wales on Saturday week at Crumlin. The latter lost their first match to Scotland on Saturday last by 4-2.

For the Irish match against Scotland Miss Carter replaces Miss Parsons in goal, and the following substitutes were chosen for the season: Misses K. Barry (Munster), Dunne (Ulster), Mrs. Gamble (Leinster), Misses Huet (Leinster), Marshall (Ulster), McSweeney (Munster), Moore (Leinster) and Tolland (Ulster).

ANOTHER DRAW

Muckross and Optimists "B" failed to reach any decision in the re-play of their third round Cup tie, even after playing thirty minutes' extra time. Optimists gained a comfortable lead of three goals in the first half, but Muckross fought back and brought the score level before full time. In the extra time Muckross were first to score, but Optimists equalised, and before the finish neither team seemed capable of scoring, so worn out were they with wind and rain. The second re-play was fixed for Saturday next at 1 p.m.

The Junior Trial at Park avenue was so badly marred by weather conditions that the selectors decided to hold a further trial on Friday next before selecting the XI. to meet Connaught on 8th March.

TRINITY RECOVER WELL

DUBLIN UNIVERSITY ......... 3
GLASGOW UNIVERSITY ...... 3

Dublin University made a good recovery against Glasgow University at Trinity Hall yesterday, and after being 3-1 down at half-time, scored twice in the second half to draw the match. Their stamina helped the home team considerably; for Glasgow were considerably the better side in the first half. Their half-backs played excellent hockey, and kept the forwards constantly plied with good passes, while the whole team generally seemed to have better stickwork than the Trinity players. The heavy, bumpy pitch, however, had its effect on the visiting players; for they slowed down considerably after the interval, and on the run of the play in the second half Trinity well deserved their draw.

Glasgow took the lead early on, Misses Stewart and Taylor beating Miss M. Simpson with good shots. Miss Perry reduced the lead, but Miss Stewart got a third for Glasgow before the interval. Trinity took command in the second half, and Miss L. Radcliffe, much their best forward, scored twice; but the Glasgow goalkeeper, Miss Faide, and the right full back, Miss Gemmell, played very well, indeed. Teams:—

Dublin University—Misses M. Simpson; B. Simpson, G. Pike; P. Griffin, M. Menary, K. Brown; H. Boyle, A. Perry, L. Radcliffe, D. Radcliffe, B. Good.

OPENING GAMES IN IRISH CHAMPIONSHIP

The Irish championship commenced yesterday at Fitzwilliam, when three matches were played. Owing to illness one or two of the leading players have not been able to enter, but there should be keen competition for the title held by R. W. S. Greene, who is not defending. Much the best of yesterday's games was that between T. G. McVeagh and A. L. Moore. The former shows almost as much ability at squash as he does in any other game that he plays, for his speed about the court and retrieving ability are remarkable. Moore played extremely well, and there were several long and well-contested rallies, but he could not win a game, though he recovered from 7-1 down to 8-all in the third game. Results:—

First Round.

P. D. McWeeney beat D. McGillicuddy—9-3, 9-2, 9-2.

T. G. McVeagh beat A. L. Moore—9-2, 9-5, 10-8.

Second Round.

C. A. Jackson beat T. Neary—9-5, 7-9, 8-10, 9-5, 9-6.

BOXING

HARVEY'S CHALLENGES

Len Harvey, the former British and Empire heavy-weight champion, has come out with a sweeping offer to Jack Petersen, the British champion, and Walter Neusel, the German. He says that he is prepared to meet Petersen for £500 a-side whenever and wherever he likes. If Petersen will fight at the light-heavy-weight limit Harvey will lay him 6 to 4 on the result. Harvey is also willing to meet Neusel for £500 a-side.

It is not likely that Harvey's challenge will be accepted by Petersen, who, his father says, will not be seen in the ring again before June. In any case, Petersen is not considering a third meeting with Harvey.

HUNTING

WARD UNION HOUNDS

It was wretchedly wet and stormy when the Ward Hounds met on Saturday at the 9-Milestone, but the comparatively small field that braved the elements enjoyed quite a nice hunt.

An outlying stag, which was reported to be in the neighbourhood of Ashbourne, was soon located on Mr. T. Plunkett's land at The Rath. On hounds being laid on they circled through Dunrea and by the back of Ashbourne Village, before going away straight across the Peter Simple course to Palmerstown. Crossing the road at the graveyard they hunted right down to the river, near Greenogue, but wheeled back sharply and went through Whitestown into Fieldstown East.

They ran by Mooretown and Kileen, almost to Drishogue; but, twisting and doubling through this intricate country, the stag again succeeded in baffling hounds, and was left an outlier between Cabragh and the Wren's Nest.

THE ISLAND HOUNDS

On Monday, February 11th, from Clondaw we started by finding and killing a badger in Jeff's Brow. After that we had a lot of hunting, mostly round Ballincash Bog, during which hounds marked two foxes to ground, but scent was too poor to force any foxes away.

On Wednesday, 13th, from Clohamon we started with a nice hunting run from Knockanure, first to Kilrush, where our fox was headed, and came back past Knockanure and on to Curraduff; then past Ballyboy to Ballamon, from where, after a longish check, hounds hunted slowly into Butcher's Knock, where he was left. This was a hunt of 60 minutes with a three-mile point, but it was mostly slow.

Thursday, 14th, at Clogh was the best day of the week. The bitches were out, and finding at once in Coolishal hunted at a good pace towards Gorey and across the main road right-handed by the workhouse. Then through Farm Hill and Coolnastadd, crossing the railway near Clogh, and through Moneycross to Cain to ground. A good 60 minutes, with only one real check. We found two foxes on Light House Hill, one of which we hunted through Ballinclare to Ballinamona, where we lost him. The other was marked to ground close at hand.

At 4 o'clock in the evening, when a good many of the field had gone home, we found a number of foxes in Toberanieran, which had not been hunted before this year. Hounds stuck to one, and after several rings round he crossed the main road and went on through Pallinclay over the Light House Hill, and was killed in the gorse at the far side at 5.30. A good performance on the part of the bitches. There was only one of the field left at the finish to receive the brush.

Saturday, 16th, at Ballinkeele was a terrible day, except for the kind hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. G. V. Maher, who put everyone in good heart to face the wind. We had a passable hunt in the morning from Ballinastraw to Culleton's Gorse, then left-handed to Clonmore, where scent gave out. Scent was so bad for the rest of the day that hounds could not even own the line when in the same field as the fox. We found a brace in Nolan's Gorse, both of which got to ground almost at once.

SENIOR SCHOOLS' CUP

MOUNTJOY REACH SEMI-FINAL ROUND

MOUNTJOY ......... 14 HIGH SCHOOL... 3

Mountjoy qualified for the semi-final round of the Senior Schools' Cup yesterday when, at Donnybrook, they defeated High School by 1 goal and 3 tries to 1 try.

The winners fully deserved their success. They were the better team all round, and their backs, handling and combining well, had many sharp bouts of passing. The forwards, too, showed much dash in the loose, and the Mountjoy boys are sure to give their opponents in the next round—the winners of the Belvedere College-Wesley College match—a close game. C. Webster, J. McGibney, and J. McAllister were the best of a smart pack; and J. A. Mattson, R. Gray, J. A. Heaton, and T. H. Coulter were the most noticeable backs. On the High School side, C. L. Keegan, R. Chillingworth, A. D. Mason and W. D. Boyle were prominent backs; and the best of a hard-working, but outweighted, pack were M. S. Rooney, J. C. Gilmore, and H. W. Hill.

High School held their own well in the first half, but midways through Mattson crossed for a try for Mountjoy, following a good break through by McAllister. After ten minutes' play in the second period Boyle got over for a try for High School after a strong forward burst. Thus the points were equal, but Mountjoy had all the better of the subsequent play, and tries came at frequent intervals from McGibney, Tesking, and Gray, and the last-named converted his own effort. Teams:—

Mountjoy School—T. H. Coulter; G. T. Geoffroy, J. A. Mattson, R. Gray, C. W. Tesking; J. A. Heaton, R. W. Browne; J. McGibney, C. Webster, M. Sofran, G. R. Higgins, C. C. Brown, J. McAllister, E. W. Roe, J. G. Wilkie.

TWO BRILLIANT TRIES BY H. M. MURRAY

GLASGOW ......... 13 QUEEN'S ............ 8

Glasgow University defeated Queen's University at Cherryvale, Belfast, yesterday by 2 goals 1 try (13 points) to a goal and a try (8 points). Glasgow were superior in the tight scrums, and their fast and nippy backs gave them an advantage over Queen's, whose forwards were lively in the loose, but the handling of the backs was not crisp enough to beat close marking and keen tackling. The feature of the game was the work of H. M. Murray (Glasgow), who scored two brilliant tries in the second half, and converted both.

Play was scrappy in the first half until near the interval, when Robertson beat the Queen's defence for a try, which Murray did not goal. Soon afterwards Queen's made a raid and Dobbin crossed, but T. Groves failed to convert. Murray gave Glasgow the lead with a grand try in the second half and converted with a well-judged kick from the touch-line.

Queen's rallied, and McKibbin scored a try, which Groves goaled to make the scores level. Then came Murray's second try, which he again goaled and give his side victory.

NORTH'S SUCCESS

Royal High School (former pupils) were beaten by North of Ireland at Ormeau yesterday by 3 tries (9 points) to 2 tries (6 points). Their forwards got the ball from the majority of the scrums, but they did not press home their superiority in the first half. Their scrum half, Keith, was injured and their backs did not move so smoothly later. High School were the stronger side in the first half, but after A. Stewart had cut through for North he gave Malcolmson a fifty yards clear run in for a try. Adrain failed to convert. The Edinburgh forwards rushed to the North line, and W. Emslie crossed for a try, but Brotherstone's kick went narrowly past. Before the interval W. Emslie took a quick pass from Keith, cut through and opened up for Logan, who sent Park in to score far out. Brotherstone sent wide.

After the interval Keith was injured stopping a forward rush, and while he was off Corry scored for North. Malcolmson failed with the kick, and the scores were level. Malcolmson scored after twenty minutes, but the try was unconverted.

THE TEST MATCH DRAWN

BOWLERS AGAIN HAVE BETTER OF MATTERS

GEORGETOWN, Monday.

WHEN Wyatt and Paine resumed England's second innings to-day safety was again the keynote of the batting, and it was 75 minutes before 30 appeared on the board. With the appearance of the slow bowler, Neblett, Paine at last decided to hit out, and, after surviving a confident appeal for a catch at silly mid-off by R. Grant off Neblett's second ball, he hit the third for 6. Paine nearly played on to the fourth ball, and was out to the fifth, finely caught at deep mid-off by G. Grant, after batting 72 minutes for 18.

When 24, and with the total at 47, Wyatt survived a very confident appeal for a catch at the wicket off Constantine. Bowling medium-fast, Constantine kept the batsmen subdued, and he was well supported by brilliant fielding. Hammond, who was in 18 minutes before he opened his score, was not comfortable, and in trying to cover up a good-length ball from Constantine was clean bowled for a single. Smith was dropped by Martindale off a skier to deep mid-on, but two balls later was bowled in hitting out at Constantine, who had now taken three for 9 in 16 overs, nine of which were maidens. Hendren helped Wyatt to play out the few minutes remaining before lunch was taken at 69 for four.

TWO QUICK WICKETS

Wyatt appeared to be uncomfortable when play was resumed after lunch. His timing against the fast bowlers was at fault, and he was several times beaten all ends up by deliveries which barely missed his stumps. Hendren was in no hurry to get runs, and he proceeded to play himself in and watched every ball carefully.

Spectators were aroused from their lethargy when Rolfe Grant captured two quick wickets. At 130 Wyatt was completely beaten by a leg-break and lost his off stump, while six runs later Leyland attempted to cover up to an off-break and was bowled. Wyatt, who specialised in hooking and cutting, defied the attack for four hours, though he was uncomfortable at times and gave several chances. He hit seven 4's.

Hendren, who was unusually quiet, had given a chance prior to Wyatt's dismissal, when, with the total at 134 and his own score 22, he was dropped at short square-leg by Rolfe Grant off Hylton's bowling.

Hendren and Ames, batting with great care, carried the score to 160 without further loss before tea was taken, and at the interval Wyatt declared, leaving the West Indies about 90 minutes in which to get 203 runs to win.

It was evident from the slowness of the opening batsmen, K. L. Wishart and C. M. Christiani, that the West Indies regarded the task as hopeless, and when time was up they had scored 104 for five wickets, the match being drawn. Score:—

ENGLAND, First Innings—226 (Paine 49, Hammond 47, Hylton 4 for 27).

WEST INDIES, First Innings—184 (Wishart 52, G. Headley 53, Hollies 7 for 50).

HOLDERS' EASY WIN IN JUNIOR SCHOOLS' CUP

KILKENNY COLLEGE ........... 4
ST. ANDREW'S (BRAY) ........ 0

Kilkenny College, the holders of the Leinster Junior Schools' Cup, had an easy passage to the second round of this year's competition yesterday at Londonbridge road, where they defeated St. Andrew's (Bray) by four clear goals. On their form yesterday, Kilkenny will make a big bid to retain the trophy for the fourth season in succession.

They had a big, strong side, which, though slow, is undoubtedly clever. Rafter, their captain and centre-half, is without peer in junior hockey. Wallace and McCullough were a lusty pair of backs, while Barry and M. Bovenizer were useful forwards.

St. Andrew's had a great goalkeeper in Brown, who displayed the coolness of a veteran in coming out to clear, while his anticipation was excellent. McNulty was a fine back, and was ably assisted by Newell. The halves were no match for the opposing forwards, but in the front rank Paul was clever, and was well supported by Davidson.

Kilkenny scored after five minutes, Rafter beating Brown. It was not until five minutes before the interval that M. Bovenizer got their second goal. The holders had the better of the second half, and M. Bovenizer scored two further goals. Teams:—

Kilkenny College—R. H. Bruce; A. Wallace, S. McCullough; D. R. Burne, V. W. Rafter (capt.), G. C. A. Miller; D. A. Wallace, S. A. Barry, M. H. Bovenizer, M. G. Bouvenizer, R. H. Johnston.

Forwards—S. G. Packham (Dublin University), G. W. Bryan (Pembroke Wanderers), C. Leopold (Railway Union), J. Fitzpatrick (College of Surgeons), J. S. Adamson (Railway Union).

Those unable to play should notify at once T. Spearman, Wyvern, St. Albans Park, Ballsbridge.

TATE SCHOOL'S VICTORY

The Tate School, Wexford, were at home to Enniscorthy Y.M.C.A. team on Saturday. Owing to the inclemency of the weather and the consequent soft nature of the pitch, play was not of a very high standard. The home team won by 3 goals to 1.

Tate School—D. MacDonald; T. Webb, G. Coote; Miss O. Reid, P. Rennison, A. G. Breakey; C. R. Lowe, Miss D. Roberts, V. Smyth, Misses D. Buttimore, I. Roberts. Referees—Rev. R. Doherty and J. Furlong.

NORTHERN RIVERS

The weather has been so blustery in the past week that salmon fishing on the few rivers open in the North was badly handicapped, and little was done on the Bush, Lennon, Lackagh, etc. On Saturday a lot of rain fell, and the rivers everywhere went up a little, which was needed to help trout fishing. The Lagan is now in very good order, and trout up to 1lb. have been killed by local men around Dromore, Lisburn and Moira.

A number of rivers, including the Bann and its many tributaries, which empty into Lough Neagh will open on March 1.

DUBLIN 'BUS BUILDING

REQUEST TO INSPECT WORKSHOPS REFUSED

Stating that up to the present they have been unable to obtain the sanction of the Dublin United Tramways Company to investigate statements made at the mid-January meeting of the Council, alleging the inadequate nature of the company's programme of 'bus construction, the Dublin Trade Union Council has released for publication copies of a number of letters which have passed between the parties.

At the meeting of the Council referred to representatives of the National Union of Vehicle Builders and other unions said that the company was not doing its utmost to meet the present shortage of 'buses; alleged that there was space at the workshops for the laying down of many more vehicles, and asked that a deputation be appointed to inspect the premises for the purpose of "seeing for themselves."

After telephone conversations the Secretary of the Council (Mr. P. T. Daly) wrote on the 29th ult. asking for the company's approval of the visit, and on the same date a letter was received by the Council from the Department of Industry and Commerce, in which it was stated that the Minister had now been assured that the assembly of the chassis and the building of bodies are being carried out entirely at the company's works in Dublin.

A number of letters passed between Mr. Daly and the Dublin United Tramways Company, and a final communication was received from Mr. Maurice Lombard, Secretary to the company, which stated: "While my directors are always glad to receive from any source and consider suggestions for improving or speeding up their tramway and omnibus-building operations, they cannot admit the claim of the Trade Union Council to inspect the company's works and criticise the system and methods employed therein."

The Secretary of the Council has replied on behalf of the Executive Committee, stating that they are amazed to find that the company does not appear to be disposed to give them an opportunity of making any suggestion on the point, and must take the refusal, which they again ask to be re-considered, as evidence in favour of the accuracy of the statements that the company are not doing everything which might be done to meet the transport requirements undertaken by them under the monopoly obtained in the city.

THE LIFFEY SALMON

OLD DUBLIN SOCIETY LECTURE

The historical associations of the River Liffey and its tributaries, and the life of the Liffey salmon were dealt with by Mr. Laurie Gaffey, honorary secretary, Irish Free State Trout Anglers' Association, in an address given to the Old Dublin Society at a meeting in South William street, Dublin, last night.

Leixlip, said the speaker, derived its name from the Danish "Laxhlap," meaning salmon Leap; while Celbridge had associations with Dean Swift and Vanissa. The Devil's Mill at Lucan, County Dublin, was supposed to have been built by the devil in one night—and the devil was not recognised as a trade unionist.

After the Battle of the Boyne, William III. held court at Chapelizod, and King's House there is named after this event.

Islandbridge, together with the fisheries and sluice gates, was made over to the Corporation by the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem in the seventeenth century, and the weir proper at Islandbridge also was granted to the Corporation by the Bristolians in the Middle Ages.

Mr. Gaffey then traced the progress of the salmon from the time they entered the Liffey in January. Coming into the river, he said, they went to the spawning beds at Ballymore-Eustace, on the borders of Kildare, where the spawning began about November.

Two years after the spawn and fry were in the river, they went out into the sea, usually travelling north, but returning always after three years to the original river.

The speaker also dealt with the historical associations of the tributaries of the Liffey—the Poddle, the Camac and the Dodder.

SOUTHERN CHURCH MISSION

The Primate will preside this afternoon at a quarter past five at the annual meeting of the Southern Church Mission, Ballymacarrett. The meeting will be held in the Gregg Memorial Hall, 8 Dawson street, and will be preceded by tea at a quarter to five, to which friends and supporters are invited. The Bishop of Down, Connor and Dromore, and Miss Studdert of the Women Workers' Settlement, will speak on the work of the Mission.

DUBLIN STEADY

LOCAL SECURITIES WELL SUPPORTED

BANKS HARDER

Dublin Stock Market opened the new three-weeks' account in steady fashion. A large number of securities were marked ex-dividend, and in subsequent dealings, as in Guinness and Courtaulds, a fair slice of the deduction was recovered. The tone, on the whole, was good, influenced to some extent by the fact that the subscription list for the Ever Ready (Ireland) offer only remained open a couple of minutes. This is almost a record.

Free State Funds show the usual fractional changes, and Land Bonds rose 5s. War Loan lost the same amount.

Banks were busy at rising prices. Bank Stock rose 5s., Hibernians 2s. 6d., Nationals 7½d., Provincials 2s. 6d., and Royals 5s.

The Railway section was also fairly active. Great Southern Guaranteed were ex-dividend, with 59 bid and 60 asked. The Pref. rose a point and the Debs. 10s. Great Northern Pref. fell 1¾ to 14¾, and the Guaranteed repeated 42.

Guinness units, at 138s. 9d., showed a recovery of about 1s. 2d. of the dividend deducted. Dublin Distillers "A" lost twopence, and Power Debs. repeated 17s. All the Cables issues were dealt in at higher prices, except the Pref., which gave way slightly. Alliance Gas gained 1s. 3d., Crowe Wilson Pref. 9d., Hayes Conyngham Debs. 9d., and Smyth and Co. 1s. Burke Pref. lost a couple of shillings, and Carroll Ord. shed ninepence. Irish Aluminium 6½ per cent. Prefs. were 20s. bid, and Irish Sugar Prefs. 20s. 9d.

The British Industrial section was on the dull side, but the price changes were small. There was no sign of strength in any share.

Among the Textiles, Courtaulds were very firm. The final dividend was deducted, and nearly the whole of the amount taken off was recovered in the subsequent dealings. Bleachers were a weak spot.

LONDON BRIGHTER

GERMAN BONDS LOWER

The London Stock markets displayed an air of confidence when the new account covering a period of three weeks commenced yesterday. There were a few bright spots, chief among them being activity in the Mining group, heavy buying of Yellowdine issues taking place as a result of the encouraging cables recently issued. In other sections the volume of business transacted was on a limited scale, but prices were fairly firm, and generally a brighter tone was apparent.

A resumed demand for investment purposes was responsible for an improvement in some gilt-edged stocks. Old Consols and Local Loans added ¼ and most Conversion issues were a fraction better, but Indian stocks in some instances were ¼ lower. In the Foreign Bond market, disappointment with the latest trade figures caused a set-back in German Bonds, and falls ranging from 1½ to 2 were recorded.

*Close in New York, 4.89⅜.

Little of interest transpired in the British Rail market. A number of stocks were quoted ex div, and at the reduced levels attracted a few buyers, with the result that Great Western Ord. and Southerns regained part of the dividend deductions. Foreign Rails were again uninteresting, and values in most cases remained unchanged; but "Can-Pacs" among Colonials shed 1/16, and thus last week's gains were negatived. American Rails were not inquired for, and prices were unaltered.

In the Mining group a "boomlet" developed in West Australian Gold shares, a large amount of orders had accumulated over the week-end, and from the commencement of dealings prices shot ahead by leaps and bounds, and it was not until midday that profit-taking caused a check in the advance, but final rates showed good gains in some issues. In the Kaffir section, receding hopes of a reduction in taxation was reflected in an almost general set-back. West Wits. and Venterspost, however, were again heavily bought by Cape operators on the strength of the good cables issued last week. West Africans showed improvement, but Tins were not greatly supported, and Copper shares were mostly easier.

As is often the case at the start of a three-week account business in Industrials was limited, but prices in many cases showed good advances. Breweries were generally bright, but the recent activity in Iron and Steel shares subsided, and this section was subdued. Internationals were quiet, pending the gold clause decision. The Oil share market was quiet, but most prices were maintaind; while Rubbers were inactive, and values where changed were lower.

LONDON "STREET" MARKET

Business after hours last evening was at first rather quiet, but, when the United States gold clause decision was announced, the "street" became thronged with dealers, and animated dealings went on to a very late hour. In the American section, Nickels closed at 24⅜, 1⅜ higher than at four o'clock. Tractions were bid for at 9⅞. Radios improved from 5 7/16 to 5 11/16, and Steels finished two dollars to the good at 38¼, after touching 39¼. Canadas rose from 12⅞ to 13¼. American Celanese were quoted at 6⅝, and Woolworth were bid for at 109s. Fords gained 1s. 3d. to 32s. 6d., as did "Emmies" to 33s. 9d., while Hydros changed hands up to 3⅞.

The Mining section was also active. Commonwealth Mining were bid for at 14s. 3d., as were West Wits at 2⅞. Kwahu were a better market at 7 11/16, and Consolidated Gold Fields closed at 3⅞ bid. Klerksdorp were mentioned frequently around 7s., and Simmer and Jack were heard at 12s. 6d. Numerous other issues were also bid for, but changes were rather small and unimportant.

Among home Industrials, Dunlops were dealt in up to 50s. 9d. Courtaulds strengthened to 50s. 4½d., and "Imps" were fractionally harder at 6⅞.

THE INDUSTRIAL MARKET

SHARP MOVEMENTS IN THOMAS TILLING

Trading for new account in the Industrial Market yesterday was of moderate dimensions, owing to the fact that it is of three weeks' duration. As a result values generally moved in rather irregular fashion, though several firm spots developed. Thomas Tilling were subject to considerable profit-taking at first, but a rally occurred during the afternoon.

It was not until after the "House" closed that any semblance of activity was witnessed. Then a revival of interest developed among the trans-Atlantic counters, following the gold-clause decision. Several sharp advances occurred, though final pries were below the best.

Cable and Wireless Stocks showed little variation.

Electrical Equipments were firm. Enfield Cables came into renewed demand and rose to 102s. 6d. ex-dividend. Telegraph Construction strengthened to 24s. 6d., and Ever Ready to 20s. 6d.

In the Motor group Thomas Tillings, which were dealt in ex-dividend, became dull. After falling to 106s. the price rallied to 109s., which left them 1s. 9d. down on balance.

The announcement of the details of the Welsh coal merger had little influence on the shares of the companies affected, although Powell Duffryn hardened to 20s. 3d.

Business in Iron and Steel shares was small, and price changes made an irregular showing. Tube investments came on offer, and fell 1s. 3d. to 51s. 3d.

As regards Tobaccos, there was fresh support forthcoming for "Imps," and the price strengthened to 6⅞. "Bats" gained the turn at 5 11/16, but Tobacco Securities Trust Ord. were a dull spot.

On the whole, Textile issues were on the dull side. Patons and Baldwins lost 1s. to 57s. 9d., while Linen Thread receded to 28s. 9d.

In the Rayon group Courtaulds and American Celanese were in demand in the late dealings.

The Miscellaneous section, as a whole, displayed a moderately firm tendency for the opening of a long account. British Oxygens recovered to 84s. Imperial Chemicals rallied to 36s. 10½d., and the Deferred were a shade firmer at 9s. 10½d. Eastwood's Cement put on 1s. 6d. to 41s. 6d. on the declaration of an interim dividend, and Associated Portland Cement remained steady at 41s. 9d. United Molasses improved to 20s. 6d., but British Oil and Cake Preferred gave way to 45s. 3d. Dunlops strengthened to over 50s.

OILS QUIET

Quiet conditions prevailed in the Oil Share market yesterday for the commencement of business for the new account. The market was slow in opening, and, indeed, throughout the day transactions were on a very small scale.

Advices received over the week-end were not encouraging, although price changes in American Oil Stocks on Saturday last were generally of a slight and irregular character. As regards Continental business yesterday, operators were at first inclined to be buyers of Royal Dutch, but after the initial demand was satisfied there was little doing either way from Paris or Amsterdam.

Firmness was displayed by United British Oilfields of Trinidad, it being rumoured that the company would, on March 1st next, pay twelve months' dividend on the 8 per cent. Participating Preference shares, thus leaving no arrears. Official confirmation of this report came to hand after business hours. The position of the Ord. shares is naturally improved, although it has to be remembered that after payment of the Preference dividend the Preference shares participate as to 25 per cent. of any further distributable sum. United British shares closed at 7s.

RUBBERS INACTIVE

Inactive conditions prevailed in the Rubber Share market yesterday, and prices, though mostly maintained, were lower where changed. United Sua Betong at 58s. 9d. were 9d. down, but other movements were falls not exceeding 3d. In the commodity market business was dull, and spot Rubber sold at 6 5/16d. per lb. Rubber stocks in the United Kingdom have increased by 2,383 tons during the past week.

METROPOLE HOTELS CO. (IRELAND) MEETING

The annual general meeting of shareholders was held at the Grosvenor Hotel yesterday. Sir Thomas Robinson (in the chair) and Mr. Harold Mitchell and Mr. R. Noel Mitchell attended. ## THE MONEY MARKET

STIFFER RATES

The price of gold was, yesterday, fixed at 142s. 7d. per fine ounce, being 1½d. lower than on Saturday. There was a premium of 11d. over the franc at 74 7/16, but a discount of ½d. was shown in the case of the dollar at 4.87⅞. The sum of £258,000 was disposed of in the market.

Silver declined ⅛d. on profit-taking to 24 11/16d. per ounce for spot and 24 11/16d. for forward delivery.

Credit remained in plentiful supply and short loans were offering at ¼ to ½ per cent. In the Discount market, fine three months' bills were maintained at 7/16 to ⅜ per cent., and the hot Treasuries were offened at 7/16 per cent

Wild fluctuations in the principal rates followed the receipt of the decision of the U.S. Supreme Court in the gold-clause cases yesterday evening. Sterling opened rather weak in tone, but early action by the authorities caused a sharp recovery, especially against the European gold currencies. "Control" operations were moderate, however, and were not considered to be wholly responsible for the recovery. Buying of dollars and Continental gold currencies was resumed soon afterwards, however, and sterling dropped steadily on all the principal centres until late in the afternoon. The judgment of the Supreme Court being favourable to the Administration, there was a rush to cover by speculators who had operated in the expectation of an adverse decision. The dollar exchange in the early afternoon fell to nearly 4.86. Late in the afternoon the rate shot up to 4.89¼, eventually closing with a net rise of 1¼c. on the day at 4.88¼. All the European gold currencies, on the other hand finished decidedly firmer in relation to the pound.

LONDON MINING MARKET STEADIER

COMMONWEALTH THE FEATURE

Among the speculative departments of the "House" interest centred mainly upon Mining shares, and this was quite understandable in view of the developments over the week-end. This applies particularly to the Australian section, where the news as to the further Yellowdine developments came too late to affect dealings on Friday last. The fact that the existence of the reef has been established at depth created a good deal of excitement, and, although more news as to widths and values is awaited with keen interest, the mere fact that the ore occurrence does not pinch-out at water level was sufficient to stimulate interest in the shares. Fresh buying of Commonwealth was not unnaturally mixed with profit-taking—mostly of a professional or semi-professional character—and this resulted in some fairly violent fluctuations in the price, which, however, left off well above last Friday's closing level, though below the best of the day.

As regards the day's dealings, which were helped by a fair accumulation of public orders over the week-end, Kaffirs generally gave a good account of themselves, a hopeful feeling being stimulated by expectations of a cheerful Budget statement by Mr. Havenga to-morrow. Late in the day this and other departments were helped by the news of the gold clause litigation having been decided by the American Supreme Court in favour of the Government. The outlook, therefore, appeared promising, and the tone at the close was quite strong, prices being marked substantially higher after hours.

Rhodesians were featureless, and the changes recorded were irregular in character and insignificant in extent.

West Africans shook off their lethargy, and business all-round was on a better scale than for some time previously. The lead was taken by Ashanti, which, in response to a persistent investment demand, rose to the new high record price of 54s. 6d.

Although the metal price improved, the Tin share market showed little animation, and movements were few and irregular. Closing prices:—

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS

Cunard-White Star Directorship

The directors of the Cunard-White Star, Ltd., announce that they have received a nomination signed by the appropriate shareholders nominating Mr. William R. ### Westralian Strike Over

The Chamber of Mines of Western Australia has unreservedly accepted the Government's proposal made under protest last week. The men are resuming work forthwith, but there is to be a ballot to decide whether the terms of the working week will be become permanent. It is estimated that the 6,000 men involved have lost £216,000 in wages during the six weeks the mines have been idle.

D.E.I. Native Rubber Quota

In reply to a number of questions raised in the People's Council of the D.E.I., it was stated that the Government saw no reason to reduce the quota of European rubber in favour of native growers. It was stated that the difficulties in connection with the restriction of native rubber are receiving the Government's careful attention.

Prices Tailors

The statutory meeting of Prices Trust Co., Ltd., was held at Winchester House, London, E.C.2, yesterday. Mr. E. W. Broadbent, director of Prices Tailors, who took the chair, said:—"I am sure you will be expecting me to make some statement as to our progress since 1st July, 1934. In our prospectus we stated that the sales for three months to 30th September showed an increase over the corresponding period of the previous year of more than 20 per cent., carrying more than a proportionate increase in net profits. I am pleased to say that this has been more than maintained."

Prices Irish Company

A new company is being formed, called Prices Tailors (Ireland), Ltd., and a public issue is being made in Dublin to take over the dépôts of the Fifty Shilling Tailors in the Irish Free State, and also the assets of Marward, Ltd., clothing manufacturers, of Dublin. This will make a complete unit in the Irish Free State. The new company will be under the management and guidance of Prices Tailors, Ltd., thus giving continuity of the present successful progress.

Conditions in Australasia

The National Bank of Australasia, London, sends us the purport of a cablegram received from Melbourne, dated 13th instant:—"The February number of this bank's monthly summary of Australian conditions states that general trade shows the usual January easing, with retail sales of summer clothing and sundries depressed by the protracted cool weather. Secondary and building industries are well maintained. The Australian wheat harvest is estimated at 123,000,000 bushels. Wool offerings are selling readily at current low prices. Pastoral conditions are good in most coastal and sub-coastal sections, but very dry in interior. Imports for the six months ended December, 1934, amount to £38,000,000 sterling and exports £43,000,000 sterling, compared with imports £29,000,000 and exports £53,000,000 for previous corresponding period. Large quantities of wool and butter are available for export during current half-year. Stock Exchange firm, investments in Industrials, and brisk trading in Gold Mining shares."

Ever Ready (Ireland), Ltd

The subscription lists of the above issue were closed at 10 o'clock yesterday (Monday) morning, owing to over-subscription. The prospectus was published in the Irish Times on Friday.

LMS Net Revenue

The full accounts of the London, Midland and Scottish Railway for 1934 show that the full distribution on the First Preference Stocks, which was announced last Wednesday, was very comfortably earned. Only 1.53 per cent., however, was earned on the 4 per Cent. Preference Stock (1923), so that the dividend of 1½ per cent. was short-earned by £39,135. Net revenue has increased by £1,208,551 to £11,921,236. This represents earnings of 2.77 per cent. on the issued capital. The increase is, in the main, accounted for by the improvement in the company's railway working. Gross railway receipts increased by £2,386,148, or 4.1 per cent. Extra expenditure, however, absorbed £1,339,451 of this, leaving a net increase of £1,046,697. Wages and salaries have cost the company £38,156,000, compared with £36,852,000 in 1933. The average number of employés has increased from 216,037 to 222,920. These figures include all workers, both on revenue account and on schemes of capital expenditure and renewals. The operating ratio has again been reduced from 82.9 per cent. to 81.8 per cent. There has been a net writing-off of £419,451 from the capital expenditure to £452,554,778, and the debit on capital account has been reduced to £22,777,952. This has been achieved despite the acquisition of a holding of £545,979 in Carter Paterson and Hays Wharf Cartage and a new holding of £47,447 in Scottish Motor Traction. The holding of cash and Government securities has increased from £26,142,566 to £28,643,435. Stocks of stores and materials have also increased slightly. The railway renewal fund has decreased from £10,906,684 to £8,854,527. The rolling stock renewal fund, included in this, has decreased from £7,030,953 to £4,935,482 on account of the very extensive programme of replacements which started in 1934.

Taquah and Abosso

In a circular to shareholders of Taquah and Abosso Mines the directors state that the decision has been made to erect an entirely new treatment plant, part of which is already on order. The plant will be capable of 20,000 tons per month at lower cost, with improved extraction and will allow of further extension. The authorised capital of the company is £250,000, divided into 1,250,000 4s. shares. There have been issued 1,200,000 shares, leaving 50,000 shares unissued. The directors have decided to issue these 50,000 shares at 32s. per share to provide in part the necessary funds for the purchase and erection of the new plant. The balance will be provided out of current funds.

THE AMERICAN MARKETS

HIGH ENTHUSIASM SUCCEEDS GOLD JUDGMENT: STRONG CLOSE

REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.

A general upward surge under the leadership of the Industrial, Rail and Mining groups was the immediate reaction of the Stock Exchange to the Supreme Court's gold clause fiat. But the market quickly quietened and the earlier gains were reduced to a substantial extent by profit-taking. The close, nevertheless was strong, and net advances extending to $4 were recorded. Sales at 1,910,000 shares were the highest since the end of July.

The opening was steady. Wall street awaited the expected Supreme Court decision with equanimity, and the market was quiet throughout the morning. Nevertheless, with the leading commodities displaying an easy appearance the trend was chiefly lower, though the losses were mostly fractional.

As an instant result of the gold finding, the market showed its heels to the confused "bears," as a rush of buying overwhelmed the trading facilities. A long list of stocks jumped anything from 2 to 6 points. But thereafter the enthusiasm died down and profit-taking made its appearance. This realising, however, was well absorbed and the market closed strong.

American financial observers are now bullishly inclined. They believe that the Government, in the light of the Supreme Court's pronouncement, will adhere to its plans for credit inflation—as against monetary inflation—as the means of stimulating private industry.

Call money remained at 1 per cent., and the outside rate was unchanged at ½ to ¾ per cent. Prime paper was quoted at ¾ to 1 per cent. Open market discount rates were unaltered at ⅛ per cent. bid and ⅛ per cent. asked for 90-day bank bills, and ⅛ per cent. bid and ⅜ per cent. asked for six months' bills.

Sterling exchange opened ½c. higher at 4.87¾, but dropped to 4.87 during the morning. The rate touched 4.86½ in the afternoon, and after further fluctuations finally closed 2¼c. higher, compared with the previous close at 4.89¾. Silver was unchanged at 54¾c.

POSITION OF JAMES AND SHAKESPEARE

OFFICIAL INQUIRY TO BE HELD

Mr. David Grenfell (Labour, Gower) asked the Chancellor of the Exchequer, in the House of Commons yesterday, whether he intended to take any action regarding the loss of confidence in the City of London due to recent commodity speculations.

Mr. Duff-Cooper, Financial Secretary to the Treasury, replied that in view of the prompt measures taken in the city to minimise the effects of the recent commodity speculations he did not think it would be correct to ascribe to these operations the movements of securities, to which he presumed Mr. Grenfell referred.

"As to what further action, if any, should be taken," Mr. Duff-Cooper proceeded, "I understand the position to be, that a petition has already been made to the Court for the compulsory winding-up of James and Shakespeare, Limited, the company which was specially associated with the recent transactions. The petition is to be heard within a few days, and on its being granted the Official Receiver will be required, in discharge of the duties specifically laid upon him by Section 182 of the Companies Act, 1929, to make full inquiry into the causes of the failure, and to report to the Court whether, in his opinion, further inquiry is desirable into the circumstances attending the promotion of the company, and the conduct of its business.

"The Section further provides that the Official Receiver may also, if he thinks fit, make a further report as to whether, in his opinion, any fraud has been committed by any person in the promotion or formation of the company, or by any director or other officer of the company in relation to the company since its formation, or on any other matters which, in his opinion, it is desirable to bring to the notice of the Court.

GOVERNMENT TO WAIT

"The House will, therefore, see that the existing law makes suitable provision for judicial inquiry into the circumstances attending this class of case, and the Government propose to await the result of the statutory inquiry or inquiries before considering the matter further."

"Is he aware," Mr. Grenfell asked, "that already shareholders who have lost considerably by these transactions in connection with James and Shakespeare make the allegation freely, that their interests in the firm were confined to the business in tin and not to the speculation in pepper, and that to that extent their investments in the company have been based upon fraudulent representations?"

Mr. Grenfell further asked: Whether, having regard to the necessity of giving confidence in the City and to the general public in the country, who were much concerned about the character of these transactions, would the inquiry be thorough?

Mr. Duff-Cooper—I think my answer has replied to all the points Mr. Grenfell has raised.

ARMY BOMBER IN FLAMES

ESCAPE OF THE THREE OCCUPANTS

Remarkable escapes were experienced by the pilot and two passengers of a Vickers Virginia aircraft attached to No. 500 County of Kent Territorial Bomber Squadron, R.A.F., Manston, Kent, which burst into flames over the aerodrome yesterday.

The pilot, Flight-Lieutenant Frederick W. Murison, turned the machine out of the wind and succeeded in bringing it to land.

He and the two passengers jumped out of the burning machine, and within a few minutes it was destroyed by the flames.

An eye-witness told a reporter:—"I noticed flames coming from the machine as it was making for the aerodrome, and I expected it to burst at any moment.

"The skill of the pilot in bringing it so quickly to earth alone averted disaster, for within a few minutes of the time that the three men jumped out the machine was completely enveloped in flames."

An Air Ministry official said that the machine was successfully landed, and the fire was extinguished on the ground. The fabric was burnt, but it was understood that the machine was not completely burnt out.

A British soldier of the 12th Lancers received a bayonet wound from an Italian soldier in the Saar on Sunday night. The wound, which was slight, was inflicted after the two men had become involved in a violent quarrel.

FREE STATE ROAD TOLL

INCREASE IN ACCIDENTS

DUBLIN FATALITIES FEWER IN 1934

MORE than twelve accidents a day occurred on Free State roads last year. Over 3,000 of these accidents resulted in personal injury, and the total number of persons killed or injured totalled 3,521.

These are some of the main figures from the Civic Guards' report, which reveals that the number of accidents is the second highest during the past eight years. The highest road accident rate was in 1929, when there were 3,627 accidents, resulting in death or personal injury; the number of accidents in this category last year was 3,121.

Drivers of motor vehicles were held responsible for 3,322 of the accidents (including those involving no injury), and, according to the report, failure on the part of the drivers to exercise care at crossings or road junctions was the most prolific cause of accidents—854 being attributed to this cause.

Inattentiveness, confusion or lack of judgment was responsible for a further 762; improperly overtaking, cutting out or cutting in 666; failure to keep the proper side of the road 296, and excessive speed 295.

Actually excessive speed was responsible for fifteen fatal and 280 non-fatal accidents; lack of care at crossings for eleven fatal and 843 involving injury; inattention or lack of judgment for nine fatal and 753 non-fatal. Driving while under the influence of drink was responsible for five fatal accidents, and 38 others. Drivers of horse-drawn vehicles caused 436 accidents, of which six were fatal.

VEHICULAR DEFECTS

Fifteen fatal accidents and 325 others were the result of defects in motor vehicles. Defective brakes caused 77 accidents (three fatal).

Careless pedestrians caused over 1,000 accidents involving motor vehicles and 178 involving cyclists and horse-drawn vehicles. Sixty-five of the accidents proved fatal, and of these 37 involved children. Cyclists caused 944 road accidents and 28 of these were fatal; 226 accidents (one fatal) were due to animals.

Restricted view at corners or crossings resulted in three fatal accidents and 373 others, while another death was attributable to the lack of a road sign. Altogether 508 accidents (seven fatal) are classed as having been due to the roads. The weather conditions were responsible for four fatal accidents and 404 others.

The following table sets out the numbers of fatal and non-fatal accidents and the vehicles involved (accidents in which nobody was injured are not included):—

| | Fatal. | Non-fatal. |
|---|---|---|
| Motor 'buses and coaches | 15 | 219 |
| Electric tramcars | 3 | 68 |
| Motor bicycles | 10 | 130 |
| Private cars | 57 | 1,146 |
| Taxis and hackneys | 4 | 142 |
| Lorries | 38 | 237 |
| Motor vans | 12 | 151 |

THE NUMBER KILLED

The total number of persons killed on the roads during 1934 was 191, and 3,330 were injured. In 1933, 185 were killed and 2,747 received injuries. Included in the total for last year are 43 persons killed and 1,481 injured in the Dublin metropolitan area. Although the actual number of accidents in Dublin was higher last year there were fewer fatalities than for the past six years, the figure for 1933 having been 60.

Last year the age of the youngest victim was two years, and 23.6 per cent. of the total victims were under twelve years of age. People between the ages of thirty and forty were involved in only 9.4 per cent. of the fatal accidents. The oldest person to meet with a fatal accident was eighty-eight years, and of the total number involved in accidents 16.7 per cent. were over sixty years of age.

Women appear, from the report, to be more careful than men, for only 58 were killed last year as compared with 133 men. A virtually similar state of affairs was recorded in 1933, when 138 men and 48 women were fatally injured.

BRITAIN AND POLAND

NEW TRADE AGREEMENT

The trade agreement between Britain and Poland, to which Mr. Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Trade, referred yesterday, follows negotiations that have spread over many months.

Speaking at a luncheon in connection with the opening of the textile section of the British Industries Fair at the White City, Mr. Runciman said that he hoped that a new agreement would be initialled by Britain on Wednesday.

It is learned that the draft of the agreement is practically finished, and it is expected that at a meeting on Wednesday the remaining difficulties will be cleared away and possibly the heads of the agreement will be initialled. The final wording will then be put in hand.

At Wednesday's meeting the Polish delegation will be led by the Minister of Commerce and Industry, M. Rajchman, who arrived in London at the week-end.

Poland is a growing market for motor cars, raw materials, semi-manufactured goods, agricultural and other machinery, instruments and chemicals. The British herring industry also has important interests in the Polish demand.

The Polish negotiators have been concerned in the Whitehall meetings—which began last summer and were adjourned for a period—to obtain more facilities for Polish agricultural and dairy produce.

The coal owners of the two countries lately arrived at an agreement to put an end to excessive competition between British and Polish coal. By this arrangement Poland's sales of coal overseas are regulated, and a relationship is kept between the export prices of British and Polish coal.

Revolvers were fired, and one of the students named Ljubo Radenkovitch, and one Nationalist, Milosh Tzvijovitch, were killed.

THE PLAY FROM THE PIT

LECTURE BY MR. SHAW DESMOND

The Rubicon, at its meeting on Tuesday, entertained as its guest of honour Mr. Shaw Desmond, the Irish novelist, who gave a most invigorating address on "The Play from the Pit." He has just returned from an extensive tour of America, where he saw Eugene O'Neill's play, "Electra," which Mr. Desmond thinks is one of the greatest plays written since the time of Shakespeare. It was almost impossible to obtain a seat under 24s. Mr. Desmond also thinks Saint Joan, written when Bernard Shaw was 70, is his greatest play. He deplores the lack in modern times of really great inspirational actors, like Henry Irving. Miss Phyllis Kelly, after the lecture, sang with much charm two groups of Irish songs, "The Lament for Owen Roe O'Neill," as arranged by Charles Stanford, and the "Short Cut to the Rosses," by Milligan Fox. Also "Ardglass Boat Song," and "Padraig the Fiddler," composed by John F. Larchet, director of the Royal Irish Academy of Music, and the "Fairy Tree," by Dr. Vincent O'Brien.

Among those present were:—Mrs. Tennyson D'Eyncourt, Mrs. Harry de Windt, Colonel and Mrs Barber, Mr. and Mrs. William Barnett, Miss Alison Harvey, Mrs. de Boer, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Laughton, Dr. and Mrs. Barre Chatterton, Mrs. Coppleston Corfield, Mrs. Blagden, Mr. and Miss John Wade, Miss May McAleer, and Mrs. Lynn.

AFTER EIGHTEEN YEARS

TIVOLI RECLAMATION SCHEME

CORK, Monday.

At the meeting of the Cork Harbour Board Committee to-day, Captain J. Collins presiding, arising out of the Engineer's report on the progress of repairs to the pumping plant on Tivoli reclamation scheme, Mr. R. Wallace suggested that the pumping plant which had been at work for eighteen years should be scrapped. The scheme was costing £2,000 a year, and a great percentage of the mud being pumped ran away into the channel again. He was glad to hear an outside wall was being built, and the reclaimed area sectionised. The pity was that this was not done eighteen years ago, instead of now spending hundreds of pounds trying to recondition a deficient and defunct plant that was making very little progress in reclamation.

He suggested that the Board should proceed on new lines. Let them stop tinkering with it and stop all this ridiculous expenditure. He suggested that no further expenditure on the pumping plant be incurred until their new chairman, and those whom he wished to call upon, prepared a report.

Mr. Horne thought that the pump should be got working first, and the questions raised by Mr. Wallace could also be gone into.

After some discussion the Engineer's report was adopted.

The General Manager reported that for the week ended Saturday last the dues collected amounted to £1,483, as compared with £1,297 for the corresponding period last year.

AFTER A 'PHONE CALL

MAN FOUND WITH HEAD INJURY

The finding of a blood-stained axe and a mysterious call for an ambulance are circumstances connected with the discovery of a man in bed at Nottingham yesterday, suffering from head injury and concussion.

The man, Edward Lunn, aged 27, who lives in Penn avenue, Gregory street, was removed to hospital.

A message had been received at the fire station at 7 o'clock that an ambulance was required at Penn avenue. When it arrived there, however, nobody seemed to know who had summoned it. The ambulance officers eventually entered a flat, where they found Lunn on a bed which was saturated with blood.

The police were then called, and on making a search found a blood-stained axe, which they took away.

POULTRY, FISH, CAGE BIRDS, DAIRY.

FUMIGATION.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says:—

The individual treatment of birds entails skilful handling. The worms should be removed from the throat with a fine wing feather. This is previously stripped of the webb to within an inch of the top. The feather is first moistened with oil of cloves or a few drops of turpentine mixed with sweet oil. The bird should be held in the left hand while the mouth is opened; insert the tip of the feather at the opening to the windpipe and twist it round several times. When the feather is removed the worms will be found clinging to it. If done carefully so as to avoid injuring the tender windpipe, this is probably the surest way of dislodging the parasite; but for a large flock the collective remedy is the only feasible one.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Garden Correspondent says:—

Geranium, Marguerites, and other autumn-struck plants should now be potted off from the cutting boxes, and started into growth. Continue to propagate early flowering varieties of Chrysanthemums, and look over recently rooted cuttings to see that they are not getting drawn. To prevent this, gradually harden off the plants, and stand them on a shelf near the glass in a cool house. Encourage plants in bloom by slight waterings with liquid manure, and ventilate freely on fine days. Finish up arrears of work in vineries and peach-houses, as the sap in vines will soon be ascending, and the slightest wound would have serious results.
